LINDBERGHS OFF FROM NOME ON SIBERIA FLIGHT

Flying Colonel and Wife Begin 1,067-Mile Hop to Karagin Isle.

HOPE TO LAND PLANE EARLY THIS MORNING

Radio Reports Good Time Is Being Made on Trip; Get Rousihg Send-Off.

Bremerton, Wash., Aug. 14 (A.P.).—The Naval Radio Station here picked up a message a few minutes after 11:38 p. m. (E. S. T.), relayed by the St. Paul Island Station from the Lindbergh plane, saying Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh expected to reach Karagin Island within three hours.

Safety Bay, Alaska, Aug. 14 (A.P.).—Speeding swiftly toward the setting sun over the ice-packed waters of Bering Sea, the big black monoplane carrying Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh to the Far East was flying down the Siberian coast tonight with Karagin Island, 1,067 miles from here, as its destination.

The flying vacationists hopped off at 9 a. m. (12 noon P. S. T.) and two hours later Mrs. Lindbergh advised the naval radio station at St. Paul Island in the Pribiloffs that they were approaching low fog, but the sea was calm and the wind only 5 miles an hour.

At 5:45 p. m. (E. S. T.) Mrs. Lindbergh reported their position as latitude 62:55 north and longitude 175 west and a speed of 95 knots.

Cover Third of Distance.

This indicated the Lindberghs had covered about a third of the distance of the flight to Karagin Island at a speed of slightly more than 100 miles an hour.

The Lindberghs were expected to reach Karagin Island, off the Kamchatka Peninsula, where they have a cache of fuel, between 7 and 9 p. m. (1 a. m. and 3 a. m. E. S. T.). The plane has a maximum cruising speed of 140 miles an hour, but to conserve fuel the colonel had throttled the ship down to 105 miles an hour at times.

There was a possibility of them continuing on to Petropaviosk, 500 miles farther, near the tip of the Kamchatka Peninsula. The plane had a capacity load of gasoline, 536 gallons.

The colonel intimated they contemplated continuing on around the world after visiting Japan and China.

The big black monoplane's tanks were filled to the brim with 500 gallons of gasoline and a new supply was cached at Karagin Island.

The Lindberghs motored to Safety Bay, 21 miles from Nome, and at 7:44 a. m. (1:44 p. m., Eastern standard time) began preparations for the take-off. The sun was shining and reports of good weather across Bering Sea encouraged the fliers.

Blazing Virgin Trail.

Fifteen minutes after they left the bay, all of Nome, gathered on the beach, saw the plane heading directly over the ice-filled waters of Bering Sea, for St. Lawrence Island, midway between here and the Siberian coast, which they were expected to reach in five or six hours. This part of the flight has never before been made by westward-bound airmen.

Twenty-five minutes after the take-off, the Naval Radio Station at St. Paul Island, in the middle of Bering Sea, made its first contact with the Lindbergh plane.

Every half hour during the flight to Karagin Island, the St. Paul station broadcast signals to aid the Lindberghs in maintaining their course through a region where compasses are erratic. Operators at the Naval Station, as well as in numerous other stations along the Pacific rim, listened for signals sent out by Mrs. Lindbergh.

Sea Hop of 250 Miles.

The longest over-water hop of the flight was the 250 miles between St. Lawrence Island and Cape Naverin on the Siberian coast. St. Lawrence

Lucas Sees World Issues Ruling 1932

Hoover to Run as Leading Statesman, Republican Secretary Asserts.

New York, Aug. 14 (A.P.).—International issues, says Robert H. Lucas, executive secretary of the Republican national committee, will be paramount in next year's presidential campaign and President Hoover will stand for reelection as the leading statesman of the world.

"At Washington," Mr. Lucas said today, "I get a cross-section of opinion, I can assure you that there has been a revolution in favor of the President. It began after Congress adjourned and reached its climax following the debt moratorium announcement."

Contrary to report, he said, the Middle West is "very much" concerned in international affairs. He predicted there might be an improvement in business this fall and said that by next spring there would be real relief.

Mr. Lucas was in New York preparatory to sailing on a cruise.

Army Bombers Fail To Sink Mt. Shasta

Rusty Hulk Defies Hurricane of High Explosive; Two Hits Recorded; Coast Guard Then Sends Craft to Bottom.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

Aboard the Coast Guard Cutter Carrabasset, 80 miles off the Virginia Capes, Aug. 14.—The Army Air Corps took a terrible beating out here on the Atlantic today.

For one hour nine of its crack pilots from Langley Field sought to sink the condemned freighter S. S. Mount Shasta, but when the hurricane of bombs was over the rusty old craft still rode the waves.

The Army fliers aimed approximately fifty bombs at the Mount Shasta, all that they carried. Only two landed on the vessel and neither of these caused any vital damage.

After Maj. Herbert A. Dargue led his nine bombers back to Langley Field the Coast Guard cutters Mascoutin and Carrabasset prepared to sink the Mount Shasta with gun fire. The cutters fired 100 or so 1-pound shells at the derelict before she went down.

The Mount Shasta, a worthless war-time ship that was turned over to the Army by the Shipping Board, has been a hoodoo craft from the beginning. Originally it was planned to hold the obsequies for it last Tuesday. On that day, however, the bombers failed to find her because of a fog, but today conditions were just about perfect.

The weather was clear and the breeze was hardly strong enough to kick up a whitecap. On board this Coast Guard cutter moving picture men had their cameras trained on the Mount Shasta ready to record the sinking which they thought would surely take place.

A Columbia Broadcasting Co. announcer was telling his audience that the Mount Shasta soon would be resting in Davy Jones' locker. There was

NYE QUIZ ON BISHOP SET FOR AUGUST 27

Subpenas Are Issued for 20 Witnesses, Several of Them Bankers.

(United Press.)

Investigation of the political activities of Bishop James Cannon, jr., will be resumed August 27 by the Senate committee on campaign expenditures, Senator Gerald P. Nye, chairman, announced yesterday.

Bishop Cannon, missionary bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church South and a prohibition leader, is in Europe, but Senator Nye said the committee was prepared to hold its hearing "with or without him."

He intimated that the committee had prepared a mass of evidence regarding Bishop Cannon's participation in the 1928 Presidential election, when he led the fight against Alfred E. Smith, Democratic nominee, in Virginia, and other Southern States.

Twenty subpenas were sent out yesterday for prospective witnesses, Mr. Nye said. Names of those summoned will be announced when the Senate sergeant-at-arms has served them.

It was understood that several of the subpenas will be for bankers, who will be asked to identify papers concerning Bishop Cannon's expenditures, particularly regarding a contribution of $65,000 by Edwin C. Jameson, of New York, for use against Smith.

It was intimated also that Miss Ada Burroughs, one of the bishop's secretaries, will be recalled. Miss Burroughs refused defiantly to testify at the committee's hearings last May.

Earlier this week, however, the District of Columbia Supreme Court dismissed a plea on behalf of Bishop Cannon for a writ of prohibition to prevent resumpton of the Nye hearings, made on the argument that the committee was usurping the functions of a grand jury. The cleric's lawyers said the committee was trying to obtain evidence which could be sent to the Department of Justice for study in connection with the corrupt practices act, covering expenditures in federal elections.

Senator Nye told the United Press he expected the court decision to have an important bearing on future meetings of his committee and Nyack, N. Y., August 14 (U.P.).—Six persons were killed at a railroad crossing at Montdale, N. J., near here tonight when a crowded roadster was struck by an Erie railroad train.

Victims were: Mr. and Mrs. George Miehl and their 13-months-old daughter, Nancy, of River Edge, N. J.; Mrs. Mary Paulson, River Edge, N. Cordell Hull Disavows Seeking Office in 1932

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 14 (A.P.).—United States Senator Cordell Hull, Tennessee's "favorite son" for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1928, made public a letter today in which he said he is "not in any sense seeking personal political preferment next year."

The letter was addressed to A. A. Mayaillies, chairman of the Coffee County Democratic executive committee, which recently adopted a resolution indorsing Hull for the Democratic presidential nomination next year.

Former Senator Kenney Of Delaware Dies at 75

Dover, Del., Aug. 14 (A.P.).—Former United States Senator Richard Roland Kenney died at his home here today after a long illness. He was 75.

Mr. Kenney, a Democrat, was elected in 1898 by the Delaware Legislature to fill a vacancy in the Senate and served in that body until 1903.

NAVY NOBODY'S TOY, BRITTEN DECLARES

Newport's Hostesses and Its Hot-Dog Men Blamed for Transfer Furore.

"Pink tea hostesses" and hot dog vendors of Newport, R. I., are at least partially responsible for the uproar over the order granting the North Atlantic fleet maneuvers to Montauk, Long Island, instead of Newport, it was charged last night by Fred A. Britten, chairman of the House naval affairs committee.

Mr. Britten, at whose request the order transferring the maneuvers was issued, in a telegram to The Post, said he had "never regarded the Navy as a billion-dollar toy for Newport or Coronado Beach to play with."

He asserted that neither politics nor influence played any part in the assignment of the fleet.

His message follows:

"If Newport interests had not complained over the loss of their Navy for a week, nothing would ever have been said in criticism of the naval operations from Montauk Harbor. Newport society and business are so accustomed to having the fleet all summer, that any change in the Navy schedule immediately upsets plans for pink teas, receptions and social functions, which have been planned a year in advance, to say nothing about the merchant, the hotel keeper and hot dog vendor, who regards the pay roll of the enlisted man as his personal annual prey.

"The determination of the Navy Department to have the fleet operate from Montauk for a few days was based upon the knowledge that here is one of the finest harbors on the Atlantic coast and the further expectation that officers and men would enjoy a change from the usual summer demands of effete Newport. It is quite evident that a large majority of officers and men are favorable to a cruising Navy and that social life at Newport is not to their liking.

"I have never regarded the Navy as a billion dollar toy for Newport or Coronado Beach to play with. It belongs to the Nation and the greater its contact with the people the better.

"Neither politics nor influence has played the slightest part in the assignment of the fleet to Montauk. It is in the best interest of the Navy."

Berlin Visit Postponed By Laval and Briand

Paris, Aug. 14 (A.P.).—Premier Laval and Foreign Minister Aristide Briand will postpone their visit to Berlin until after the League of Nations Council meeting next month, it was announced today.

The postponement was decided upon after M. Briand's doctors had advised him to rest for at least a month before resuming his duties. Should he go to Berlin this month, they told him, his health might not endure the strain of the league conferences.

Car Suspect Says He Killed Lingle

Man Held in Arizona Also Claims He Took Part in Moran Massacre.

Safford, Ariz., Aug. 14 (A.P.).—Sheriff Seth Dodge said tonight that a man giving his name as Joe Marchetti, held here on suspicion of automobile theft, signed a statement today saying he killed Jake Lingle, Chicago newspaperman, shot to death there more than a year ago.

Sheriff Dodge quoted Marchetti, who is about 50 years old, as claiming membership in the "Capone gang" and the party of gangsters who killed seven members of the "Bugs" Moran gang on St. Valentine's Day, 1929, in Chicago.

Department of Justice agents from El Paso were expected here late tomorrow to question the man and a 17-year-old girl traveling with him. Statement signed by Marchetti will be checked by Chicago authorities.

COTTON STATES FIGHT PLAN TO DESTROY CROP

Four Governors Reply to Farm Board Proposal With Refusal.

OTHER SUGGESTIONS VOICED BY LEADERS

Federal Body Is Prepared to Offer No Alternative; Awaits Answers.

(Associated Press.)

Strong opposition to the Farm Board's plan of destroying a third of the standing cotton crop developed yesterday as four governors of Southern States rejected the proposal.

Six replies have been received from the fourteen governors to whom the suggestion was addressed in an effort to increase prices. Only Gov. Sterling of Texas, the largest producing State, was said at the board to have agreed to cooperate in the plan. At Houston, however, he denied he had indorsed the proposal, and said it would be as reasonable to ask the board to destroy part of its holdings.

South Carolina flatly rejected the suggestion to plow under every third row of cotton. Alabama, Georgia and and Florida indorsed the idea of reducing the current prospective harvest of 15,584,000 bales, but found themselves unable to accept the board's specific suggestion. Instead, they submitted counterproposals, which were not made public.

California Situation Differs.

California, in its reply, begged to be excused from the movement on the ground that its cotton production is comparatively small and of a different type, and that its growers' problems are dissimilar.

Eight governors in informal expressions have declared the Farm Board's plan impractical and an "economic waste." Chairman Stone, in outlining it Wednesday, indicated ten out of fourteen States must accept before it would be made operative.

Counterproposals to stave off financial disaster for the Southern cotton farmer received close attention in Washington yesterday.

Senator Caraway (Democrat), Arkansas, telegraphed the board from Jonesboro, Ark., urging adoption of a substitute plan to bring relief to the cotton planter. He proposed that the board purchase 7,000,000 bales at not less than 8 cents a pound from farmers who would contract not to plant next year.

Similar to Smith Plan.

This proposal is similar to one advanced by Senator Smith (Democrat), South Carolina, who suggested purchase of surplus cotton from farmers to be resold to them next year at the purchase price, plus a reasonable interest, storage and insurance charge, provided they sign legally enforceable contracts to grow no cotton next year.

Senator Smith advanced this idea last winter, but it was rejected by the board. In a letter to the senator, Carl Williams, cotton member, pointed out the impossibility of obtaining such contracts under the law.

The board itself has no alternative to offer now in the event Southern governors fail to adopt its drastic emergency suggestion.

Prices sold down in New York and New Orleans today at the opening, but rallied and closed only 8 to 10 points lower in New York and 4 to 6 in New Orleans. Gains up to $1.50 a bale were recorded Thursday after publication of the cotton destruction plan.

Financing Is Considered.

While awaiting the governors' answers, the board considered the financing program of cotton cooperatives for this crop year. Directors of the American Cotton Cooperative

GIRL IS QUIZZED IN FIRE KILLING; MAN ALSO HELD

Judge's Niece Admits She Was With 3 Michigan Slayers Monday.

SAYS SHE QUIT THEM HOURS BEFORE CRIME

Fourth Man to Be Examined on Other Petter Holdups; Killers Talk in Cells.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Aug. 14 (A.P.).—Behind the walls of Michigan State Prison, safe from mob violence which threatened them last night, three slayers who killed and burned two young couples on a lonely road near here, completed the first day of their life sentences today.

Meanwhile officers arrested a fourth man for questioning and continued grilling a young woman, said to be a friend of one of the killers. They said they had evidence tending to show the young woman was with the trio in the early hours of last Tuesday, when the slayings occurred.

Howard Forwalter, 24, Ypsilanti, was arrested today. Authorities said that David T. Blackstone, Negro, one of the slayers, had told them Fred Smith, another of the trio, obtained from Forwalter a pistol used in the slayings. Frank Oliver, 19-year-old Ypsilanti painter, is the third member of the group now in prison at Jackson, 38 miles from here.

May Reveal Other Crimes.

Officials said they would question Forwalter in an attempt to uncover evidence which they believe will show that the three slayers participated in other robberies—possibly killings—in this section. They did not reveal the nature of the questioning.

Catherine Keller, 25-year-old niece of the late Judge Darwin Z. Curtis, of the Ypsilanti municipal court, remained in the county jail here. Prosecutors said she admitted being with Smith, whom they termed as her sweetheart, Oliver and Blackstone on last Monday night, but insisted she left the trio at 9:30 p. m., some three hours before the holdup which ended in the slaying of the four young people, Thomas Wheatley, Harry Lore, Anna May Harrison and Vivian Gold. Officials said Blackstone's confession to the slayings did not agree with her statement.

Prosecutor Albert J. Rapp went to Jackson today to question the slayers further regarding Miss Keller's activities. He said he would not make a report on his findings until next week, when all the evidence is checked.

Run Gantlet of Mob.

State authorities said that the slayers might start tonight or tomorrow for Marquette Prison, in the upper peninsula, where they will serve their life terms. The State commissioner of safety, Oscar Olander, said that the men probably would be taken by train and that State police would guard them en route.

After being rushed through a threatening mob at the Ann Arbor Courthouse last night soon after Judge George W. Sample had sentenced them to life terms on four counts each, the prisoners relaxed and today were reported to have talked freely of the slayings, among the most cold-blooded in Michigan's history. The youth, Oliver, expressed remorse for his part. Blackstone and Smith seemed interested principally in attempting to shift the blame to each other.

Each prisoner was placed in a "solitary" cell at the prison, with a guard posted nearby. Warden Harry Jackson said there had been no attempts on the part of the three prisoners "at violence toward themselves," but added he was taking all precautions.

Old Attack Recalled.

The investigation today centered on an attack by two negroes on a young

Japan to Fine U. S. Fliers $1,025 Each, Report Says

Rengo News Agency States Pangborn-Herndon Plane Will Not Be Seized, However; Future Flights by Pair May Be Barred.

Tokyo (Saturday), Aug. 15 (A.P.).—The Rengo News Agency said today it learned the district court will fine Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon, jr., American fliers, 2,000 yen ($1,000) each for violation of Japan's aviation laws and 50 yen ($25) each for violation of the fortified zone laws.

Authorities claim the Americans flew here from Khabarovsk, Siberia, without first obtaining a landing permit and that they flew over fortified areas and took photographs of the fortifications, each of which is prohibited by Japanese law.

The news agency quoted official sources as saying the plane will not be confiscated in view of Herndon's testimony that his mother and sister had an interest in the machine.

Rengo said officials of the communication, foreign and home offices will confer later to decide whether Panghorn and Herndon will be allowed to make any further flights in Japan.

Vernacular newspapers today, however, quoted aviation bureau officials as asserting that the fliers will be prohibited from flying over Japan again.

The order, if enforced, means the fliers will be prevented from making their proposed non-stop flight from Japan to Seattle, for which they abandoned their around-the-world flight at Khabarovsk, Siberia.

It was while flying here from Khabarovsk that their troubles began. Authorities first complained they had no permit to land in Japan, but intimated they would not press the charge. However, after they landed a camera was discovered in their plane and authorities said they had flown over Japanese fortifications.

They were indicted on charges of illegally taking photographs of fortified areas and will appear later today in court to learn the decision in the case.

The vernaculars agreed the plane will not be confiscated.

Both fliers denied they had purposely flown over fortified areas or

END OF CUBAN REVOLT IS SEEN IN SURRENDER OF MENOCAL AND AIDS

GEN. MARIO MENOCAL.

Insurgent Leaders Taken in Pinar del Rio Are Held on Gunboat.

MENDIETA AND STAFF ARE AMONG CAPTIVES

Insurgent Junta in New York Is Reluctant to Admit Arms Defeat.

Havana, Aug. 14 (A.P.).—Hemmed in between the forces of the Cuban army and navy, Gen. Mario G. Menocal and Col. Carlos Mendieta, leaders of the revolt which started last Sunday, surrendered late this afternoon in the Province of Pinar del Rio.

News of their capitulation was immediately sent to President Gerardo Machado in his home Province of Santa Clara and he ordered that the prisoners be brought to Havana aboard the gunboat Fernandez Quevedo, to whose master they had surrendered.

The president directed that the two insurgent leaders and the eleven members of their general staff captured with them be accorded all courtesies as men holding high positions in Cuban life.

End of Revolt Seen.

The surrender of the revolt leaders, it was expected in Havana, would do much to end the armed movement against the Machado regime, in which, according to official figures, 50 persons have been killed.

Leaders of the so-called intellectual wing of the opposition, however, have declared they will not make peace unless President Machado resigns.

Dispatches from Santa Clara City told of a sharp skirmich today between rebels and government troops in Santa Clara Province in which the insurgents were victorious.

The dispatches, which were sent by telegraph and passed the government censors, said casualties were numerous. This was the first engagement in which the government admitted defeat since the uprising started.

Government Forces Retire.

The government forces retired after the fighting, according to the advices reaching here, and awaited reports of the disposition of the enemy before renewing the attack.

It was believed here the engagement took place after the surrender of the party of rebel leaders by General Menocal.

The party of insurgent leaders was first sighted this afternoon by a member of the crew of the Fernandez Quevedo near the banks of the River Verde, in the extreme western part of Pinar del Rio Province.

Troops ashore were promptly informed and they surrounded the insurgents, forcing them to the river bank. According to information reaching Havana, the surrender was effected without resistance.

Two Representatives Taken.

Among those captured were Representatives Miguel Angel Aguiar and Martinez Fraga, long-standing opponents of the Machado policies, and Menocal's son, Dr. Raul Menocal.

Menocal, who was president of Cuba from 1913 to 1926, himself quelled a revolutionary movement in 1917 about as quickly as the Machado government has moved against the present uprising. Mendieta, his chief aid, is a veteran of Cuba's war of independence against Spain 1898.

Reports reaching the navy here said that the members of the party of insurgents had been without food for many hours and were worn out from the flight that had led them through the hill and lake region of western Cuba.

Courtesies Are Extended.

In accord with President Machado's order that they receive all courtesies, they were guests at luncheon with the officers of the gunboat that captured them as soon as they mentioned their hunger.

According to Col. Fernandez Quevedo, naval chief of staff, for whom the gunboat on which the insurgents are being brought to Havana was named, the other prisoners aboard are:

Col. Alfredo Lima, veteran of the war for independence; Eugenio Sardinas, Jual L. Rodriguez, Rodriguez Pinzado, Alvarez Tavio, Dr. Hurtado, Saldia Pereda and Julio Cadenas, owner of the yacht Coral, aboard which the party set sail a week ago to start the rebellion.

Four Leaders Still Free.

The capture of Menocal and Mendieta left four of the seven men re-

ANGRY MOB BALKED AS MAN CONFESSES

Lynching in Louisiana Fails After Farm Family Is Severely Beaten.

Baton Rouge, La., Aug. 14 (U.P.).—With cries of "Lynch him!" still ringing in his ears, Ellis Smith, 25-year-old Negro, tonight confessed to officers who today twice saved him from angry mobs that he entered the farm home of Mrs. Monroe Hatchell, attacked the woman, her 8-year-old daughter and her aged father with a shotgun and kicked her crawling baby, in a maddened frenzy.

Officers accepted the confession in absolute secrecy and guarded the news from the streets, where straggling survivors of a crowd that surrounded the courthouse earlier in the night, awaiting a chance to avenge the depredation, still milled.

At 9:30 p. m. officers announced they had the situation in hand. It had not been necessary to call for troops to prevent an outbreak.

Mrs. Hatchell, beaten by the Negro who invaded her home in the lowlands, of the Amite River, 30 miles east of here, was in a serious condition in a hospital. Physicians said tonight she would recover, however.

Police said Smith, in his confession, denied he entered the Hatchell home with intentions of assault on the woman, but, pleaded that he wanted something to eat and was maddened when Mrs. Hatchell confronted him with a shotgun.

The Negro was captured after a manhunt that spread over the entire sections during the day, in which every able-bodied man in the community was enlisted. Posses numbering between 700 and 800 men were engaged in the hunt during the afternoon, led by deputies of Sheriff L. F. Harris, of Livingston Parish, brother-in-law of the injured woman. Bloodhounds from a nearby prison farm were used for the hunt, which ended in a wooded thicket, where the Negro was surrounded.

Labor Will Center On Injunction Bar

Legislative Program Will Be Built on Effort to Regulate Use.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 14 (A.P.). The major portion of the legislative program of the American Federation of Labor this year avowedly will be a movement for the enactment of a bill at the next session of Congress to regulate the use of injunctions in labor disputes.

This was announced tonight by William Green, president of the federation, after today's session of the executive council had approved a proposed regulatory bill.

The bill would specifically prohibit the use of injunctions against strikes, boycotts, the payment of strike benefits, sympathetic strikes, giving publicity to labor disputes, meetings, threatening to strike, urging workers to strike or join unions and picketing.

DURESS IS CHARGED IN GANDHI LETTERS

Both Sides of Tax Dispute Aired in His Correspondence With Briton.

Simla, India, Aug. 14 (A.P.).—Lord Willingdon, Viceroy of India, today made public voluminous correspondence between Mahatma Gandhi and the provincial government and himself, respecting the collection of taxes from peasants and other matters which led to the decision of the Mahatma not to attend the impending round table conference in London.

Throughout the correspondence, which runs into several thousand words, the government authorities insisted there had been no violations of the agreement made by Gandhi and Lord Irwin, former viceroy, at Delhi. In Gandhi's side of the correspondence are assertions that the government has violated that agreement.

In one letter to the Governor of Bombay Gandhi complained that needy peasants in Ghujerat had been forced to pay land revenues, both current and in arrears, under duress, and that land had been confiscated. He demanded that the money then collected be refunded.

In reply the private secretary to the governor wrote that the governor was satisfied no breach of the Delhi settlement had been involved in the steps taken to collect land revenues.

The letter pointed out the settlement clearly intended such payments should be collected, and added that in the instance complained of the local collector "did, however, show special forbearance in regard to employment of coercive processes, and it was only after some months' delay, and then only in carefully selected cases, that he resorted to them."

"The prompt response of revenue payers and the negligible extent to which attachment became necessary, showed there were many persons able to pay who had not done so, and established the fact that action had become necessary only in consequence of their failure to observe the settlement," the letter continues.

"Neither the government nor the collector has ever accepted the position that the collection of land revenue should be dependent on the advice of the congress, and his excellency has no doubt that you will yourself realize the decision as to whether a particular person can or

BLONDE BEAUTY HELD AS SENATOR IS SHOT

New Jersey Legislator Lays Attack to Woman; Dual Existence Hinted.

New York, Aug. 14 (U.P.).—Intimations that State Senator Roy T. Yates, of New Jersey, father of three children across the river in Paterson, had lived a separate existence with a stunning blonde in New York were investigated by detectives tonight after the senator had been found critically wounded in the West Eighty-seventh street apartment of Miss Ruth Jayne.

Dressed in flame-colored pajamas, Miss Jayne, who is 25 years old, was pacing the floor nervously when police called to question her. Hoping to convince them that she spoke no English, she shouted French phrases at the detectives, who finally led her away to the district attorney's office.

Says Yates Choked Her.

There, according to authorities, she told an amazing story of her association with Senator Yates, who is the youngest member of the New Jersey Senate, charging that he had paid her apartment rent for four years, but professing ignorance as to how he was shot. She told him, the district attorney said, that she and Yates had quarreled over her proposal that he renew her apartment lease, and had drunk several bottles of gin together during the night.

Miss Jayne was booked on a charge of felonious assault, preferred by Yates, was fingerprinted and sent to a police station. Attempts were made to obtain bail. She gave her occupation as "dress model" and said she had been unemployed for a year.

She insisted Yates had choked her during one of the two arguments they had in the time it took them to consume "four or five bottles of gin." The only explanation she could give was that a pistol dropped from his pocket and exploded, although she previously had said he was not dressed at the time of the struggle. Miss Jayne was fully clothed, she said, but after the pistol went off, she threw it out the window, and for some unexplained reason changed into a pair of red pajamas.

Formerly His Stenographer.

She suggested he renew the lease and quoted him as replying:

"Times are hard; I guess you know about this depression."

"There was an argument," she said, "and he choked me. The next thing I knew the gun was on the floor. And that's all I know."

Miss Jayne said she formerly was Yates' stenographer (he is a well-known broker and banker, and formerly maintained Manhattan offices) and that she consented to occupy the apartment and accept his attentions only because she was under the misapprehension that he was separated from his wife. In addition to paying the rent of $112 a month, Yates gave her $300 a month, she said.

Employes in the apartment building corroborated Miss Jayne's assertion that Yates had lived there. They knew him as "a sports' writer on a New York newspaper," they said, and understood "Miss Jones," as they knew the girl, was a journalism student at Columbia University. There were no records of her at the university.

When Inspector Francis Kear and detectives arrived at the apartment, they found Miss Jayne pacing the floor. Yates was in an adjoining room, bleeding from a wound in the abdomen. Five discharged pistol shells were in the room and there were two bullet marks on the walls.

COAST GUARDS TAKE ARMY BOMBER TASK

every reason to think that the ship would be blown to oblivion.

In 1921 the Army Air Corps had sunk two craft that were much larger and a great deal tougher, the German battleships Frankfurt and Ostfriesland. Later, in 1923, the Army sank two other battleships, the obsolete American men-of-war Virginia and New Jersey. So today everybody was quite sure that they were going to see the Mount Shasta go down in 800 fathoms of water.

The bombers arrived over the Mount Shasta shortly before noon. They had been preceded by a blimp carrying cameramen and by a group of smaller planes that were to lay a smoke screen around the Shasta in a prelude bombing.

The bombers, flying at 5,000 feet or more, moved in for the kill at four minutes past noon. The first bomb, a 100-pounder, landed in the water about 400 feet from the Mount Shasta; the second bomb was wide of the mark, in fact, 20 or more were loosed at the vessel before there was a direct hit.

The hits came after the planes began dropping their bombs in salvos of three. The first bomb to strike the Shasta landed on the quarterdeck and caused a violent upheaval. It was not enough to sink the ship, however, nor was the one that landed on the forecastle.

Several of the bombs that fell in the water were duds. Two exploded in the air. It was 1 o'clock when the bombers exhausted their ammunition and headed back for Langley.

Reviewing the poor showing they made, one wonders how much worse it would be under actual fighting conditions.

Today the Mount Shasta was almost stationary. In real battle she would zigzag. Bombers also had the advantage today of not being molested or hurried. If the Mount Shasta had been a fighting craft engaged in battle she would have sent attack planes aloft to harry the bombers and would also have shot at them with antiaircraft guns.

Call Out the War Dogs! Gandhi Insults Hoboken

By JOHN J. DALY

MAHATMA GANDHI, leader of India's Nationalist millions, whose abbreviated loin cloth proves that he has already destroyed his share of the cotton surplus, refuses to go to London to attend the round table conference. In view of circumstances he prefers to remain at his model colony in Ahmedabad, Guzerat Province. Further, the Mahatma discourages Americans from visiting Ahmedabad.

To a man in Hoboken—one Euthymics Chagaris, a prominent clubman—who had written, seeking to join the model colony, the Mahatma replied:

"You should know the climate of India is not suitable to those brought up in the vigorous clime of the West, and that life here is very hard and perhaps much simpler than you imagine."

It goes to prove that the Mahatma has never been in Hoboken.

The Man from Hoboken was seeking surcease from sorrow. He was tired of it all. So he sought the solace of a model colony in Ahmedabad. After Hoboken, he figured anything would do. The old cobblestone streets, down around the dock, worried Euthymics.

He had heard that at Ahmedabad there is a famous mosque, Jain Temple and well. The Jerseyite, putting two and two together, undoubtedly thought the mosque a breeding place for mosquitoes. Naturally, this would put him right at home in Ahmedabad. A Jerseyite rambling away from home and finding no mosquitoes is like a hot dog stand without mustard.

* * * *

FURTHERMORE, there is a celebrated institution of learning in Ahmedabad—and this, too, would immediately help to acclimate the man from Hoboken, accustomed as he must be to rooting for Princeton. Ahmedabad is the seat of Rat Guza College. Thus inspired, the Man from Hoboken probably imagined himself out on the side-lines giving three rah rahs and a tiger for dear old Rat Guza.

Of course, if the mahatma doesn't want any American visitors, that would seem to be the end of that. Yet, viewed as a strictly diplomatic embroglio, this is a case for the State Department.

Here is a man from Hoboken who wants to go to Ahmedabad and they will not vise his passport. Instead, the Indian statesman pens a note in which he not only discourages American travel—keeping our flag off the high seas—but also slanders one of the greatest seaports in America—Hoboken.

In effect, the Mahatma says that Hoboken and its people are in no way fitted for the rigors of Ahmedabad.

Huh! A man who has lived in Hoboken can live anywhere on earth, or in the waters under the earth, or in the skies above.

THE Chamber of Commerce in Hoboken has been sadly remiss in its duty, so far as this case is concerned. To date, not a single word has come from that quarter. At least the Mahatma should be sent a prospectus of Hoboken, showing the population, the number of men out of employment, the average rainfall, the strength of the police and fire departments, and all those alluring bits of romance and adventure marshaled by statisticians employed by chambers of commerce. It might be that the Mahatma could be inspired to start a model colony in Hoboken.

It remains for the Federal Government—or, at least, the Governor of New Jersey—to take a hand. An attack of this kind calls for retortion—a nonamicable procedure short of war which would have the crushing effect of forever barring the Mahatma from Hoboken.

England may be afraid of the mighty Mahatma. So, too, the good Lord Willingdon, Viceroy of India, who hears every day the shouts of the multitude, "Long live revolution!" (Inquilab zinzabad), and "Long live Mahatma Gandhi!" (Mahatma Gandhi ki jai), and "Long live Gandhi, our King!" (Gandhi, zinzabad maharaj!)—which is giving England the maharajberry, in India; but neither America nor Hoboken has anything to fear!

A stiff note, then, Dr. Stimson, to Mahatma Gandhi.

* * * *

IT might be argued, by those opposed to stern measures, that in theosophy, or esoteric Buddhism, Mahatma means "great-hearted one," and that it was out of the goodness of his heart that Mahatma Gandhi advised the Hoboken man to stay home and sing, with his fellow-townsmen, the idyllic song of the docks,

"How dear to my heart is that Hoboken bucket,
That Hoboken bucket that serves us so well."

The Mahatma probably knows that Hoboken is a wet town—being so near the docks—and that its inhabitants are given to the quaint old American custom of "rushing the bucket," a pastime once known as "rushing the duck." This is what brought about the current slogan in New York, "Seidel over to Hoboken."

It also put up the bars against Euthemics Chagaris entering Ahmedabad; for the Mahatma, knowing that Euthemics is a prominent clubman in Hoboken, feared the worst: that Euthemics might open an Indian Club in the Guazaret Province—in other words, a speakeasy. Hence the rebuff.

Euthemics demands that diplomatic representation be made, and he is right. It is a round table question. Peace must be maintained between the United States and His Majesty's dominions overseas. What is sauce for Euthemics is sauce for Gandhi.

LINDBERGHS HOP OFF FOR SIBERIAN ISLAND

Island was the last American territory over which they will pass until they return home.

Col. Lindbergh told a few friends at Nome last night of his intention to extend the vacation trip to the Orient to a flight around the world. Since the Lindberghs left New York on July 27 the only announced destination had been the Orient.

Details of the flight beyond Tokyo were not revealed. After visiting Japanese and Chinese cities Mr. and Mrs. Lindbergh will fly in easy hops to Europe and across the Atlantic by way of the Azores.

Their destination on today's hop is a small island of volcanic origin, the only residents being a few Russian and Japanese fishermen. After leaving there the Colonel plans stops at Petropaviosk, Nemuro and Tokyo.

Held Up by Weather.

Unfavorable weather held the fliers at Nome since their arrival there Tuesday afternoon. They flew from Shishmaref, about 100 miles north of Nome, on Tuesday, after being forced down by fog Monday night on a flight from Point Barrow, at the northernmost tip of Alaska.

The storm cradle of the Aleutian Islands is far south of the route they are taking. Except when nearing Kamchatka Peninsula, the Lindberghs will be north of the region where gales are most frequent in August.

In case they are forced down on water, the plane is equipped with a bundle, the outer covering of which is a collapsible rubber boat designed to be inflated by means of a bottle of compressed air.

The bundle is automatically released when the plane submerges. The inside of the boat carries a mast and sail, emergency rations and a crash-proof, water-tight radio set, which has a daytime range of 500 miles and 3,000 miles at night.

Moscow, Aug. 14 (U.P.).—Preparations for the expected landing of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh at Petropavlovsk, on Kamchatka Peninsula, in Siberia, have been completed, the Soviet Aviation Society announced today. No date for the landing has been fixed.

New Zealand Aviator Seriously Hurt in Japan

Tokyo (Saturday), Aug. 15 (A.P.).—C. C. Chichester, New Zealand flier, who has been attempting to blaze a new air trail from Australia to England, crashed at Katsuura, Wakayama Prefecture, today when he took off for Kasumigara Airport, 40 miles from here.

Reports received by the Rengo News Agency said he was seriously injured.

taken pictures of them. Newspaper reports on what was found on the developed films varied, some saying the pictures appeared to show a fortified area on Hokkaido Island, while others said the camera had been used at such great altitude as to make the pictures of no value from the military viewpoint.

Herndon frankly admitted some pictures had been taken, but added they had not had "the slightest idea where we were."

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 14 (A.P.).—W. W. Farley, real estate operator and former New York State Democratic chairman, sought the aid of the United States Department of State today in behalf of his son-in-law, Hugh Herndon, jr., and Herndon's companion, Clyde Pangborn, American aviators, under surveillance in Japan charged with having photographed Japanese fortifications.

Mr. Farley telephoned to United States Senator Robert Wagner, of New York City, and obtained Senator Wagner's promise that every effort will be made to induce Acting Secretary of State Castle to act in the fliers' behalf. Mr. Farley also made it known that Herndon's representatives in New York will go to Washington to see what can be done.

Officer Fractures Leg in Army Game

Police Inspector Falls in 15-Foot Machine Gun Hole at Camp.

Police Lieut. Oscar J. Letterman, captain in the Army Officers Reserve Corps, in training at Camp Meade, Md., suffered a fractured leg yesterday when he fell into a 15-foot machine gun hole while engaged in chemical warfare maneuvers. He was wearing a gas mask. With him was Detective Sgt. Henry N. Jett, also a captain in the reserves.

Capt. Letterman was removed to Walter Reed Hospital, after receiving first-aid treatment by Maj. G. A. Holmes, of St. Elizabeths Hospital.

The injured officer is night inspector of the Third Police Inspection District. He formerly was in charge of the liquor squad.

10-Year-Old Boy Slain In Tussle for Revolver

While playing in a rear room at 249 Florida avenue northwest yesterday afternoon, William Hall, 10, colored, of 1318 Wallach place northwest, was fataly shot in the chest by Charles Scott, 13, colored, of 1759 Williard street northwest.

Scott told the police that he was trying to take a revolver away from Hall when it accidentally discharged. Dr. Edward McNamara, of Emergency Hospital, who responded to the call, pronounced the boy dead.

COTTON AREAS FIGHT FARM BOARD'S PLAN

Four Governors of Southern States Reject Proposal to Plow Up Rows.

Association agreed upon a program yesterday morning.

Even though the board's suggestion is rejected, officials here expect the board to announce a formal agreement to hold the 1,300,000 bales of stabilization cotton bought in 1929 from the market for another year. It is likewise held certain the cotton cooperatives will make a similar announcement concerning the 2,100,000 bales they own.

These cotton stores are held jointly under arrangements which save large sums of money over a long period of years. The cost is about $4 a bale a year. The cooperatives have been promised financing by the board which will permit them to hold their stocks for two more years.

It was learned from a reliable source today that stabilization operations will not be undertaken again. Speculation on this possibility was aroused when the Cotton Stabilization Corporation elected Alexander Legge, former Farm Board chairman, to its directorate.

Investment Cut in Half.

The board paid approximately $105,000,000 for the cotton bought from the 1929 crop. At present prices this investment has dwindled in value to about $50,000,000.

New Orleans, Aug. 14 (U.P.).—A suggestion that the Farm Board use its surplus cotton to repay farmers who will destroy one-third of their crop and sign an agreement to reduce acreage 25 per cent next year was telegraphed to President Hoover late today by F. L. Guthrie, a director of the Louisiana Cotton Cooperative Association.

The new proposal, its author believes, would prove a triple benefit—diminish the present carry-over, reduce the present crop almost one-third and effect a huge reduction in acreage next year.

Under Mr. Guthrie's plan, the Government would turn over its supply of stabilization cotton to the farmers. In order to benefit from the gift, farmers would have to destroy one-third of their present crop. Then they would be given credit for one-fourth of the amount of cotton they had lost.

The cotton they would receive from the Government would be already baled and ginned.

Board's Plan "Not Feasible."

Upon signing an agreement to cut their acreage by 25 per cent next year, the farmer might obtain another one-fourth of the amount of cotton he had destroyed, making his total return from the Government 50 per cent of the amount of his cotton destroyed in the field in product ready for the market.

Mr. Guthrie, whose home is in Newellton, La., is a well-known plantation owner of Tensas Parish. In his message to Mr. Hoover, he said: "As a cotton producer, I do not consider the Farm Board's present plan feasible."

Texas Governor Denies Indorsing Board's Plan

Houston, Tex., Aug. 14 (A.P.).—Gov. Ross S. Sterling issued a statement today to correct an erroneous impression that he had indorsed the proposal that Southern farmers plow up and destroy a third of the cotton crop.

"I notice the impression has gotten out," said the governor's statement, "that I favor plowing up one-third of this years' cotton crop. This is not the case. However, I did wire Chairman Stone of the Farm Board that I would gladly cooperate with him in his efforts to aid the cotton farmers.

"Mr. Stone evidently construed my message to mean that I favored his specific plan. I think it would be just as reasonable to ask the Farm Board to burn up a part of the cotton they are holding as it is to ask the farmers to destroy part of their crops."

Newark, N. J., August 16 (A.P.).—Franklin W. Fort, former representative and author of legislation creating the Federal Farm Board, today defended the board's proposal that southern farmers destroy one-third of their growing cotton crops. He averred growers were being asked to do what the laws of economics would force upon them.

can not pay must rest with the collector."

Bombay, Aug. 14 (A.P.).—Strenuous efforts were made today by Sir Tej Bahadar Sapru and other delegates to the round-table conference, who have the ear of both the Viceroy of India and Mahatma Gandhi to open the way for Gandhi to go to London for the meeting. Participation by the Nationalist leader in the conference still remained highly problematical despite these efforts.

While the viceroy, Lord Willingdon, indicated his willingness to investigate specific cases of alleged breaches of the Delhi pact by the government, it was believed the final word rested with Prime Minister MacDonald.

The mahatma today received a telegram from Lord Willingdon saying he had communicated to the home government the decision of the Indian National Congress not to participate in the round-table conference.

Alternate hopes and fears were expressed by members of Gandhi's cabinet on the question of whether the government would yield to his demands.

"The issues at stake are too momentous," said Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya. "The government must act if it wants the world to believe in England's much-vaunted sense of justice and fairness."

Asked whether, in the event he did not go to London, he would withhold renewal of the civil disobedience movement until the round-table conference had finished its deliberations, Gandhi said it was difficult to give a conclusive answer.

"But the congress will make every effort not to revive the movement," he added. "Much will depend upon the attitude of the government."

Big Grape Crop Forecast.

Republic, Mo., (U.P.).—Farmers in this territory predict the largest grape harvest in history. They estimate 200,000 baskets of grapes will be harvested.

Nearly Half of Farms Now Filled by Tenants

(Associated Press.)

Tenant farmers now total nearly half of America's farm population, in contrast with conditions 50 years ago, when three out of every four farmers owned their land.

An increase of 3.8 per cent in tenant farmers since 1925 was reported by the Agriculture Department yesterday in analyzing Census Bureau figures showing 42.4 per cent tenants now, against 38.6 in 1925 and 38.1 in 1920.

Last year tenancy increased in 41 States, decreased in 6 and there was no change in South Carolina.

States reporting a decline were Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware and Arizona.

BILBO ASSAILS PLAN TO PLOW UP COTTON

Mississippi Governor Holds Farm Board's Proposal Is Uneconomical.

Opposing the Farm Board proposal to plow up every third row of standing cotton, in order to increase the price on the remainder of the crop, but advocating leaving every third row unpicked, Gov. Theodore G. Bilbo, of Mississippi, yesterday telegraphed his views to The Post. Gov. Bilbo draws an emphatic distinction between the two proposals, terming one an economic waste and the other a pronounced benefit.

His telegraphic statement follows:

"Unless cotton farmers and those interested agree to leave in cotton field one-third of present crop 5-cent cotton is inevitable, which will mean bankruptcy of all those dependent upon the growing of the fleecy staple.

"It will be an economic waste to plow up every third row instead of leaving every third row unpicked. In the first place it would cost farmers of the South in time and labor a million dollars or more to plow up the third row and, besides, the stalks plowed up and thrown up against the remaining rows with their dead leaves and limbs would seriously injure the grade and handicap the picking of the two rows left.

Would Use as Fertilizer.

"The cotton is practically made and if the third row is left to mature instead of plowing it up this row would furnish a splendid fertilizer crop in the matured seed upon the already impoverished cotton lands of the South.

"It is absurd and impracticable to ask the Farm Board or any other organization to destroy one-third of the cotton already harvested and sold and now in storage. Such a course would bring about financial losses and financial equities that could not be adjusted. The cotton farmers could well afford to leave every third row in the field when, by so doing, they would be assured of a greater return upon two rows picked than they would receive by harvesting the whole crop and besides the saving of one-third of the expense of picking and ginning of the present crop and the benefit of the fertilizer from the third row left.

"The suggestion of leaving every third row, I'll admit, is a rather drastic procedure or solution, but farmers can either organize and do this for their own salvation or they are destined to go through a period of distress, poverty and bankruptcy. If by leaving every third row in fields and thus saving themselves from bankruptcy there will be no trouble to organize and enforce an acreage reduction in next year's crop, but if the full crop is gathered this year an acreage reduction will do very little good because of the large increase carried over for next year. We all know and admit that the proposition to leave every third row in the field can not be carried out through any legal process, but with an organization and pledge of all those interested in the cotton industry public sentiment will force every one to leave the third row in the field.

Situation Is Desperate.

"The situation is so desperate that every citizen could be persuaded to cooperate.

"No doubt some cotton speculators and manufacturers will attempt to defeat the proposition to leave one-third of the cotton unpicked. This they will do for selfish reasons regardless of the inevitable bankruptcy that now faces the cotton farmers of the South if the full crop is harvested."

Former Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, asked by The Post to give his views on the Farm Board proposal that farmers destroy one-third of their cotton crop, yesterday wired the following reply:

"Editor Washington Post:

"I am in receipt of your telegram asking me to give my opinion of the Farm Board as manifested by its recent proposal to plow up the cotton crop. I am not qualified to give an opinion of value. You should apply to a board of alienists. Doubtless you can find the necessary experts at St. Elizabeths.

"(Signed) JAMES A. REED."

British Still Hope For Gandhi Visit

But Demand of National Congress Can Not Be Granted, Is View.

London, Aug. 14 (A.P.).—The British government still hopes Mahatma Gandhi will represent the Indian Nationalists at the round table conference here next month, but whether he comes or not the conference will be held on schedule.

In authoritative government quarters it is said the text of the correspondence between Viceroy Lord Willingdon and the Mahatma reveals demands by the Indian National Congress to which no Indian government could have submitted. Despite this, the government has no wish to assume an attitude which would make compromise more difficult.

Every effort has been made to observe the truce signed by Gandhi and Lord Irwin, the former viceroy, but the government holds its first responsibility is to enforce the ordinary law of the land. There is nothing in the truce, it is contended, which would place the National Congress above the ordinary law.

garded as outstanding in opposition ranks still unaccounted for.

Miguel Mariano Gomez, son of former President Jose Miguel Gomez, and until February Mayor of Havana City, is reported hidden in Havana, together with Juan Gualberto Gomez, the oldest of the seven.

Col. Aurelio Hevia, another veteran of the army of liberation, and Col. Roberto Mendez Penate, president of the Nationalist Union, were reported in dispatches from Santa Clara Province this afternoon to have been seen operating with insurgent troops.

Law Dean Under Arrest.

Under arrest at present for revolutionary activities are Dr. Ricardo Dolz, dean of the School of Law of Havana University; Guatimoc Menocal and former Senator Fausto Menocal, brothers of the former president; Mario G. Menocal, jr., his son; Representatives Santiago Verdeja and Enrique Herryman, and about 275 others of less importance.

New York, Aug. 14 (A.P.).—An atmosphere of grim determination mingled with disbelief pervaded the headquarters of the Cuban revolutionary junta in New York tonight as reports arrived from Havana that Gen. Mario G. Menocal and Col. Carlos Mendieta, rebel leaders, had been captured by government forces in Pinar del Rio Province.

Meanwhile most of the delegation were unanimous in the opinion that even if the news were true, the revolution will go on.

"There are still three leaders of great caliber to be reckoned with," they said. Miguel Mariano Gomez, former Mayor of Havana; Col. Aurelio Hevia, former minister of interior, and Oberto Mendez Penate, former Governor of Santa Clara Province, have eluded the government search, it was said.

(Untied Press.)

Opinion that capture of Gen. Mario Menocal, former Cuban president, by the forces of President Machado, breaks the backbone of the Cuban revolt headed by Menocal, is general in Havana, United States Ambassador Harry Guggenheim reported to the State Department by telephone last night.

With Menocal, Guggenheim reported, were captured all of the major insurgent leaders except one. Guggenheim reported the capture to Acting Secretary W. R. Castle, in Hot Springs, Va., and to the State Department here. He gave no further details.

Tampa Consulate Guarded.

Tallahassee, Fla., Aug. 14 (A.P.).—Gov. Doyle E. Carlton late today announced he has instructed Mayor D. B. McKay, of Tampa, to place an adequate police guard around the Cuban consulate there, to prevent any disorder from Cuban revolutionary sympathizers.

The governor acted on request of the State Department in Washington, which was advised today that Alfonso Gonzalez Suarez, self-styled consul for the Cuban revolutionary faction, planned to ask the surrender of the consulate from the Machado government representative.

on the investigations of other Senate committees. It held that the Senate had almost illimitable power to investigate subjects in its search for information that might lead to remedial legislation.

"The decision should have salutary effect on witnesses who are backward in revealing information that should be brought out," Senator Nye said. "It will go a long way to clear up the question of the Senate's power."

Senator Nye said that he thought but two days would be required to complete the investigation.

Senator Nye announced that Senator Roscoe C. Patterson (Republican), Missouri, the only regular administration man on the committee, has resigned and will be succeeded by another regular Republican, Senator Arthur Robinson, of Indiana.

Mr. Nye expects Senators Robert F. Wagner (Democrat), New York, and Porter H. Dale (Republican), Vermont, to sit with him in the Cannon hearing.

In view of the court decision that the committee was fully empowered to proceed with its hearing, they are expected to insist that all witnesses testify fully.

Bishop Cannon has not abandoned his fight to obtain a declaration that the hearing is illegal. But his proposed appeal to the Court of Appeals, and then, if necessary, to the United States Supreme Court, can not prevent the Senate hearing August 27. The Court of Appeals does not meet until October 1.

He'll Have Funeral Now And Do His Dying Later

Carbondale, Ill., Aug. 14 (U.P.).—S. R. Patton, 86, hopes to enjoy his own funeral, which will be held at Valier, Ill., August 30, unless rain forces its postponement.

Patton has engaged four ministers to give funeral orations. He has hired a choir to sing hymns of praise. And he has bought a casket to be lowered, corpseless, into the grave.

"And then," said Patton, "I shall go home to await my death, which probably won't be long forthcoming. But when I die, there will be no funeral orations, no mourning and no flowers. All of that will be taken care of on August 30, if it doesn't rain."

MRS. HOOVER TO AID AT LAUNCHING TODAY

Two United Fruit Ships Are Ready at Newport News for First Lady's Christening.

Newport News, Va., Aug. 14 (A.P.).—Two white ships were poised on the ways of the Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co. tonight, awaiting their double launching and christening by Mrs. Hoover for the United Fruit Co. tomorrow.

The Talmanca, the first scheduled for completion, is to be ready for service in Southern waters December 15, and the Segovia, the sister ship, will be commissioned shortly after. The ships are the first two of a fleet of six now building for the owners at a cost of approximately $3,525,000 each.

Mrs. Hoover left Washington tonight by boat for the launching ceremony, accompanied by her official party, including high Government officials, representatives of steamship companies and other invited guests. After the ceremony she will motor across Virginia to the presidential lodge in the mountains near Luray.

The party will land at Old Point Comfort, Va., tomorrow morning and be entertained at breakfast at the New Chamberlin Hotel. Following the launching, which is scheduled for the high tide at 10:30 a. m., the party will be guests at a launching reception and luncheon. The trip tomorrow will be the second of Mrs. Hoover to participate in launching exercises during the past year. She sponsored the President Hoover, of the Dollar Line, last December.

Both ships are of passenger-cargo type, with over-all lengths of 444 feet, beams of 60 feet and displacement of 11,000 tons. Their construction was made possible through the Jones-White merchant marine act, and awards of ten-year contracts providing for payments on a mileage basis to American shipping companies who build in American yards and operate under American flags.

Von Gronau Tells Plans For Rest of Sea Flight

Scoresby Sound, Greenland, Aug. 14 (By Radio to Reykjavik) (U.P.).—Capt. Von Gronau will follow one of two routes from Scoresby Sound, flying either direct to Angmagsalik on the southern tip of Greenland, or soaring over the inland ice cap on a general exploration trip.

More Fines Assessed, Report Shows, With Increase in Jail Sentences.

(Associated Press.)

The first month's work by the biggest Federal dry army in history was reported yesterday by the Prohibition Bureau to have produced more, bigger and better cases than did the smaller force in the corresponding month of July, last year.

It was disclosed that Federal agents engineered 6,623 cases in which arrests were made, that 8,008 men were ordered held by commissioners, and that 1,139 jail sentences, totaling 402 years, were imposed, along with 1,471 fines, aggregating $221,155.

Prohibition Director Woodcock, however, was chary of placing too much weight upon the cold figures produced by his statistical division.

"It's true," he said, "that we produced more cases this July than last, but it's a little too early to make definite comment. The most significant thing is that a greater number of jail sentences were imposed.

Total Fines Decrease.

"We like to assume that the cases were more important and better made, but we can't tell definitely yet."

The Federal dry chief pointed out that although a greater number of fines were imposed this July than last, that the total of all fines was not as great. In contrast, however, he indicated the 1,139 jail sentences as against the 857 for July, 1930.

Still another favorable factor, he said, was the fact that only 19,654 cases remained on the docket at the end of the month as compared with 23,302 at the same time last year.

The figures showed the seizure of stills during the month totaled 1,723 as against 1,922; the seizure of beer fermenters 1,639 as against 2,599; the seizure of 395,619 gallons of beer and 99,414 gallons of liquor against 695,351 gallons of beer and 123,524 gallons of liquor.

More Permanent Injunctions.

However, a larger number of permanent injunctions was shown. The figures being 422 against 396, while a similar increase was indicated in the seizure of 898 automobiles and boats against 727 during July 1930.

Smiling slightly, the prohibition director indicated the seizure of 111 stills during the month in Maryland, where he formerly was United States attorney.

"It appears," he said, "that my home State is way ahead of any other in the number of stills it offered for seizure."

Greenleaf School Transfer Fought

Reinstatement in White Division Recommended by Haycock.

A recent transfer of the Greenleaf school from a white division to a colored division is expected to be reversed by the Board of Education. The members of the board have been asked to approve the reinstatement of the Greenleaf school in a white division and to transfer the Smallwood school to a colored unit. The recommendations were made by Acting Superintendent Robert L. Haycock.

Mr. Haycock explained the census of school statistician showed a greater decrease in white children in the Smallwood school district than in the Greenleaf district.

OIL REFINERS FIGHT RAIL RATE INCREASE

Granite, Sand, Gravel, Paper and Phosphate Leaders Also Against Plea.

(Associated Press.)

Eastern oil refiners yesterday added their voice to those of agriculture and other industries protesting the proposal of the railroads to increase freight rates throughout the country 15 per cent.

Appearing before Commissioners Meyer and Eastman, of the Interstate Commerce Commission, representatives of the refiners asserted railroads had lost oil traffic in the past by failure to reduce rates. They predicted any further increase would push more traffic off the rails.

E. A. Barror, traffic manager for the Valvoline Oil Co., with refineries at Warren and Butler, Pa., said rates would be increased when the Eastern class rates and Hoch-Smith act revisions become effective late this year. He said the industry could not stand increases above these and asserted that "unless rates for short hauls are reduced diversion of traffic from the rails will continue."

See Losses for Roads.

Witnesses for tht granite, sand and gravel, phosphate and paper and pulp industries contended rate increases would lead to losses instead of gains for the railroads.

V. P. Ahearn, appearing for the National Sand & Gravel Association, and three producers, Alexander W. Dann, of Pittsburgh; G. W. Renwick, of Chicago, and Rollin G. Windrow, of the Texas Crushed Stone and Gravel Producers Association, supported this view.

Dann said his company was willing "if it can be shown that an increase in freight rates is necessary for and will be beneficial" to the railroads to continue business temporarily on increased rates. He presented a statement, however, showing railroads had lost much of this type of business to trucks and water lines and stood to lose more if rates were permanently increased.

Against Any Increase.

S. L. Willson, of Holyoke, Mass., president of the American Paper & Pulp Association, told the commissioners paper-product shippers were almost unanimously against an increase. The proposed 15 per cent, he said, was estimated to project increased costs to the industry of $20,000,000 a year. He contended it would localize industry, create inequalities in short haul rates and divert traffic to trucks.

C. A. Fulton, of Baltimore, representing fertilizer companies, mining phosphate rock in Florida and Tennessee, predicted heavy losses of tonnage to water lines. He said about half the traffic being hauled by railroads could be diverted to water lines.

World Nitrate Fight Looms in Price War

Santiago, Chile, Aug. 14 (A.P.).—An open fight for the world's nitrate market appeared imminent tonight as Cosach, the government producing syndicate, announced a price cut on natural nitrate in the European market.

Alfred Houston, general manager for the Guggenheim Bros. office here, said the move was a protective measure designed to meet the competition of synthetic nitrate products.

The development follows the failure of international conferences held recently in Europe to reach an agreement stabilizing the nitrate market.

When Washington Was Younger—No. 14

THIS picture is not so very old, as measured in years, but the rapidly changing styles in men's and women's clothing and millinery are clearly discernible.

These are suffragettes climbing the steps of the United States Capitol, ready to present their pleas for the privilege of voting. How successful they were every one knows, and the younger generation hardly remembers when women did not have a vote.

Leading the delegation up the steps is a man once a very familiar figure in Capital history, now dead. He is Maj. Richard Sylvester, former chief of police of the District. Maj. Sylvester was among the best beloved of men in public office and old-timers are fond of relating police history under his regime.

DOYLE STAYS IN JAIL AFTER BRIBE DENIAL

Habeas Corpus Proceeding Blocked by Seabury and $20,000 Bail Is Set.

New York, Aug. 14 (A.P.).—Dr. William F. Doyle, under a contempt sentence arising from his appearance before the legislative committee investigating the city government, obtained a writ of habeas corpus tonight but his immediate release from custody was blocked by a subsequent stay of execution granted to Samuel Seabury, the committee's counsel. Release on bail of $20,000 for Dr. Doyle, however, is possible pending an appeal of the habeas corpus action.

Dr. Doyle was ordered to jail sixteen days ago for refusing to tell the committee whether he had split with any officials the $2,000,000 he assertedly received in fees for practicing before the Board of Standards and Appeals.

"Did you bribe any public officials in connection with your appearances before the board?" he was asked. It was this precise question which last month led him to jail and which an appeal court later ruled he must answer or remain in jail. Dr. Doyle himself asked to be allowed to answer it after he learned of the ruling.

"No, I never bribed a public official," he answered, quietly.

Tonight, after the committee at the conclusion of the hearing had voted that Dr. Doyle was still in contempt, he obtained a writ of habeas corpus before Supreme Court Justice Edward S Dore.

A moment later, however, Mr. Seabury announced he would appeal Justice Dore's decision and asked for a stay of execution of the writ in the meantime. It was granted. Then Doyle's counsel asked that Doyle be admitted to bail and the request was granted, but when bail was set at $20,000 and his lawyer was unable to secure a bond it was agreed Doyle should remain in jail overnight.

A messenger was started to Albany today with a petition to Gov. Roosevelt asking a special session of the Legislature to enact legislation giving the committee power to grant general immunity. Last week an appeal court ruled the committee could not grant such general immunity under present legislation.

John F. Curry, chieftain of Tammany Hall, today told the Hofstadter legislative committee he had aided Doyle in challenging the committee's power because he regarded its inquiry into the city government a "persecution" and "crucifixion" of the Democratic party.

Curry said he was interested to the extent of telephoning a judge to ask if he would hear a petition for a stay of a contempt sentence imposed upon Dr Doyle at the committee's request.

The GIRL About Town

I SAW an exquisitely perfect rose in a Georgetown garden yesterday. Beauty, like music, fades all too soon. When I gazed into the heart of that glowing rose I was plunged into thoughts too deep for tears. My youth is flying and if I have any points of beauty I shall lose them.

"Ah, yet doth beauty, like a dial hand, Steal from his figure, and no pace perceived!"

This town is filling up with senators again. As I crossed Dupont Circle, there was Senator Nye, motoring along with a friend. He gave me a handsome bow. There is always something exciting when he is in town. I wonder if the senators get mileage every time they return? The congressional set certainly are fond of mileage. You could take almost everything else away from them, but if left their mileage they could be happy. It's like the franking privilege, an inalienable right of a member of Congress!

GIRL IS QUESTIONED ON TORCH SLAYINGS

woman near Ypsilanti several months ago as she sat in an automobile with an escort. Two negroes are being held for the offense.

Officers also sought to learn if there was any connection between the slayers and the recent burning of an automobile near the scene of the quadruple slaying.

The fact that the confessions of the trio spoke glibly of their plan to "stick up somebody" as they started out the night of the killing also caused officers to believe they might have been involved in other "petting party bandit" robberies.

The speedy administration of justice which followed the confession of the three slayers late yesterday followed three days of intense excitement in this university community. Sentence was passed shortly before 9 p. m., while a crowd intent upon inflicting its own vengeance surged about the courthouse.

Tear Bombs Save Them.

After the arrest of the trio at Ypsilanti, 8 miles from here, where confessions were made at 5:30 o'clock, county officers, State police, National Guardsmen and volunteer aids saved them from angry crowds four times, twice using tear gas bombs.

The last attack came as heavily guarded automobiles carried the prisoners off toward Jackson. The penalties were the severest possible under Michigan law, and Judge Sample's direction that the four life sentences not run concurrently virtually shut off all hope of the slayers for release on parole.

Funeral services were held today for the two boys at Ypsilanti and the bodies of the girls were sent to their parents at Cleveland. The girls had been visiting in the Lore home at Ypsilanti.

CATALONIAN RIDDLE CARRIED TO MADRID

Self-Rule Leader's Visit to Zamora Overshadows Assembly's Work.

Madrid, Aug. 14 (U.P.).—The Catalonian campaign for self-rule within the Spanish republic was carried to Madrid today with arrival of Col. Francisco Macia, head of the provincial government.

Col. Macia brought Catalonia's "draft statute" for autonomous government to President Niceto Alcala Zamora. He was greeted by members of the cabinet, Catalonian delegates to the constitutional assembly and a large crowd which shouted "Long live Catalonia! Long live the Spanish republic!"

Col. Macia and the government officials exchanged greetings in a spirit of utmost cordiality, although the Catalonian leader came here determined to carry out a program which the Madrid government has opposed. The slender, white-haired separatist leader said he came to fight for his people's right to self-government.

Visit Overshadows Draft.

"I come with a great desire for liberty, justice and cordiality," he said.

Col. Macia's visit to President Alcala Zamora overshadowed the work of the constitutional assembly in view of the belief that the Catalonian question will be one of the most difficult to be solved in framing the new republican constitution.

There was a great interest, however, in last night's announcement of the draft of chepter 2 of the proposed constitution, providing for divorce by mutual consent of husband or wife and for equal rights for children born out of wedlock. The proposals were a sharp contrast to laws under the monarchy, when the influence of the Catholic Church made divorce virtually impossible in Spain.

The draft placed women on complete equality with men in social legislation, provided for dissolution of marriage by mutual consent as well as "at the free will of the woman, or upon request of the husband, if they can prove the cause just."

All Over 21 to Vote.

Civil laws will regulate the rights of illegitimate children and provide for investigation of paternity. The laws also would provide for various types of social insurance.

Chapters 4 and 5 of the draft deal with the governmental offices, providing a single-chamber congress elected for a five-year term by universal suffrage. All persons over 21 will be enfranchised. The cabinet, which would have legislative powers in an emergency, would hold office as long as it had confidence of a majority. A vote of censure would be tabled for five days before being discussed.

The president would be elected by direct vote for a six-year term. The vice president would assume office and call new elections within fifteen days of the death of the president.

Closing of Bridge At Laredo Fought

Texans and Mexicans Want Night-Shutting Order Withdrawn.

Laredo, Tex., Aug. 14 (A.P.).—Business men in towns on both sides of the Texas-Mexico border today protested action of the U. S. Treasury Department in ordering the closing of international bridges over the Rio Grande at 9 p. m., nightly.

They declared the action which becomes effective tomorrow night would delay traffic between the two countries, hurt the tourist business and strain business and social relations between neighboring cities on the border.

Seymour Lowman, acting Secretary of the Treasury, in issuing the order said he acted as the result of many protests from clergymen, officials and prominent citizens that Americans, including young girls, were flocking across the border at night to gambling and liquor resorts in Mexico. Merchants in Laredo circulated petitions asking that the bridges be kept open 24 hours a day as at present. It will be sent to Secretary Lowman.

INDUSTRIES DEVISING JOB GUARANTEE IDEA

Assurance of Employment Over Long Periods to Be Plan Basis.

(Associated Press.)

Some key industries are cooperating toward a boost-business plan under which workers would be guaranteed long-time employment.

How soon announcement can be expected is indefinite, but it might come within a short time. The movement for such employment assurance has been encouraged by the United States Chamber of Commerce, which has experts intent on devising an unemployment relief program for submission to President Hoover before September 1

The President meanwhile continues his conferences on the business and employment situation. The topic was up at yesterday's cabinet meeting.

Also, Senator Dickinson, of Iowa, emerged from a discussion of the problem with Mr. Hoover with the statement that "an administration plan" is in the offing. He did not go into details.

Five-Day Week is Studied.

Neither was there any word whether the efforts of the key industries representatives are being dovetailed with the President's announced activities.

One factor getting administration attention involves the five-day week, which some major industries are understood here to be coming to favor. But promise of difficulty has been seen because these industries are reported to be counting on five days' pay for the work, while organized labor wants six days' pay.

The plan for employment guarantees, insofar as details have filtered out, at present calls for industries to assure a stated number of their workers that they need not fear for their jobs with profitable pay for a specified length of time. The President has left no doubt among his associates that he considers steps toward guaranteed employment of dominant importance, both to combat existent depression and as a buffer against future slumps.

Savings Increase Weighed.

Many business and labor leaders believe that if workers in a number of leading industries were told their jobs are safe it would be a major step toward restoring confidence.

In this connection it was said yesterday in informed business circles a sense of insecurity has caused millions of regularly employed to cut their normal expenditures although the fall in commodity values has put them in a better financial position than when the depression began.

The steady increase in savings, despite the business slump, has been cited by business men as proof that people are afraid to spend.

Among those urging assurances of continued employment is Julius H. Barnes, chairman of the board of the Chamber of Commerce. He said not long ago that employment guarantees would set up a formidable barrier against depressions, present and future.

Utilities Preparing Study.

He has followed closely the work of the chamber's committee on the continuity of business and employment, which has been in touch with every major industry on employment stabilization. It is expected to report its findings to the chamber within the next few weeks.

Some industries, notably the public utilities, are making an independent study of guaranteed employment. The National Electric Light Association recently named a committee to study the subject. The reports to the chairman, Paul Clapp, have been described as optimistic.

The results of that survey will be given to the chamber committee.

Right Given to Abandon Railroad in Kentucky

(Associated Press.)

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday authorized the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Co. to abandon its 19½-mile branch line from Mount Sterling to Rothwell, Ky.

The railroad applied for permission to abandon the line because timber for which it originally was built has been largely exhausted. The commission found that a State highway roughly parallels the road over which necessary traffic can be moved.

PINCHOT BOND PLAN IS HIT BY DICKINSON

Federal Fund for Idle Won't Be Needed, Dickinson View After Talk With Hoover.

(Associated Press).

The proposal of Gov. Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, for a Federal bond issue to be used in unemployment relief drew immediate attention here yesterday and a response from Senator Dickinson, (Republican), of Iowa.

Senator Dickinson remarked that it was his opinion that "such doles are prohibited by the constitution of the State of Pennsylvania." The Senator made this observation as he left a conference with President Hoover on the unemployment situation and he added that he did not think a direct Federal appropriation for unemployment relief would be necessary.

Gov. Pinchot, in his speech Thursday night, insisted that his words not be construed as a bid for the Republican Presidential nomination for which he has been mentioned.

Pinchot Candidacy Seen.

However, there is every indication that the Hoover Republican organization is aware, at least, of the possibilities of a Pinchot candidacy.

Senator Dickinson, upon leaving the White House, himself brought up the subject of Gov. Pinchot's proposal. Previously he said that President Hoover was giving every attention to the unemployment problem and was gaining a "thorough understanding of it."

"The thing uppermost just now," said the Iowan, "is a survey to determine the exact preparations being made by the various localities for taking care of their needs. The President wants to know the demands that will be made upon the communities and their ability to meet them.

"An administration plan is in the offing. I expect the plan to be one encouraging the communities to expand their relief budgets to take care of local emergencies. These budgets must be increased above previous years.

Constructive Program Seen.

"Mr. Hoover is going to be prepared so as to have a constructive program ready by fall. I don't think direct Federal appropriations will be necessary. Gov. Pinchot and Senator La-Follette, of Wisconsin, advocate such appropriations. I am not certain, but it is my belief that such doles are prohibited by the constitutions of both Pennsylvania and Wisconsin.

"We must find a solution and still not put the Government in a more embarrassing financial position than it now is."

Trio Slain in Speakeasy In New York Beer War

New York, Aug. 14 (U.P.).—War for control of the New York beer and narcotic racket, which has already resulted in the killing of at least a dozen gangsters and the shooting of five children in Harlem, shifted to the notorious Gowanus section of Brooklyn today, where the bodies of three men were found sprawled amid the wreckage of a cheap speakeasy.

The triple slaying brought an immediate order from Police Commissioner Mulrooney to "close up" every speakeasy and vice resort in Brooklyn.

Woman in Wine Pool Electrocuted

Touching Wire Is Fatal to Victim in Rum Emptied by Dry Agents.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 14 (A.P.).—Mrs. Helen Vasilzevic, 39, stood in a pool of wine which formed in the basement of her home last night when it was dumped there by Federal prohibition agents. Then she reached up, touched a defective electric cord, and was electrocuted.

(Associated Press.)

The Prohibition Bureau said yesterday it would investigate the death at Milwaukee of Mrs. Helen Vasilzevic, who was reported electrocuted when, standing in a pool of wine after a prohibition raid, she touched a defective electric wire.

Officials at the bureau said no report on the case had been received. It was explained, an investigation certainly would be made, since one of the bureau's rules provides for inquiry into every case in which a person has been killed through the legal or illegal activities of prohibition agents.

200 Face Lay-Off At 2 Navy Yards

New York and Philadelphia Plants to Reduce; No Cut Planned Here.

(Associated Press.)

Estimates that between 200 and 300 men will be discharged at the Philadelphia and New York Navy Yards within the next three months were made yesterday at the Navy Department.

Prospective lay-offs at Philadelphia were placed at 150 to 200. For New York the discharge of 67 men by October was forecast.

The estimates were made public upon receipt of protests from New York and Philadelphia against lay-offs.

Replying to this criticism, Capt. Edwin G. Kintner said ships are not available at all times to "permit making the work load exactly even."

Capt. Kintner said last night that he had "not heard" of any prospective lay-offs at the Washington Navy Yard. Officials of the Navy Yard said that so far as they knew there would be no further lay-offs.

Publisher Is Charged With Getting Loan on Issue Not Fully Secured.

Asheville, N. C., Aug. 14 (A.P.).—The jury trying the case of four men alleged to have defrauded the Central Bank and Trust Co., Asheville, of $1,300,000 was told today that some of the bonds held by the bank as collateral for loans to Col. Luke Lea, Tennessee publisher, were part of a $250,000 issue by one of his companies, secured by real estate worth only $112,288.50.

This evidence was presented by the State through E. C. Pryor, described as an expert real estate appraiser from Nashville, Tenn., where the properties involved are located.

Luke Lea, Luke Lea, jr., E. P. Charlet, of Nashville, and Wallace B. Davis, president of the bank, are on trial for conspiring to defraud the bank of approximately $1,300,000 through irregular issuance of certificates of deposit and cashier's checks, disposal of bonds of the bank and improper loans.

Martial Law Is Refused In East Texas Oil Field

Tyler, Tex., Aug. 14 (A.P.).—The prolific new east Texas oil field, termed the principal demoralizing factor in the midcontinent petroleum area, tonight gushed unbridled, while elsewhere in the area efforts to cut production and bolster ruinous prices continued.

Gov. Ross Sterling of Texas today denied a request of east Texas operators who sought martial law to enforce a complete production shutdown until a new conservation law becomes effective. Gov. Sterling, in a statement, said entire relief should not be expected immediately.

The Flour That Never Fails

There are certain qualities essential in flour that is to be used in connection with kitchen facilities and family recipes, otherwise you will experience those uncertain results which are so annoying and disappointing. That's why the flour should be chosen with discrimination—and has earned the reputation for being the SUPERIOR of all flours for family use.

WASHINGTON FLOUR is made of a particular growth of sunripened June wheat which lends itself readily to kitchen use.

SELF-RISING WASHINGTON FLOUR has mixed with it the exactly correct proportions of the purest leavening phosphates and with which no baking powder is necessary—making wonderful biscuits, waffles, shortcakes, muffins, doughnuts, pastries, &c.

PLAIN WASHINGTON FLOUR is designed for all purposes and makes GOOD in EVERY baking.

"The Pantry Pals," SELF-RISING WASHINGTON FLOUR and PLAIN WASHINGTON FLOUR are for sale by grocers and delicatessens in all sizes from 2-lb. sacks up. You'll find it economical to buy the 12 or 24-lb. sacks, because ALL WASHINGTON FLOUR IS GOOD UNTIL USED.

CAREFREE AFTERNOONS ARE YOURS

NOW you can have the afternoons for bridge games, movies, shopping tours, romps with the children, or any of those things you've never been able to do . . . with never a worry about rushing home to start dinner. When you have an Electric Range, that worry won't spoil any more afternoons.

It seems almost too good to be true. A little timer on the range and the heat control dial do all your worrying for you. Just slip the meal in the oven and adjust the dial any time during the day. A perfectly cooked meal will be ready when you return.

For at the right time the heat turns on. It stays on at uniform, sustained temperature until the meal is cooked. And when it turns off, the meal stays deliciously warm in the flavor-sealed insulated oven.

You owe it to yourself to investigate this modern method of cooking. Truly, its economies will prove a delightful surprise.

BISHOP OF ARKANSAS RESIGNS EPISCOPATE

Dr. Winchester, Renowned for His Work, Retires Because of Advanced Years.

There are few things in life nobler or sadder than the retirement from active service of a minister of the gospel, it matters not what denomination he belongs to. Some of these old soldiers of the cross can surrender the banner with dignity; most of them do it grudgingly, for they wish to carry on to the end of their days.

If we could read the hearts of these godly men we would find in them a wish to die in the harness; but that is not given all of them to do. A very few of them, like John Wesley, or Pope Leo XIII, or Dwight L. Moody, are permitted to round out a long life in the front ranks of the army; and this has probably been due to the fact that they varied their interests or the scenes of their labors and constantly renewed their strength and their spirits by this shifting of scenes.

It has seemed to me that the Jesuits have worked out an admirable system in caring for their old men. I have known some of them quite well, notably the late Rev. E. C. de la Moriniere, of Louisiana, who died the other day, full of years and ripe labors. He was one of the tutors of Chief Justice Edward D. White, of the Supreme Court of the United States, and must have been well past 90 when he passed away. I think he celebrated his diamond jubilee as a priest.

Heard by Great Crowds.

In his young manhood he was the most eloquent orator in Louisiana, and when he spoke, whether in his church or before the people in popular assembly, great crowds hung on his words. His strength beginning to fail, he was taken from arduous labors of the parish and sent to famous old Spring Hill College in the hills near Mobile, and there he taught for many years and regained his vigor, for there is a wonderful climate the year round.

As he approached eighty years, the Provincial of the Jesuits, without anybody telling him—what a canny way they have of finding out things—took the good old man out of his lecture hall and returned him to New Orleans, the scene of his greatest glory, and there in the cloister of Loyola University, in the community house of his order, the famous orator spent his declining years, lecturing once or twice a week, visited in his hermit cell by old students, some of them old men, and tenderly cared for by the younger men of his community.

Every afternoon the old priest would take the street car in front of the university and ride down town and around the loop back home. This ride usually synchronized with the time of my ceasing my labors and going to my humble cabin in the suburbs, and the old man and I met many, many times and chatted away the long ride.

Mind Always Fresh.

His mind was as fresh and youthful as that of a college boy, and his range of knowledge so wide that scholars sought him out. One of my friends, who teaches romance languages at the University of Indiana, when he met Father de la Moriniere and talked with him in French, was so astounded that he said: "This is the first man who speaks pure French I have ever met, in France, in Europe or in this country."

This little homily was suggested by the receipt of a letter which has just reached me from Bishop James R. Winchester, of Arkansas, who has resigned his episcopate and on September 1 will retire from the active work of the ministry. Bishop Winchester is one of those very rare characters whose religion is so pure and undefiled that he fits in in any Christian church. I have known him since I was a boy, and in all that time he has seemed to me to be like a Bible character, a person handed down from the hand of God, to lead miserable sinners back to Christ.

A native of Maryland, of an old aristocratic family, he was educated at Washington and Lee University—it was then Washington College—while Gen. Lee was president. I have often heard him speak of literally sitting at the feet of that great man and drinking in inspiration by just looking up into his grand and noble countenance. Gen. Lee's influence lived on through the teaching and lives of his old students, and, like a wave in the ocean, it still moves on and on and will never cease to wash the shores of Southern thought or to build Southern character.

Beloved by Negroes.

Like the simple-hearted man that he is, Bishop Winchester writes: "I have had many words of commendation from my people, both white and colored, which are grateful to me." I rather like that phrase, "both white and colored," for it reminds me that the old-time Southern minister never lost his contact with the colored people, and one of the glories of Bishop Winchester's long ministry of 54 years is that he always kept up his interest in these people and was always promoting churches for them and building up their spiritual natures by his preaching and conversation.

There is no playmate of this octogenarian now living in Annapolis, where he was born in 1852; there is no classmate of his living who was with him at Washington and Lee; and probably none who was at the seminary at Alexandria while he was a student there. But should he by chance find a home at the cathedral here and the congenial atmosphere of his brethren here and elsewhere who visit that shrine, it would make his last days pleasant and his presence a benediction. The good bishop is not feeble; he is just old.—D. R. B.

CAMPAIGN PLANNED BY PRESBYTERIANS

Progressive Evangelism Will Be Conducted 12 Months in Country.

The Presbyterian Church of the United States has taken a great forward step in the development of the devotional life of its constituency by the action of its last General Assembly, which met in May, in assigning to the entire twelve months of the year for emphasis, department I of the Presbyterian progressive program on spiritual life and evangelism, since this theme is understood to pervade and undergird all the work of all the departments of that Church's work, namely: Foreign missions, home missions, Christian education and ministerial relief, religious education, stewardship and Christian social service. This action of the assembly in regard to spiritual life and evangelism challenges the membership to new efforts in the matter of prayer, Bible study, personal evangelism and enlistment in the activities of the church and Sunday school.

At the same assembly plans for an evangelistic campaign were approved and adopted, providing for a visitation evangelistic campaign to be held in the seventeen synods of the assembly. These will be divided into twelve groups, with one month of the year for concentrated effort in each group in sequence.

The time for this campaign has not been definitely decided upon, and further plans are being set up and completed by the executive committee on home missions with a group of advisers. W. M. Everett is chairman of this committee, with headquarters in Atlanta, Ga., and the Rev. Homer McMillan is secretary.

Two or three years are to be spent in preparation through surveys, conferences, prayer and instruction, all agencies and departments of the church cooperating for the furtherance of the plans.

Touching Common Things With Beauty

IT may be that you are unpleasantly environed; you are held back from doing what you feel that you could do and would be happy in doing, that your usefulness has been interfered with and your life is a failure. Others have outstripped you in the race and the rewards that should have come to you have been withheld. Do not reach such conclusions too hastily. Probably the place where you are offers the finest possible field for the fullest development of your noblest powers.

I had thought I knew and loved the charm of orchards, farm houses and country roadsides, but after spending several hours in the Boston library among the pictures of "real life" by J. F. Millet, I discovered a new beauty that I had never dreamed of before—beauty in gardens, fences, hay stacks, chicken coops; beauty in barns, harrows, wagons and old tumble-down gates—he had touched all those common things with a glory that amazed me and held me entranced.

Strange to say, these wonderful pictures were painted in a cold, damp room, without a fireplace and lighted by one little window, all his accessories and instruments being of the humblest. In this depressing environment, with the chill of poverty in his bones, with rarely a gleam of success to encourage him, he created those masterpieces. Other artists would demand comfortable quarters, proper lights, delicate equipment and purest colors; and even then fail of fame.

Why did Millet with all these disadvantages achieve such distinction? The only answer is that it was in him to succeed. He possessed that divine faculty which enabled him to reach perfection without requiring the aids of circumstance. The piercing perception, the high imagination, the grasp of truth, the delicate touch, rendered him independent of the accidents of place, material and instrument.

SERVING THE REDS.

Senator Borah has made a notable contribution to that great heap of wisdom which the Progressives are piling up to be used against the depression. Unfortunately, he had to compete for public attention with Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania, who had nothing more to suggest than a Federal dole for the unemployed. It appears that the Progressives have so many ideas for curing the depression that they just have to encroach upon each other to get them before the public.

Speaking before the service clubs of Boise, Senator Borah visualized the unlimited possibilities of trade with Soviet Russia, providing, of course, the necessary credit could be arranged. A few months ago, he lamented, Russia was third among America's customers, but in recent months Soviet purchases have fallen off 50 per cent. "We are throwing aside," he shouted, "the greatest potential market for our goods in the entire world." Why does the United States languish in depression when such golden opportunities knock upon its door?

The Soviet is not responsible for the depression, in Senator Borah's opinion. He lays the whole blame for existing conditions at the door of capitalism. Nevertheless, he seems to think that the Soviet must be appeased before hard times can be overcome. The United States must do its share, he says, toward bringing Russia back into the family of nations. Europe is spending too much money on armaments. Heavy drains upon taxpayers add to the woes of every nation. It is the duty of Uncle Sam to make Europe believe that Russia is harmless so that the nations will consent to reduce armaments and thus restore prosperity. In other words, this new cure for the depression would consist of recognition of the red dictatorship and the extension of credit to the dictators.

The idea that Uncle Sam should reassure Europe by sending an ambassador to Moscow is too naive for consideration. Even Senator Borah indulges in such flights of the imagination only on rare occasions. The senator himself can sometimes melt the hearts of the Soviet leaders in trivial matters, but the thought of the Government waving a wand and causing the red menace in Europe to disappear is a fairy story that should have been reserved for his grandchildren.

As for the extension of trade with the Soviet, has Senator Borah forgotten how the bottom dropped out of British-Russian trade as soon as diplomatic relations were reestablished? Soviet trade is a national monopoly that is used to further the political intrigue of dictatorship. It is absurd to suppose that the Moscovites will continue purchasing large quantities of American goods when this country refuses to buy the products of Soviet slave labor. Free exchange of goods between the two countries is impossible because it would bring forced labor into sharp competition with free American labor. The American people are not interested in "opportunities" for trade which would sacrifice their standard of living.

When Senator Borah stretches his gaze across the sea to the "greatest potential market in the entire world" he sees nothing of the unmatched American market that would, under his scheme, be opened to the slave-made products of Soviet Russia. It is strange that a man who has been elected to serve the American people should be so utterly unmindful of their welfare.

A PRIZE NOVEL.

A young man 29 years old has been awarded $10,000 for the best novel in Harper & Brothers' contest this year. The story of his struggle for literary success sounds more like fiction than his very readable book, which carries the conviction of truth. One of the frequent charges against American literature in general is that this country demands happy endings, while the great mass of Old World fiction has terminated on a tragic note. It is often contended that the unhappy ending gives the illusion of reality to a novel which is lacking when the characters "live happily ever after."

The differences in life and opportunity in America give new meaning to human affairs here, and "reality" is not to be found in the application of Old World ideas. The masterpieces of Europe deal with Europeans, while American fiction should picture the individuals and ideas of a new world. Russian sordidness, French introspection and German bathos constitute a world apart from American optimism, and criticism of American art by these standards is unjust. In the case of the author of "Brothers in the West" is to be seen a true life of the type that appears so frequently in popular fiction of the United States.

Less than a year ago Robert Raynolds gave up a well-paying job and went to work on the risky proposition of writing a novel. With a wife and two children to support, he gambled on the chance of selling his book, as so many young characters in fiction have done. For fourteen years he wrote stories, poetry and even two novels, with little success. Inspired by his wife's faith and enthusiasm in his ability, he took a small house in the country and went to work. He entered the Harper contest and was notified last week of his award.

The judges, Ellen Glasgow, Carl Van Doren and Bliss Perry, cast their votes without knowing the identity of the authors, and reached the decision without consulting among themselves. The Harper prize was instituted in 1922. The winning novel, "Brothers in the West," deals with the pioneer days of New Mexico, beginning about 1850. What adventure there is in the novel is rather inward, of the soul, which gives it a timeless, or ageless application.

THE VISIT TO BERLIN.

The delivery of a formal invitation from the German government to Premier Laval and Foreign Minister Briand to make a return visit to Berlin forces the necessity of a decision on the part of the French ministers within the next few days. Of all the various week-end international conferences this one is the most delicate. The German invitation did not fix a date, but expressed the hope that the meeting might take place toward the end of this month.

For various reasons the French prefer delaying the visit. The French cabinet is decidedly opposed to the conference being held so soon. The result of the Prussian elections undoubtedly impressed the French, as it did the rest of the world, with the fact that a combination even of radical and reactionary forces was not strong enough to defeat the parties supporting the government. Still, it is felt in France that further evidence of the ability of the Reich to maintain order and to get under way the reorganization of interior finances might be awaited.

Another particular reason why the French would prefer to have the Berlin meeting later is that at the session of the League Council next month a decision from the World Court on the proposed Austro-German customs pact will be heard. The result of that judgment will have important bearing on the questions to be discussed with Germany. The poor health of M. Briand, also, has been suggested as a further reason for delay, but a few weeks' rest has about restored him to his usual vigor.

Various French officials and newspapers oppose the meeting because they consider that, unless Germany has changed her attitude since her ministers were in Paris, further sessions would be futile. As the French see it, Germany wants only a big loan from France. In exchange France seeks evidence of a new spirit in Germany, avowed acceptance of the peace treaties and an evident desire for constructive cooperation in European affairs. While political and official opposition to the Berlin visit is freely expressed, it will have the support of the most important financial and business groups in France.

If the sessions are held this month, before the several pending questions that somewhat befog relations are clarified, it is evident that the Berlin conversations will be more in the nature of a preliminary conference. Chancellor Bruening has been in London and Rome since the Paris meetings and is believed to have broadened his plans materially. The scope of his proposals may go beyond the question of credit for Germany and include a scheme of international importance.

BRITISH BUDGET PROBLEMS.

The prospective loss of income by the British government next year is so heavy that the Labor party is not disposed to assume responsibility for the drastic cuts in expenditures that will be required to balance the budget. Prime Minister MacDonald's hurried return from Scotland to London was avowedly for the purpose of considering this problem, which has come suddenly to the fore again, following the recent flurry over French and American credits to the Bank of England.

The report of a committee of experts made public shortly before the adjournment of Parliament recommends an immediate cut in public expenditures amounting to $482,000,000. Of this amount no less than $332,500,000 would be economies to be effected in payments of unemployment insurance. That spells trouble. The woes in connection with the payment of doles in England have been many, but they bid fair to be eclipsed by the disturbances, political and otherwise, that will eventuate as a result of trying to abolish or greatly reduce government largess.

When Mr. MacDonald cut short his vacation to take up the tax question he did the unusual thing of speaking his thoughts somewhat testily to a London newspaper. It is not the custom in England for prime ministers to make statements direct to the press, but Parliament was not in session, and Mr. MacDonald wanted the Liberals and Conservatives to know without delay that the Laborites were not inclined to shoulder all the blame for heavy budget cutting along lines that are bound to provoke an uproar.

The Daily News says that no single party is responsible for the condition that "has reduced Britain to a position where its budget is faked, its exchange is shaky, its taxes are the highest in the world and its economic prospects are deplorable." The fact remains, the News adds, that Mr. MacDonald is still prime minister, and his government must shoulder the responsibility for dealing with national economy. The extent of Mr. MacDonald's perturbation over these matters may be exaggerated by other writers, who say that as an alternative to insurance reductions the government is considering the possibility of scaling down or even cancelling war debts. Aside from rumors, promptly denied, that Mr. MacDonald and Secretary Stimson discussed such contingencies in Scotland, there has been no recent mention of even the possibility of such action, though many British and continental writers have suggested that serious consideration will be given to the debts before the moratorium period is over. A government committee appointed to consider the report on budget paring will be in session before the end of the month, and developments are then expected which will indicate the probable action of the MacDonald government.

Estimates made since the compilation of the experts' report indicate that the budget deficit next year may reach at least $600,000,000 and, therefore, require even greater reductions in expenditures. The hurried return of Stanley Baldwin for a conference preliminary to next week's cabinet meeting and the outlining of a definite program by the government indicate that the opposition is being called into consultation and that all parties recognize the seriousness of the situation to be faced. A report that the price of Tory support would be a revenue tariff was given no direct sanction. The proposals to be placed before a special session of Parliament, which may be called for next month, probably will be backed by the sole responsibility of the Labor party.

TREES FOR WASHINGTON

By JOHN L. SOUTHWICK,
In the Burlington Free Press and Times.

President Herbert Hoover joined the American Tree Association by planting his tree on the White House lawn to mark the bicentennial of the birth of George Washington, which is to be observed in 1932. It is planned to provide 10,000,000 living monuments to the "Father of His Country."

If we want to learn the real possibilities of forestry as a crop and as a profitable investment for the future and to get the benefit of an object lesson on a large scale now we must look to Germany or Austria or Switzerland.

In the Old World forestry is valued for various reasons, some of which we do not fully appreciate. In a host of cases Switzerland is using forestry to provide a substitute for costly fences. What is more, hedges along the railroad property as a substitute for fences serve a twofold purpose. In addition to guarding the property, they also serve as snow fences, helping to prevent drifts from forming on the railway tracks.

In Germany in particular municipal forests help many a community to secure revenue from the sale of lumber, timber and wood to a degree that makes taxes unnecessary for local purposes. Since the World War, of course, general taxes have multiplied to an extent that imposes a burden on all German citizens, but the fact remains that the science and art of forestry have combined to provide that country with an enormous revenue.

It thus happens that the typical forest in those European countries which practice forestry on a broad scale does not look like the average American forest. Instead of resembling a bramble bush at bottom and a rambling rose at top, the trees as a rule are straight and tall, as though trained from their youth up. The ground at the feet of the trees is kept clean, with all brush cut away.

People of the Old World would be scandalized if they could see the way in which we waste fuel, whenever we trim trees or clear land by burning brush heaps, with many large limbs included in the pile. When a tree is trimmed, especially in cities like Brussels or Berlin or Vienna, the limbs are cut into short lengths and bound in bundles for purposes of fuel, and what is left is "nothing but leaves."

The American Tree Association calls upon every citizen to plant one or more trees as a living memorial to the Father of Our Country. Its appeal includes the following statements:

"Ten million tributes, enduring and straight-growing, which will be as evergreen as is the memory of George Washington in the hearts of 130,000,000 people, recording the fact that he is ever the 'first in the hearts of his countrymen.' These are not to be monoliths of marble, not statues of static stone, or dun-colored copper and bronze, nor a eulogium written upon perishable parchment, but growing things alive with a life emblematic of that living Nation which the first President guided into being.

"As the early pioneers who worked their lonely way across the far-flung plains to the West marked their homestead cabins with a grove of trees, so now the whole Nation, in the years of its prosperity, gathers to plant its trees—a memorial stretching across the face of the continent."

For the purpose of this remarkable celebration, Calvin Coolidge, when President, created the Bicentennial Commission. The American Tree Association of Washington, D. C., cooperating with this commission, is directing this gigantic task of planting 10,000,000 trees, each one indicative of a Nation's honor to the national hero—a particularly fitting way of remembering the life and services of the master of Mount Vernon.

Such tokens as these have been further enhanced from the Atlantic to the Pacific by the beautiful trees growing in the soil which Washington consecrated by his deeds. The home of the Federal Government owes its main charm to the row of tulip trees, maples, elms and chestnuts which form leafy bowers for its streets, and through which the Southern sun filters upon the whiteness of its graceful buildings. The Potomac along the Mall, in the early spring, reflects the soft pink of hundreds of Japanese cherry trees in full bloom.

Washington himself must have loved trees, for his diary contains repeated references to their value and care and he chose a spot for his home where beauty is unexcelled. Along the shaded path that leads to his final resting place two columns of trim, straight larches stand like sentinels, his constant companions, along with those thousands of Americans who come to pay him reverence during the daylight hours. He must have loved the regal beauty of a tree.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THE TRAMP DISCOVERS GOLF.

The poor man looked across the fence which shut the golfers in;
His shirt was frayed about his neck,
the coat he wore was thin,
A hopeless look was on his face, his brow was lined with care,
As silently he watched the men who played for pleasure there.

And one there was who missed a shot and flung his club away,
As if to lose a golfing stroke had spoiled the summer day.
Came others passing, four by four,
and worried men they looked,
Perturbed and plainly sick at heart because they sliced or hooked.

One cursed his luck so loudly that the poor man plainly heard.
He looked to see what tragedy distressing had occurred,
But all he could discover was a little shining ball
The man had swung a club at and had failed to hit at all.

He thought about his burdens and he thought about his plight,
He remembered that he didn't know where he would sleep at night,
And as he shuffled on his way, "Well, anyhow," said he,
"I should be glad the woes of golf have all been spared to me."

Must Honest Men Use a Horse and Buggy Because Bandits Have Cars?

By ROBERT QUILLEN

NEWSPAPERS in various cities are printing a series of full-page advertisements in which readers are urged to pay their doctor bills.

The advertisements are prepared by an agency and paid for by local physicians.

Failure to pay the family physician is a custom as old as the practice of medicine.

The grocer, the ice man and the dry goods merchants must be paid promptly, for the need of their good will is constant; but money spent to keep the doctor in good humor may be wasted, for it is possible that he never will be needed again.

Moreover, his right to pay is open to question. In the hour of need he was an instrument of providence, deserving of undying gratitude; but when the patient is well again there is the possibility that he might have recovered without a doctor, and, in any case, it shouldn't take a day's wages to pay for one short call.

Many and varied are the reasons why the doctor is last of all servants to be paid, but chief of them and merged with all others is the fact that nobody can pay fare cheerfully if he has already had the ride.

The doctor loses much because he can't adopt the tactics of a collection agency without loss of dignity, and the use of anonymous advertising to plead his case is justified and commendable.

Yet it is advertising, and advertising in any form has always been looked upon as an unethical practice followed only by charlatans and quacks.

It isn't a matter of ethics, however, so much as a matter of good taste.

A practicing physician who advertised his skill would seem as vulgar and as absurd as a writing man who said: "I am wise and witty and you should read my stuff to improve your mind."

Yet a publisher can praise a writer's work without offending good taste, and physicians could accomplish much by means of unsigned advertisements without in any way endangering the dignity of their profession.

The need of intelligent advertising by physicians should be obvious to everybody.

The character of our civilization is determined by advertising.

Styles, customs, standards, faiths and follies are created and nurtured by newspaper and magazine advertisements.

Trace the origin of the average man's opinion of a motor oil, a radio, a mouth wash or a light ray and you will discover that he absorbed it from an ad.

And since the devil is fought best with fire, and the public is constantly tricked and trimmed by means of the charlatan's pseudo-scientific advertising, honest physicians could render no higher service than to harness this modern method of instruction in the interest of truth.

Shall honest men surrender all right to the air because fakers broadcast bosh?

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Open Books Demanded.

Chicago Tribune.

Bishop James Cannon, Jr., seeks to represent in politics a transcendental virtue and uncompromising moral force. He is not supposed, as are lesser men with fleshly ambitions and desires, to need a refuge from incriminations and from implications. The clerical skirts, if they are what their wearer says they are, can come through even the appearance of evil and they need only the full light to be seen immaculate. Such are the bishop's pretensions and upon them he seeks his place and influence in politics. He is, therefore, probably the last man in politics morally entitled to the safeguards of legalism when he is questioned regarding his use of funds contributed to him for political use. His role is necessarily one of welcome to any inquiry from any source when it relates to his actions as a politician. His influence is one of clerical virtue and his pretensions in the public field require open books.

Greater Diversity Needed.

Sioux Falls (S. D.) Argus-Leader.

Viewing the farm problem in its broader aspect one is forced to the conclusion that its future is dependent upon greater diversity and greater utilization of the commodities already produced. We are only kidding ourselves in assuming that grain prices can be maintained in the face of a production considerably beyond the normal needs of the people. Hopes for the future lie in the creation of new farm endeavors and it is well to do some work along this line in order to maintain the agricultural industry on a profitable basis.

The President's Gumdrops.

Topeka Capital.

"President Hoover," the Chanute Tribune observes, "is revealed as having a passion for gumdrops." It came out through the questioning of an Ohio congressman the other day entering the White House with a box under his arm. A reporter wanted to know what it was and the reply was that the President's caller was bringing him a box of a special brand of gumdrops made in Cleveland, to which he was particularly partial.

The personal idiosyncrasies of great men are always an interesting subject. Probably neither Mr. Coolidge nor Mr. Mellon cares for gumdrops. Mr. Hoover is fond of them and not only that but has a taste for the little candies that come wrapped up in tissue paper, or now perhaps in the new cellophane. Like President Wilson, the late Senator Hoar and many other public men, for some reason, Hoover is also addicted to detective tales and mystery yarns. Mr. Wilson used to have them sent to him in bundles.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Lighthorse Harry Lee Is Quoted to Show That Washington Was Present at Yorktown Surrender and Cornwallis Was Not.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In you issue of August 5 F. X. H. brings forward the question: "Was Washington present at the time of surrender in Yorktown?" F. X. H. seems to think he was not, but that he was in attendance upon his stepson, then suffering from camp fever which proved fatal.

The most authoritative light thrown upon this matter is from the hand of Lieut. Col. Henry "Lighthorse Harry" Lee.

In his "Memoirs of the War in the Southern Department," Col. Lee gives a full description of the steps taken to compass the defeat of Cornwallis, and in all the proceedings Washington is present in person, giving advice and absolutely controlling the disposition of the American and French forces, both on land and water.

Here is Col. Lee's account of the surrender so far as it relates to Washington's presence, and Lee, be it noted, was a very interested spectator and participant in that historic occurrence. Lee says:

"At 2 o'clock in the evening the British army, led by Gen. O'Hara, marched out of its lines with colors cased and drums beating a British march. The author was present at this ceremony, and certainly no spectacle could be more impressive than the one now exhibited. The road through which they marched was lined with spectators, French and American. On one side the commander in chief (Washington), surrounded by his suite and the American staff, took his station; on the other side opposite to him was the Count de Rochambeau in like manner attended. The captive army approached, moving slowly in column with grace and precision. Universal silence was observed amidst the vast concourse and the utmost decency prevailed, exhibiting in demeanor an awful sense of the vicissitudes of human fortune, mingled with commiseration for the unhappy. The head of the column approached the commander in chief; O'Hara, mistaking the circle, turned to that on his left for the purpose of paying his respects to the commander in chief and requesting further orders; when quickly discovering his error, with much embarrassment in his countenance, he flew across the road and, advancing up to Washington, asked pardon for his mistake, apologized for the absence of Cornwallis and begged his further pleasure. The general, feeling his embarrassment, relieved it by referring him with much politeness to Gen. Lincoln for his government. Returning to the head of the column, it moved under the guidance of Lincoln to the field selected for the conclusion of the ceremony. Every eye was turned searchingly for the British commander in chief, anxious to look at that man heretofore so much the object of their dread. All were disappointed. Cornwallis held himself back from the humiliating scene, obeying emotions which his great character ought to have stifled."

JOHN A. PHILLIPS.

Mr. Ayers Finds Bushes and Trees Obstructing the Best Views in Washington.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The other day I had the good fortune to take a stroll down the "wide open spaces" of Pennsylvania avenue. It made me feel as if I should throw out my chest, stretch out my arms, and take a deep breath. There at the corner of Fifteenth, opposite the Treasury I saw a wide-open space—and no trees. Wonderful! I strolled a block farther east—another wide-open space, and for the first time in my life I saw the beautiful District Building at a distance. Isn't it beautiful!

A few blocks farther along I got a glimpse of the new National History Building. There were some trees in the way, but the wide open space itself was a treat.

Then I wound up down by the Botanic Garden, at Third street and the Avenue. Bushes, bushes, bushes, small trees, and no wide open spaces. Horrible!

I've never been able to get a bird's-eye view of Grant's monument. Evidently it has been thought best to hide it from those fellows who object to depicting the Cornwallis surrender. Although I have lived in this city off and on since 1892, I have never seen the west front of the Capitol. At the dead center lines looking toward the John Marshall statue is a high row of dirty bushes on the edge of the sidewalk, and everywhere else trees, trees, to obstruct what should be the most magnificent view in the City of Washington. God may be the only one who can make a tree, but man knows how to use them for obstructions.

GROVER W. AYERS.

Americans Love to Tear Down—Why Remodel the State, War and Navy Building?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: With a deficit of $800,000,000, how senseless and absurd to pull down or remodel a handsome and imposing building of good French design!

The State, War and Navy Building is built of Virginia granite, the hardest and most expensive of stones. It is the most symmetrical building in Washington and very much resembles the Hotel de Ville in Paris. All it needs is to have some of the fancy ironwork on the roof removed and to be given a thorough cleaning. Why try to make it look like the mongrel Greek Treasury? The architectural mind at the present time seems to be obsessed with the idea of making all buildings resemble huge boxes.

REV. M. F. YINGLING DEAD AT AGE OF 62

Pastor of Our Lady of Victory for Quarter of Century Heart-Attack Victim.

The Rev. Malachi Francis Yingling, for more than a quarter of a century pastor of Our Lady of Victory Church, 4827 Conduit road northwest, died of a heart attack yesterday morning at his home, 4911 V street northwest. He was 62 years old.

Ordained by the late Cardinal Gibbons at the Baltimore Cathedral in 1900, Father Yingling founded Our Lady of Victory parish about five years later, and built part of the present structure with his own hands. In 1922 a fire swept the edifice, destroying virtually everything but the stone walls. He had dedicated the last years of his life to rebuilding it.

Born in Westminster, Md., Father Yingling was educated at St. Charles, in Ellicott City, at St. Mary's Seminary, in Baltimore, and at Catholic University here.

Surviving him are two brothers, Charles B. Yingling, of Westminster, and Matthew Yingling, of Washington, and two sisters, Mrs. Annie C. Obolt, of Tuxedo, Md., and Mrs. Joseph A. Walsh, of Baltimore. He was the son of William H. T. Yingling, Westminster farmer, and Clotilda Orndorff Yingling.

In recent years Father Yingling had been subject to frequent heart attacks. Following one of these he was found dead in bed at his home yesterday morning.

Hoover to Be Invited To Alexandria Parade

A special committee from the George Washington Birthday Association, headed by Representative Howard W. Smith, of Alexandria, and William Albert Smoot, president of the association, will wait on President Hoover next Wednesday at 11:45 a. m. and invite him to attend the parade to be held in Alexandria on February 22, next.

The extending of the invitation to the President may be taken as an indication that the national celebration for Washington's Birthday might possibly be arranged to suit the convenience of the Chief Executive. He attended the celebration of the association in 1930 and reviewed the parade from a stand at Washington and Queen streets. In 1928 President Coolidge reviewed the parade from a stand on Washington street, coming from Washington for the purpose on the presidential yacht Mayflower.

FIREMEN'S MEETING IS ENDED BY PARADE

Volunteers of Four States in Long Line of March at Winchester.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Aug. 14.—Volunteer firemen of four States paraded the streets of Winchester today, bringing to a close annual conventions of the Virginia State Firemen's and the Cumberland Valley Volunteer Firemen's Associations, which have been in session here since Wednesday.

Sergt. A. J. Bargagni, major-domo of Washington's annual firemen's parade, attended the three-day convention of the association as a delegate, at the same time lining up the various companies for their appearance in his parade in this city.

Sergt. Bargagni has attended all of the conventions held in this section so far this year and reports progress in his work of interesting out-of-town volunteer companies. Yesterday he took his place with other officials in the reviewing stand at the fair grounds.

Approximately 5,000 uniformed men and women of auxiliary organizations were in the line, which was 3 miles long and required an hour to pass. In the procession were numerous bands and drum corps and pieces of fire apparatus. Every item of equipment in line was motorized, many companies bringing latest types of pumpers and hook and ladder equipment.

Ten thousand visitors joined local residents in jamming sidewalks and overflowing into streets along which the firemen marched. Streets and buildings were decorated with flags. Many of the firemen wore special uniforms for the occasion, while several of the ladies' auxiliary societies appeared in sports costumes in striking contrast to the men's uniforms. Marchers concluded their long parade by circling the race track at the Winchester Fair Grounds, where they passed in review before officials of the two associations and city authorities.

Escort Numbers 2,000.

Official escort was formed by 2,000 members of the four Winchester volunteer fire companies, followed by organizations of the Cumberland Valley Association. Companies of that association in line were Washington Fire Company and Band, Mechanicsburg, Pa.; Water Witch Hook and Ladder and Independent Fire Company and trucks, Annapolis, Md.

Independent and citizens fire companies, and three trucks, Charles Town, W. Va.; Cumberland Valley Hose Company and drum corps, Friendship Fire Company and Junior Hose Company, Chambersburg, Pa.; Hose Companies Numbers 3 and 4 and truck, Martinsburg, W. Va.; Junior Fire Company and drum corps and Western Enterprise Fire Company, Hagerstown, Md., and Always There Hook and Ladder Company, Waynesboro, Pa.

Representatives of the Virginia Association included Charlottesville Fire Company, band and drum corps; Orange Fire Company and truck, South Norfolk Fire Company, Gordonsville Fire Company, Newport News Fire Company and ladies' auxiliary, Strasburg Fire Company and drum corps, Wythe District Fire Company, Luray Fire Company, ladies' auxiliary and truck, Suffolk Fire Company, Lexington Fire Company and band, Culpeper Fire Company and truck, Hampton Fire Company.

CLEAN-UP PROVISION URGED IN ARLINGTON

Law to Force Lot Owners to Cut Weeds Will Be Called Up Before Board.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

At today's meeting of the County Board of Supervisors, B. M. Hedrick, supervisor from Arlington District, announced that he will call up for action the request of the Arlington County Bicentennial Council, submitted about two months ago, for the enactment of an ordinance to compel owners of vacant lots to keep the weeds thereon cut.

Mr. Hedrick yesterday requested Arthur Orr, president of the Bicentennial Council, to draft an ordinance similar to those now in force in a number of Virginia cities, which provide that whenever there exist upon any land or premises in the city any weeds, bushes, grass, or rubbish which is, in the opinion of the health officer, detrimental to the health, comfort, or general welfare of any of the inhabitants thereof, he shall serve notice upon the occupant or owner of such property to cut or remove the same within a stated time, under penalty of having the work done by the city at the owner's expense.

Mr. Orr stated that correspondence by the council with the authorities of 25 Virginia cities and towns indicates that most of them have enacted such ordinances. These authorities report that they have not had to resort to court action in the enforcement of the ordinances, their experience being that property owners have as a general rule been willing to comply with the notices served upon them by the health office.

The request for the passage of the ordinance is in line with the general program of the council to clean up and beautify the county for the Bicentennial celebration next year.

Davis Still Trying For Bank Wind-Up

Slow Realty Market Bars Del Ray Settlement at Present, He Says.

Courtland H. Davis, receiver for the Bank of Del Ray, which closed its doors about eighteen months ago, is continuing his efforts to close up the affairs of the bank and declare a final dividend of the assets, but states he is unable to say when this will be accomplished. The present condition of the real estate market, he said, has made it practically impossible for him to dispose of the bank's holdings, but as soon as these can be turned into cash a dividend will be declared.

At the time of the closing of the bank there were approximately 900 depositors who have so far been paid two dividends amounting in the aggregate to 43 per cent of their claims.

Clay T. Brittle, defaulting cashier of the bank, is serving a sentence of six years in the Richmond Penitentiary, he having pleaded guilty to the charge of diverting the bank's funds to his personal use.

BUILDING CODE BODY MEETS IN ARLINGTON

Plans Laid for Complete Rules on Construction in County.

Meeting yesterday in the offices of County Engineer C. L. Kinnier, the Arlington County Building Code Commission, recently appointed by the board of supervisors, laid plans for the preparation of a comprehensive building code for the county.

Recognizing the fact that there is much to be considered in preparation of a building code which will meet all requirements of the county, the commission divided itself into special groups, each taking up one special phase of the work.

As now planned, Arthur J. Porter will make a study of building construction in general; A. F. Thelander will study the subject of plans and specifications required; George D. Ricker takes up the question of the underwriters' regulations as applied to a building code; Robert H. Forman, the subject of zoning as applied to the work; Norbert Melinick, sanitation, and H. Bruce Green will study all phases of the work from a legal angle.

Robert H. Forman, who has been elected temporary chairman, stated that the commission in its final preparation of the code will be guided by the Washington Code as far as its applies to Virginia laws, and where found conflicting, that of the City of Richmond will be used.

The commission voted to meet every other Friday morning at the county courthouse at 10 o'clock.

Peace Justice's Knot Reinforced by Pastor

Frank H. Rafter, 25 years old, 936 I street northwest, and the former Miss Emma F. Chisholm, 22, 2514 Fourteenth street northwest, were married for the second time last night by the Rev. Bertram N. Osgood, pastor of the Rockville Baptist Church.

The Rafters had been married previously by a justice of the peace, they informed Clayton K. Watkins, clerk of the Circuit Court, but felt that a minister could tie a better matrimonial knot. P. Calvert Cissel and Mrs. Cissell, of Gaithersburg, Md., attended the bride and bridegroom.

VISIT TO WOODLAND TOMORROW IS URGED

Picnic Parties Are Invited to Spend Pleasant Day on South River.

What are you going to do tomorrow? No definite plans? Then let The Post make this suggestion. Visit Woodland Beach, just 32 miles away.

You may reach it by way of Defense highway as far as Camp Parole, turning right there on Maryland State highway No. 2 across South River and then left on Mayo road which leads directly to the Beach Clubhouse.

Arriving at the beach you and your party will find guides ready to show you all of its advantages. You may tour the streets and avenues of the development; drive through its wooded areas; park along the shores of the coves of the South River; picnic in the grass along the river banks; stroll around and examine the many summer cottages which have already gone up at the resort and in every respect make yourself at home for an enjoyable day.

If, after you have looked the place over, you are interested in becoming a property owner there it is easy. A payment of $9 plus the cost of a subscription to The Washington Post will permit selection of a lot. You may pay the balance of the $93, the price of all lots, at the rate of $3.50 a month.

FROG HOLLOW RAIDS NET QUARRY AT LAST

Dry Agents Finally Manage to Catch Someone There; 25 Taken to Jail.

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 14.—Notorious Frog Hollow was mopped up today by a small army of prohibition agents, who descended upon it early today and for the first time in many years were successful in arresting 25 persons.

A clever system of signaling heretofore had succeeded in warning the operators of stills and when agents arrived in the camps they found them deserted. At least 500 stills have been confiscated in the hollow in the past few years, but arrests have been few.

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 14.—A group of Federal prohibition agents, under the leadership of Deputy Administrator H. D. Reynolds and Deputy U. S. Marshal Welsh, of Wheeling, assisted by a small group of out-of-town special officers, swooped down on alleged bootleggers and home brew vendors in this section shortly after midnight Thufsday and within six hours had under arrest ten men and women, charged with sale of intoxicating liquors.

NOW YOU CAN HAVE A

TAILOR MADE HOT WATER HEATER

One family uses hot water by the tubfull all day long; another family uses less and only at certain periods of the day. If both have the same type of water heater, one of them is not getting the ideal hot water service they need and expect.

Having the right kind of water heater, fitted to your special needs, is just as important as having the right kind of furnace or clothes or house. And now it is easy.

Just call your Gas Company or any plumber who is a member of the Certified Hot Water Association. A competent operator will survey your house free of charge and tell you what heater will give your family the hot water you need, when you need it, with lowest possible use of gas.

If your present heater is an old one, you'll be delighted at the convenience of truly automatic water heating—and you'll be surprised at its low cost. Investigate today. Remember, you have 18 months to pay, and you can be enjoying this modern comfort all that time and for years to come.

U. S. Minister Entertains at Dublin Show

Sterlings Lavish Hosts to Large Parties as Horse Reigns.

Entertaining in their usual grand manner the United States Minister to Ireland and Mrs. Frederick A. Sterling have been hosts to a house party of guests the last week or two during the Royal Dublin Society's horse show at Ballsbridge, Dublin. The society celebrated the bicentenary of its foundation and the Sterlings contributed their share of the brilliant festivities with a ball and several large dinners at the American Legation.

Like every assemblage of guests frequently visiting the Sterlings the group last week presented an impressive list of social lights and included the Governor General and Mrs. McNeill, President and Mrs. Cosgrave and members of the cabinet and their wives, Sir John and Lady Leslie, the Earl and Countess of Granard, the latter the sister of the undersecretary of the Treasury, Mr. Ogden L. Mills, and several Americans visiting Dublin.

Among the visitors to the horse show was the former King of Spain, who was the guest of Lord and Lady Londonderry at Mount Stewart.

In Dublin, where the activities of the official set revolve about the race track instead of the tea table, the Sterlings seem to have found a peculiarly happy setting, for their penchant for horses and dirt farming completes the bond with the Irish people whose lives are contentedly bound to the soil.

Mrs. Sterling, who is the daughter of Mrs. John R. Williams, of Washington, proudly boasts that her children, Frederick, jr., John and the baby, have never been out of Phoenix Park, the lovely area where is located the American Legation and the seat of the governor general. Entertainment, Mrs. Sterling says, of a sort suitable for youngsters may be found within the confines of the 2-mile park, where the race track, the polo fields, the tennis courts and the playing fields, as well as the zoo, all are established.

For a long time the American Legation was the only diplomatic establishment in Dublin, although within the last year or two France, Germany and Italy have taken over fine old houses for legations there. But at the American Legation the adage, "When in Rome, do as the Romans do," finds real expression in the adaptability of the Sterlings to simple Irish life.

Farmers all, the entire family derives pleasure in the pedigreed horses and cattle that are Mrs. Sterling's hobby. The whole family rides, and the boys canter about the park either on ponies or astride a diminutive donkey.

And hospitality reigns the year round at the legation, where Mr. and Mrs. Sterling entertain from 75 to 100 "house guests" each year. One of their regular visitors is Lady Curzon, of Kedleston; Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Kellogg have been guests there, as have Mr. and Mrs. Junius Morgan and numerous widely known Americans and members of the English set.

The legation is quartered in what was once the home of the lord lieutenant of Ireland and it was here that Lord Balfour once reigned, his desk now one of Mrs. Sterling's prized possessions. As she was the first mistress of the charming old mansion after the United State took it over, it was decorated according to her taste and furnished with the rare things selected during residence in London, when Mr. Sterling was attached to the embassy there.

Adjacent to the vice regal lodge, home of the governor general, the mansion is surrounded by park, meadows, gardens and a picturesque moat. When the motor races are held each year the track incloses the two mansions and neither the minister's family nor that of the governor general can make progress in or out. A tunnel connects the two mansions, however, so, happily, they have contact with each other.

Mrs. Sterling visited Washington last year and was the guest of her mother, Mrs. Williams. She is a sister of Mrs. Joseph Leiter and Mrs. Huston Rawls.

Lieut. and Mrs. Alexander Perwein, of 3929 Jenifer street, have as their guests the former's sisters, Misses Marie and Helen Perwein, of Peekskill, N. Y. Miss Helen Perwein will leave Washington in time to resume her studies as a member of the senior class at the University of Syracuse. Lieut. Perwein is on duty at the War Department for the summer, and will leave for Columbus, Ohio, with his family the latter part of September.

Arts of China Feature Yacht of Fahnestock

Oriental Splendor Seen on Shenandoah, Even Crew Chinese.

Mr. and Mrs. Gibson Fahnestock, son and daughter-in-law of Mrs. Gibson Fahnestock, of Washington and Newport, have gone "Oriental," according to dispatches from Paris, where they spend a part of their time from their home in the south of France. Devoted to yachting, and wanderers over the wide world through a great part of the year, Mr. and Mrs. Fahnestock possess one of the world's unique yachts, from the point of view of furnishings and furbelows.

For the Shenandoah III boasts woodwork, wall decorations and furnishings that reposed in the celestial kingdom 250 to 800 years ago. The drawing room is an exact replica of a tiny temple near Peiping, which was the retreat of the late dowager empress during the Boxer rebellion. With years of travel in the Far East to their credit Mr. and Mrs. Fahnestock have collected odd treasures which "fit" well into the sumptuous craft.

Its wood fittings are of sandalwood and the walls are carved in gold, copper and red lacquer.

His own navigator over the seven seas, Mr. Fahnestock has sailed the 1,000-ton four-master from Rangoon to Suez and from Singapore to Nice. He has manned the boat with a Chinese crew who, when they get home sick, can remember the bow of the yacht upon which Mr. Fahnestock has had painted the devil's staring eyes with which every celestial junk is provided.

Leaving for North

THROUGH radio's magic doorway listeners may enter one of the most brilliant social functions of the Newport season—the red and white ball.

This famous charity affair, the proceeds from which go to the Newport County Children's Fund, to be turned into a radio party for the first time by the National Broadcasting Co., will last for an hour and a half tonight, commencing at 10 p. m. (WRC). During this period everything that goes on at Oakland Farm, the Vanderbilt estate, where the ball is to be given, will be described by Graham McNamee.

All the artists who are to entertain the Newport colony will be heard simultaneously on the radio. Among those present will be Olive Palmer, soprano; Marion Harris, singer of popular songs; James Melton, tenor; Vincent Lopez's Orchestra; Yolanda and Velez, dancers; Odette Myrtil, French comedienne, and several others.

Graham McNamee will be assisted in describing the scene by Mrs. William H. Vanderbilt, chairman of the committee in charge of the ball.

THE guests of honor at the annual Bud Billiken Club picnic this afternoon for the poor Negro children and their parents from Chicago's South and West Side will be the creators of Amos 'n' Andy, Charles J. Correll and Freeman S. Gosden.

The picnic, the largest gathering of its kind ever held in Chicago, is sponsored by the Chicago Defender, the oldest Negro newspaper in the world, with more than a million readers. So popular are Amos 'n' Andy among the colored residents that Correll and Gosden were invited by the newspaper to be guests of honor. Their appearance will not be broadcast.

The master of songs and strings, Johnny Marvin, will be guest of honor in the broadcast over WRC, 8:30 p. m.

Raymond Knight, than whom there is none more "Cuckoo" and who writes, announces and acts that burlesque, will present his act for better or for worse (WJZ line-up, 9 p. m.).

Reduced to its chief arias and orchestral numbers, "Carmen," by Bizet, will be broadcast (WMAL, 8:30 p. m.), as one of the Grand Opera in Miniature series.

A COMPLAINT against Station WOL's handling of listeners who make adverse criticism of their program offerings has been made to this column by a reader. He would like to know what purpose the station has in asking for critical attention to its program if the persons registering disapproval are usually treated as he was.

When the announcer signed off the tenor to whom the reader objected he asked that listeners communicate their applause or censure, as the case might be, to the station. However, when the reader telephoned his objection he was told that they were entirely satisfied with the tenor and that there were plenty of other stations on the dial from which to choose if he didn't like WOL's programs.

It is hardly possible this sort of reply is the rule at Station WOL or any other radio station, but certainly employes should be more gracious, no matter how warm the weather or how long the day has been.

The well-known author and playwright, Rex Beach, will be the guest speaker with B. A. Rolfe's Orchestra tonight (WRC, 9 o'clock).

WHEN William S. Paley, president of Columbia, was visiting Hungarian radio stations during his recent tour of Europe he was amazed to hear what sounded like a child's music box being played continuously, over one of the principal transmitters. He discovered it was a music roll, being played electrically. Listeners tuning in on the station in question were thus informed that there was no program being broadcast, and at the same time were spared fears as to the efficiency of their sets.

Readers interested in a discussion of the "Regulation of Public Utilities," will want to tune in on the National Grange program today (WRC, 12 noon). Arnold R. Richberg, Chicago attorney, will be the speaker.

The following program selections have been made by Erno Rapee for tonight's concert (WRC, 8 p. m.): "Il Guarany," Gomez; Valse, Lecuona; "Clavelitos," Valverde; "Ay! Ay! Ay!" and "La Paloma."

WHEN Abe Lyman returns to the air at the end of August with his augmented orchestra, he will present a strange instrument, which he claims is a new invention. It has a double voice and looks like a saxophone. Two kinds of muted jazz essentials can be brought forth from it—the wah-wah note and the strains of a laughing clarinet. It may sound very complicated, but Lyman claims it will work—when he finds some one with enough wind to blow it.

Change of U. S. Lines Control Called Unlikely

New York, Aug. 14 (A.P.).—Control of the United States Lines will remain with Paul W. Chapman, with whom R. Stanley Dollar and Kenneth D. Dawson, Pacific Coast ship operators, are associated, it was reported today in well-informed shipping circles.

T. V. O'Connor, chairman of the United States Shipping Board, would not comment on this report. He said conferences would be resumed in Washington next week and that he expected an announcement on the board's decision would be made there then.

Dare Interprets the MODE

You just must know Fashion French if you would be a fashionable woman (and who wouldn't?), states Dahray.

New York, Aug. 14.

HOW do you feel when you read a fashion article in a magazine or in newspapers, which nonchalantly tosses off a strange word here and there that you can neither pronounce nor figure out the meaning of, nor find in a French-English or even a French dictionary? Well, I'll tell you how I feel—I feel frustrated. And that, my dahr-lings, as you know, if you ever read your psychology, is a terribly dangerous way to feel!

Then, to add insult to injury, you find the same two or three new words a season cropping up in every fashion article you read, just to make you feel more "ignorant" than you know you are.

Well, you survive somehow, usually by carefully avoiding any reference to these words, and by gnashing your teeth when the chic stranger across the bridge table seems to angle the conversation around for the express purpose of tossing these new words off with charming sang froid. And then if you hold out long enough, of course the words will go out of style, and you have a whole flock of new words to gnash your teeth over and run around corners to avoid.

Well, I didn't sit down and take my trusty typewriter in hand to tell you a sad story which you already know, honestly I didn't. What I am going to tell you is, that your Dahray, to the rescue as usual, has been running down all of these chic-taking words for you for some time, and from now on if you watch this column, every time one of them is used, (and we are going to use them often), we are going to tell you how to pronounce it and what it means.

How's that for an idea this sunny summer's day?

And then, just so that you can learn them all right away, or have a chance to look them up when one of them slips your mind, you can have the leaflet by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post. This leaflet will be ready by the time your envelope reaches us. And the leaflet has in it all of the names of the important French couturieres and how to pronounce them, as well as all of the new fashion-wise words which you have seen and are going to see in fashion articles, how to exactly pronounce them and what they mean. Better get that envelope ready right this minute before you forget it!

The Beauty Sorceress.

The Beauty Sorceress:

"What few wrinkles you have, grandmother!"

"The better to make you wonder why, my dear!"

"I know, you're just lucky, that's all."

"Successful preservation of beauty is never luck, my dear. I'll admit that over a period of time the results are so gratifying that they look miraculous, but actually there is nothing mysterious or miraculous about it."

"What is the secret, grandmother?"

"There's going to be a secret murder if you don't stop calling me grandmother, my dear, and besides, it's no secret. It's ice."

"Are you trying to tell me that ice will remove wrinkles?"

"No, but I am telling you that the reason I have so few wrinkles at my advanced age is certainly due to the five minutes massage with nice square cubes of ice that I give my face every morning while lying in my nice warm bath, so I won't get chilled and bored with the ice idea."

Last day and only a handful of leaflets left telling you how to make one of the new little Empire hats. Maybe if you send for your leaflet right away——!

And then there's Dare's weekly letter in The Sunday Post.

Au revoir!

Indoor—Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

WILL you please tell me the name of the inclosed flower? Is there another name for the blue flower, nemophilia? How do you start a sweet potato vine in water? MISS M. D.

The flower is a species of dwarf iris (iris pumila). Do not know the nemophila. Remove about 1 inch off the end of a long, slender sweet potato. Insert the potato in a milk bottle in such a way that the cut end is about an inch below the top of the bottle. Fill the bottle with water and hang it in a sunny place. In a short time the bottle will become filled with roots and the tendrils of the vine will attain a length of 3 feet or more and completely hide the bottle. If well grown a sweet potato vine is very decorative.

Please tell me when I can safely transplant a clematis. Also tell me the treatment to give a fuchsia plant. Buds are dropping before opening. Can this mean that the plant requires transplanting? H. B. L.

You can transplant a clematis in the spring. Keep fuchsia in a sunny place in the open and water it every day. Sudden drafts, sudden changes in temperature or the warm, dry air of the house will cause the buds to fall from a plant. In the open these things do not count, so if your plant is on your porch and the leaves or buds are falling the plant is suffering from lack of water or is potbound. Better repot it. Keep it in the shade for a few days after you transplant it.

I am sending you under separate cover some leaves from my garden plants. Please name these varieties. MRS. ALBERT F.

Am sorry. When the package reached me it was a moldy mass, which could not be identified.

Please tell me how to get rid of small black insects which have taken possession of my nasturtiums. JOHN Y.

Spray your plants with any nicotine solution. You will have to spray twice a week until the pests are eradicated.

Please tell me the name of the shrub from which the inclosed leaf and blossom were taken. MRS. P. J. M.

Deutzia crenata magnifica.

Please tell me the names of the two leaves I am inclosing, both are from vines. G. A. D.

The fleshy leaf was from the Ampelopsis veitchii (Boston ivy). The compound leaf I do not know; it resembled the young leaf of a wistaria.

Please tell me how to coax a Christmas cactus into bloom. MRS. M. H.

Keep the plant in a sunny place and water it every other day except during cool, dull weather, when it will require water only once in three days. Keep the surface soil in the pot quite loose.

Would like to move my lily garden. When should I do it and what preliminary work should be done in the new location before taking up the bulbs? CHARLES E. B.

A well-established lily bed should not be disturbed. When, for any reason, you feel you must relocate a lily garden it should be done in spring or fall. The ground of the new bed should be dug two weeks in advance of planting. Enrich the soil with plenty of well-decayed cow manure. Be sure you look up the depth at which the bulbs must be set. Too shallow planting is frequently the cause of failure with lilies. Each variety is a law unto itself.

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

By ELY CULBERTSON

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

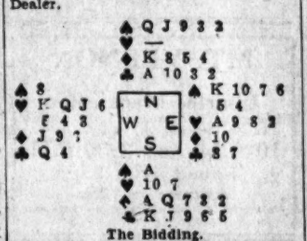
DEFENSIVE BID AND FORCING PASS.

MOST Contract players are sufficiently familiar with the procedure of Contract bidding so that they quickly recognize the bids considered Forcing. Forcing bids are such as require a response from partner. Their use with hands of many types is everywhere recognized as essential in order that the proper bid shall be reached. Opening Forcing bids carry with them an element of risk, as by their use the contract may be so high as to risk defeat. It is for this reason that the standard of hands strong enough to force partner to respond has been made so high.

However familiar players may be with the usual types of Forcing bid, there are few who would ever recognize a pass as a Forcing bid. When the pass becomes a Force is at a stage in the bidding when it is certain that the partnership can make a score on the hand either by penalizing their opponents through collecting a penalty for their overbid, or by securing a game of Slam at the best declaration in the combined hands. In the hand which illustrates the text of this article, North's pass of West's Defensive bid of six hearts is a pass which requires a response from his partner. Of course, North knows that six hearts can not be made and the one question is whether a bid of seven can be made by the North and South partnership or whether they must be content with the penalty collected for defeating the adverse bid. South in this case is in a much better position to decide the question and North decides to leave him untrammeled in his decision. If North should double six hearts it would be a statement to his partner that he was so much in doubt of the ability to score a Grand Slam with the combined hands that he believed the Double of six hearts the better course for the partnership. It is true that this does not necessarily prevent a bid of seven by South, but it can not do other than influence him in reaching a decision. North knows that his partner is also well aware that West can not make six hearts against the strength held by North and South. If the bid of six hearts is passed as it was in this case, then South must do one of two things, either bid for Grand Slam or double the adverse bid. It is an interesting situation and the illustration given is very illuminating.

Neither side vulnerable; West Dealer.



The Bidding.

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	Pass	1♦
1♥	2♥(1)	Pass	3♣
Pass	3♦(?)	Pass	3NT
Pass	5♦	Pass	6♦
6♥(2)	Pass(3)	Pass	7♦(4)
Pass	Pass	Dbl.	Pass

1—A Slam try, indicating no heart losers.
2—As East must be short in diamonds this looks like a good sacrifice.
3—A Forcing pass. North knows that six hearts can not be made, but by passing lets South know that a Grand Slam is still a possibility South must either Double or bid.
4—South decides to try for the probable Grand Slam (1,500 points) in preference to a sure set of 3—a total of 400.

In the play, South went down one, as after West showed three diamonds, he elected to play West for two spades and either one club or no clubs. On the second round of spades, West overruffed. The hand can be made by a different line of play.

TODAY'S POINTER.
Strength Responses to a Takeout Double.

A hand containing even 2 honor-tricks is a fairly strong hand considering that partner has made a Takeout Double, which shows at least 3 honor-tricks. Combined hands will have 5 out of 8 honor-tricks and if the Doubler holds more than 3 honor-tricks or a favorable distribution, a game is in sight.

Partner informs the Doubler that his hand is better than the minimum and contains at least 2 honor-tricks by making, whenever possible, a Jump response—higher bid than necessary. It is, of course, not a Forcing bid and if a major suit is thus shown it may have as little as Q J x x or K x x x in the suit.

To illustrate. East can make a Jump two spade response to partner's Double of one heart with

Spades	Q J 7 2
Hearts	7
Diamonds	A 7 5 3
Clubs	K 6 5 4

or with

Spades	J 8 6 3 2
Hearts	6
Diamonds	A 3 2
Clubs	A 4 3 2

This is the only case in Contract where partner is justified in making a Jump bid on a nonbiddable trump suit. Such a procedure is quite safe because the Doubler most logically infer that (a) partner merely attempts to show better than the minimum hand; (b) he certainly does not hold a very strong suit for otherwise he would have made a Double Jump. Jump responses after opponent's one notrump should be avoided when vulnerable on any but very strong hands.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"LEO."

IF August 15 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:10 a. m. to 11 a. m., from 2:05 p. m. to 3:55 p. m. and from 6:30 p. m. to 8:45 p. m. The danger hours are from 11:30 a. m. to 1:50 p. m. and from 4 p. m. to 6 p. m.

August 15 is, astrologically, free from all adverse influences, and the signs are beneficial without being stimulating. They indicate an air of contentment with conditions as they are, and favor social, more than business, activities. An excellent occasion for travel; auspicious for lovers.

A child born on this August 15, will be endowed with strong artistic instincts, and its hopes along these lines should be encouraged, and not pooh-poohed. It will have little business sense and will not be fitted for commercial enterprise. A dreamer—but a lovable and a likable one.

You, if born on August 15, are a peaceful sort of a person, and your one desire is to lead a restful, calm life, free from all strife, upheavals and unexpected happenings. You are a great reader and lover of good books, and evince a great interest—although purely academic—in all social and political problems. You do not—more's the pity—possess the gift of oral expression, but, with a little patience and study, you could achieve some measure of success along literary lines.

You have a strong streak of religion in your nature, not the brand that lives on rites and ceremonies, but the sort that emanates from the spirit. You are a constant seeker after the truth, and devote a great deal of your time to the examination of new cults and forms of belief. Your sense of right and wrong is very clearly defined, and your line of conduct is regulated by "the still, small voice."

Your horoscope does not indicate any great material success, it does, however, foretell a life well spent, and one characterized by unselfishness, devotion, and service. Your home life will be a happy one; you are built to be a good mate, an affectionate parent, and a loyal friend.

Believing in Marriage.

RUTH wants the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, and no nonsense. "I have been reading your column daily for two years and I do not know what you really think about marriage. And I want to know. No fooling around with words, but the real facts. Do you or do you not believe in marriage yourself?"

Ahem-mm. Well-er-rrr? Listen, Ruth, let's just go right on "fooling around with words" if you don't mind. In the first place you might as well ask whether we believe in trees, or in trees having leaves. And how about finding out once and forever whether we believe in people and in breathing. Marriage has become as much a part of life as breathing. We may, when in a New York subway for instance, question the wisdom of breathing, even seriously regret its necessity. But we are too wise to try any experiments in eliminating breathing! And so we take in whatever air happens to be standing around and make the best of it—because there is nothing else to do!

Marriage at times is as obnoxious as subway breathing. But the circumstances rather than marriage itself are to blame for the obnoxious features. Some day the circumstances surrounding marriage will be improved through education and then we can all heartily believe as we should, that marriage is the answer to the loneliness of spirit that every adult knows. Friends like us, seek us, but only in marriage do we find what we seek—that complete companionship that annexes us faults and all forever.

At present too much is expected of marriage. Because of our ignorance we look upon it as a tangible thing that we can take or leave, a something that makes us sweet-tempered at breakfast, and fond of golf despite former tastes and habits of a lifetime. We marry and we are not sweet-tempered at breakfast and we do not become fond of golf. And the face across the breakfast table regards us accusingly and we rise to the occasion in fitting style and perfect condition. And for the scene that follows we blame marriage—no one knows why.

Some day we will all know that marriage does nothing miraculous to anyone. What we are we remain—married or single. If we do not like to converse before noon, or before coffee, we will understand that we will not become early morning chatterers just because we have moved into some man's home. We will, instead, explain to him beforehand our eccentricities, and go on reserving our conversational powers for the after dinner hour. We will in like manner comprehend the phenomenon of a man who, after a day's hard grind, prefers to eat before detailing to us our perfections. At present such a man is regarded as little better than a brute by most women. Wives by the hundred write to this column that "he comes in night after night a perfect grouch, will not play with the children, does not even have the decency to talk, and then after dinner expects us to be pleasant when he feels frisky." Useless to reason with a woman who married with the firm conviction that a husband was something that came home evenings with extended arms just dying for a romp around the house. She feels cheated. She feels marriage has turned out not as advertised. Because instead of a love-making god she has on her hands a mere human being who becomes tired and shows it, requires food to restore him, needs rest and takes it. Some day we will all be able to enjoy marriage. At present most of us make a sorry job of it. Because we do not know what it is all about.

That is what we really think about marriage, Ruth. What do you think?

About The Showshops

With NELSON B. BELL

THAT was a busy day that William C. (but the boys all call him "Bill") Ewing of the Warner Brothers' local publicity staff, charted for Miss Marian Marsh's first visit to the National Capital yesterday.

Arriving at Union Station at 10:30, she posed for photos until the avaricious camera hounds were wholly satiated; visited the White House at noon lunched with representatives of the press—and other invited guests who habitually partake of food at noon, even when not invited out—at 12:30 and at 2 held open house at the Mayflower.

The remainder of the afternoon was practically unoccupied, barring a tour of the United States Capitol, more sessions with the photographers, a call at the Warner Brothers' branch film exchange at 926 New Jersey avenue and one or two other activities of a purely personal nature!

It is not impossible that Miss Marsh may be descried by alert eyes here and there in the Capital today, there having been a tentative sort of plan to remain over incognito—and aren't these film folks optimistic?—for purposes of securing publicity stills with Washington points of national interest as pictorial background.

But you had better be sure before asking for the autograph!

It has all been published here before, but since you have forgotten, Miss Marsh was born Violet Krauth in the very elegant month of October in the year 1913, in Barbados, British West Indies. She is of English, Irish, French and German ancestry, but has been reared for the greater part in the United States.

Her most important screen assignment to date has been as Trilby to John Barrymore's Svengali in the audible screen version of Du Maurier's "Trilby," renamed "Svengali," to accommodate the gender of its star. Miss Marsh also played opposite Barrymore in "The Mad Genius," not yet released.

As a matter of fact, it is probable that she will be seen in both "Five Star Final," starring Edward G. Robinson, and "The Road to Singapore," Rowland Pertwee's vehicle for William Powell's debut as a Warner Brothers star, before occupying the silver sheet again with Barrymore.

And now about the personnel of the cast of principals selected by General Manager Harry W. Crull of the Fox and his associates for that All-Washington Revue, to be presented the week of August 21 as an added attraction on the bill with Sally O'Neil in Maud Fulton's "The Brat" and Fanchon and Marco's "Pep" Idea.

In the immortal words of the classic Bill Hay, "here they are":

James Mulroe, of 19 K street, northeast, and his partner, Sam Seger, a comedy team; Bernice Stevens, of 1763 Columbia road, whistler; the Three Yates Sisters, Jerry, Carroll and Lynn, who reside at East Clifton Terrace and are exceptionally fine dancers; Bobby Bond, of Walter Reed Hospital, a singer; Tereta Schaeffer, of 221 F street northwest, a dancer and singer of the Kitty Doner type; Ruth Hudlow, of 300 Ninth street northeast, an acrobatic dancer; Margaret Ogden, of Alexandria, Va., singer; Mildred Cherot, of 2001 Sixteenth street northwest, a singer of the Kate Smith type; Kearney, Long and Belt, tap dancers; Romeo Guaraldi, 5105 Connecticut avenue, singer; Harlan Randall, 807 Varnum street northwest, singer.

Tony La Nasa, 7301 Georgetown road, former leading tenor of the York Civic Opera Company and now a resident of this city; Nadine Brownfield, 5015 Cathedral avenue, blues singer; Margaret Licarioni, 3815 Tenth street northwest, dancer.

It is not beyond the range of possibility—and this can be proved by Washington theatrical history that has already been made—that in this group may be one, or several, of the future stars of the stage. There is one voice that used to be heard regularly with the old Crandall Saturday Nighters that would do credit to any operetta—and when you hear Harlan Randall you'll agree.

Mr. Lundy, of the Loew forces, calls up to say that Polly Moran will appear in person at the Palace the week of August 29—moved up from the September date it was first thought she would be here.

And a week ahead of that, Joe Penner returns as headliner of the vaudeville bill at the Earle in a renewed attempt to barter that duck!

You will have to get up before breakfast if you want to see the show at the Fox this week. It seemed to me that it was hardly daylight when I presented myself there yesterday in the so-called capacity—about two quarts—of reviewer and the house was full even then!

Last Friday's opening was no less than sensational for this season of the year, but Will Rogers in "Young As You Feel" so far surpassed it yesterday that Harry Crull was reasonably sure at 5 o'clock in the afternoon that the all-time Friday house record would be broken.

And this despite the fact that a special extra showing was tossed in to inaugurate the new week Thursday midnight! Gosh! you'd think it was Thanksgiving, or something.

Mr. Crull says it is!

So does Mr. Meakin, up the street and around the corner at RKO-Keith's, where "Dirigible," being presented for the first time locally at popular prices, also opened yesterday to wall-bulging business.

This epic of the lighter-than-air craft, starring Jack Holt, Fay Wray and Ralph Graves, still engages the unabated interest of the United States Navy Department. A large delegation of high ranking officers attended last night's first performance as guests of the management, to thrill to the exciting action of this vivid picture which they helped make.

Personally, I'm pretty much stuck on street cars!

And now that that vacation is drawing near, I wouldn't mind spending it, come to think of it, snooping around the mews of London.

That must be the cat's!

"YOUNG AS YOU FEEL." Fox picturization of the stage play, "Father and the Boys," by George Ade, adapted to the screen by Edwin Burke, starring Will Rogers, supported by Fifi Dorsay, Lucien Littlefield, Donald Dillaway, Terrence Ray and Brandon Hurst. Directed by Frank Borzage. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL.

If Will Rogers has taken occasion in this perfect vehicle for his drollery to do any surreptitious ad libbing, it is not perceptible to the naked eye or the listening ear, by reason of the fact that George Ade's original comedy of "Father and the Boys" in itself was as funny as its present star ever could have hoped to make it by his impromptu interpolations. Ade runs second to no one as a humorist. Any other actor, however, probably would have run second to America's free-lance ambassador in the role of Lemuel Morehouse, slaughterhouse impresario and meat packer.

Which is to say that Mr. Rogers has another hit on his hands. And if any lingering doubt might have existed as to that, it presumably was dispelled with any attempt to gain entrance to the theater to find out about it. The house was so packed and jammed from opening to closing yesterday that five de luxe performances are being given today in an effort to keep up with the crowds.

There is nothing startlingly new in the plot or the treatment of "Young As You Feel," any more than there was in "Father and the Boys" when Ade wrote it.

The elder Morehouse is letting himself stagnate while a flock of doctors, an army of underlings and his two sons solicitously sell him the idea that he is a dyspeptic and that business is the alpha and omega of existence for all but the younger generation—to whom it is merely a convenient means to an end. So Lemuel comes to life with the assistance of a cabaret artist by the name of Fleurette and goes in for gay-dogging in a prodigious and profligate way. It all seems to point to blackmail until a clever twist to the plot in its climacteric moment puts the old gentelman definitely on top.

Here is the sort of thing that is made to order for the Rogers humor and methods. He plays the part for all there is in it, even going so far as to make minstrel show exits from many of his scenes and twirls a stick almost to the point of drum-majoring.

As if to match the excellence of the star's performance, Fifi Dorsay thins out her French accent until it is actually and easily understandable, thus improving her work a modest 1,000 per cent. Lucien Littlefield and the others named in the small-type paragraph preceding this screed, not to mention Lucille Brown, Rosalie Roy and John T. Murray, tune up to a high key in everything they do—and they do much.

On the stage, Fanchon & Marco's "Submarine" revue reveals several colorful and picturesque settings and introduces a variety of diverting acts, led by Radcliffe and Bob, two brown boys who sing, chatter, play the piano and finally dance in true show-stopping fashion. One of them has a trick voice ranging from deep barytone to high falsetto, with which he performs small miracles. Claire Lea and Richard Stuart and Steve Moroni are dancers; the Aerial Bartletts, trapeze and flying-ring artists; Grant Wallace, a nasal tenor, and Ward and Pinkie, just a flash.

The Fox Movietone News completes the ne plus ultra bill.

RKO-KEITH'S

"DIRIGIBLE." A Columbia Pictures filmization of a story by Lieut. Comdr. Frank Wilber Wead, adapted to the screen by Jo Swerling, featuring Jack Holt, Ralph Graves and Fay Wray, supported by Hobart Bosworth, Roscoe Karns, Harold Goodwin, Emmet Corrigan and Clarence Muse. Directed by Frank R. Capra. Reviewed Friday evening by W. A. Whitney.

To the many tributes paid Columbia's epic of lighter-than-air craft when it opened as a road attraction three months ago Thursday, little can be added at this time. "Dirigible," dedicated to, and made with the cooperation of the Navy, is a typical Jack Holt-Ralph Graves story whose setting and photography alone set it apart from the usual run of melodramas.

As a story, the picture reveals little in the way of flippant amusement, but the awe-inspiring feats of airmanship, the majestic settings of Antarctic wastes and the marvelous photographic effects transcend any mere considerations of narrative.

Jack Holt, Ralph Graves and Hobart Bosworth have the pivotal roles and give superior performances. Roscoe Karns and Harold Goodwin, associates of Graves and Bosworth on the ill-fated polar expedition; Emmet Corrigan, Al Roscoe and Selmer Jackson, nobly uphold the traditions of the United States Navy. Clarence Muse, the colored cook, and Fay Wray, Graves' wife, contribute fine supporting characterizations.

So long as the narrative unreeled in "Dirigible" takes its players into the sky, it is a thrilling picture; in those scenes where it comes down to earth, it resolves itself into a transparent melodrama of almost the traditional triangle type.

The crack-up of U. S. Pensacola, paralleling the Shenandoah disaster, but over water instead of land; the crack-up of the plane flying over the South Pole, and the flight of the majestic "sausage," the Los Angeles, are scenes that rank above anything yet made depicting peace-time aviation.

The balloons and the plain and fancy flying with which the picture opens—the scene is Navy Day at Lakehurst—set a pace for the aerial scenes that ever increases, instead of ever diminishing.

The Holt-Graves-Wray love triangle is really notable in that the green-eyed monster is entirely omitted from the tale, a fact that makes the romance engaging, although perfectly obvious in outcome.

But, please, Mr. Producer, please allow Jack to get the charming girl sometime; he's had the bum breaks too long now!

The length of the feature permits only two subsidiary pictures—an unusually clever Mickey, the Mouse, cartoon, "Mickey Steps Out," and a release of the Pathe News.

AN UNUSUAL EXPERIENCE
written by the first EYE-WITNESS

The other day I visited the distributing offices of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Pictures and was a guest in the projection room at the first showing of "SPORTING BLOOD" a new photoplay. I was frankly a bit skeptical of the theme of the picture as I am naturally familiar with all styles of screen stories. I've seen gangster pictures and war pictures and sex pictures - plenty of them. And now I was to see a picture called "SPORTING BLOOD". I wasn't excited. But - imagine my amazement when as the story unfolded I realized I was seeing one of the greatest pictures of all time! A true epic, not in the advertising sense, but in the legitimate sense - a story full of the humanity of real experience! "SPORTING BLOOD" is about horses but it can hardly be classified as such. Its story is so much more thrilling and its appeal so infinitely greater that you must classify it in the group of truly great pictures with universal appeal like Ben Hur or The Big Parade. Here's a film that rings true. When a picture reveals life with all its laughter and its tears - its loves and its hates - when it convinces you by its deep sincerity - it becomes a truly great film and stands head and shoulders above its contemporaries. It was an unusual experience seeing this great NEW IDEA in talking pictures. I arranged to put it in my theatre immediately at the cost of unusual playing terms because I think that every one of my patrons should see it.

NATS LOSE THIRD STRAIGHT GAME TO CHICAGO, 5-4

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THE American League pennant race has now arrived at a point where the Athletics can win only half their remaining 44 games and force the Nats to win 34 out of 45 to gain a tie. In other words, barring train wrecks, tidal waves, pestilence and disbandment of the league, the Athletics are "in."

With rare insight, this column has discovered that Connie Mack's three-man pitching staff is carrying the club to its third consecutive pennant. Robert Moses Grove has contributed as his share 23 victories; Rube Walberg has checked in thus far with 17, and George Earnshaw, at the latest accounting, is responsible for a like number for a grand total of 57 wins by the Terrible Trinity of the Mackmen.

This column remembers that in the preseason predictions, it was in the pitching that the Nats were supposed to offset its own batting deficiences and the admitted superiority of the Mackmen with the willow. And it has been the pitching, or the lack of it, rather, that is accountable for the Nats' comparatively low estate.

Marberry Is Best

Fred Marberry has proved to be the Nats' only consistent twirler and exhibits a record of thirteen victories against two defeats, after having been forced to idle for a month with an injured groin; Bump Hadley is proving the perennial disappointment; Lloyd Brown never justified his early promise; Crowder has been a complete flop. It was known that Sam Jones could not go on forever. Car Fischer is still a minor leaguer and Bob Burke a flash.

Knowing the material discrepancy between second and third place money, however, the Nats can be expected to concentrate their attentions on the business of beating the Yankees out for second place. At this writing, that seems a likelihood, but by no means a certainty.

The Yanks are four games behind second place in McCarthy's first season at the helm and they can be depended upon to fight to the finish for a higher place in the standing, if for no other reason than to make a good showing for McCarthy. While second-place clubs may be experimenting with new talent with an eye to the 1932 season, the Yanks and the Nats will be keeping their regulars in there.

Second Show Starts

If you have heard this one, suffer. A couple of visitors to the city had heard about the great shows the wrestlers were putting on. They stepped up to the box office and purchased the necessary pasteboards. All but the main bout had been staged.

They settled back in their seats as the feature bout pair was led on to the stage for a finish match. The referee gave them their customary instructions and the battle was on.

The pair felt each other out for a few minutes and then went to the mat and the battle was on in earnest. Our two friends watched in silence. The pair on the mat were in the agony of double torture. One had clamped a vicious toe hold on his rival's right foot and the other had taken the opportunity to grasp the aggressor's own toe in a similar hold.

Ten minutes were required for the wrestlers to extricate themselves from jeopardy but the holds were finally broken. Then followed a succession of flying mares, airplane spins, headlocks, armlocks and flying tackles. Forty minutes passed without a fall.

Finally as Pink Tights lay gasping on the mat in the agony of a new toe hold, he made a last desperate effort and clutched the toe of Blue Tights again.

At this point, one of our friends started to make his way out of the arena. Tapping his companion on the back he advised, "This is where we came in."

British Girls Quit in Rye Net Final

Refuse to Continue After Each Wins One Set.

Mangin, Perry and Sutter Win Way to Semifinals.

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 14 (A.P.).—Joan Ridley and Mrs. Elsie Goldsack Pittman, British stars, whose fine play furnished spectators at the Eastern turf court tennis championships with most of their thrills this week, sprang another sensation today when they walked off the courts after dividing the first two sets of their all-British final for the women's singles title and declined to finish it.

The action was unprecedented in American major tennis annals and Dr. Philip B. Hawk, of the championship committee, urged the Britons to complete the match. He pointed out that the players "owed it to those who had paid their admissions."

But neither Mrs. Pittman nor Miss Ridley would agree.

"We have to play an important doubles match and we feel that it is proper to retire," they said.

The upshot was that first and second prizes were given the two Britons to be divided as they see fit since they refused to toss a coin to decide the victor. Announcement was made at the same time that no 1931 champion's name will be inscribed on the championship bowl.

Match Close in Both Sets.

The match was closely fought as far as it went. Mrs. Pittman, by superior court strategy, won the first set at 6—3, but Miss Ridley evened the count by winning the second, 6—4.

Then, instead of retiring for a ten-minute intermission, the players rushed to the net and shook hands while the gallery looked on in astonishment.

"Another set to play, ladies," said Umpire W. Scott Johnson.

"Oh, no," they replied. "We retire."

It was learned later that the friendly British rivals had agreed before the match to "go all the way for two sets."

"But since neither of us could win the match," explained Mrs. Pittman, "we felt we owed it to ourselves to save our strength to win the doubles, if possible."

Whatever the gallery's opinion of the surprise ending of the singles match, it proved sound tennis judgment for Miss Ridley and Mrs. Pittman also captured the doubles title, defeating Josephine Cruickshank, of Santa Ana, Calif., 13—11, 4—6, 6—3.

Mangin Gains Semifinal.

In the men's division, Clifford Sutter, of New Orleans, the defending champion, gained the semifinal round along with Frederick J. Perry, British star; Gregory S. Mangin, of Newark, N. J., and Gilbert Hall, of South Orange, N. J. Tomorrow Perry meets Sutter, while Hall clashes with Mangin.

Cutter had a narrow escape from defeat today, for he had to call on all his reserves of strength and shot-making to down Berkeley Bell, of New York, 10—8, 4—6, 6—1.

Mangin scored in surprisingly easy fashion over the British Davis Cup doubles player, George Patrick Hughes, 6—2, 6—2, although both sets were closer than the score indicates.

Phils Rout Cubs, 14-4; Get 7 Runs in Second

Philadelphia, Aug. 14 (A.P.).—The Phillies pounded four Chicago pitchers for a 14-to-4 triumph in the final game of the series here today. The contest was held up during the sixth inning for 43 minutes because of a shower.

Bush, who started for the Cubs, was knocked out of the box in the second inning and before Sweetland and Baecht could retire the side the Phils scored seven runs, clinching the game.

PLAYGROUND YOUTHS SWARM POOL IN CITY-WIDE SWIM

Pictured above is a general view of the Georgetown pool yesterday as more than 200 boys competed in the annual city championship playground swimming meet. HUNT LOSES SEMIFINAL, 6-1 AND 6-1

McLean and Partner Gain Doubles Finals of Boys' Tennis.

Special to The Washington Post.

CULVER, Ind., Aug. 14.—Jack McLean, Washington boy tennis star, and Frankie Parker, Milwaukee, won their way into the finals of the National boys' doubles championships on the Culver Military Academy courts here today. McLean and Parker defeated Ernest Sutter, New Orleans, and Ramsy Potts, Memphis, 6—1, 6—1.

Gilbert Hunt, Washington, lost his semifinals singles match to Gene Mako, Los Angeles, by a score of 6—1, 6—1. Mako, who has defeated Young Parker twice this season, had played rather badly all this tournament, driving and volleying erratically, but today he was definitely back on his hard-smashing game and his shots carried too much pace for Hunt to handle, though he put up a good game against tremendous odds.

McLean and Parker now rule as heavy favorites to cop the boys' doubles title. They both were stroking steadily and accurately against Potts and Sutter, and, though they meet a much stronger team tomorrow, they should come through if they play their best tennis. Mako and Ned Russell, Hollywood, Calif., who upset McLean in a hard-three set match in the singles, are the other boys' doubles finalists.

In the junior singles finals tomorrow, two young Californians who met last year for the boys' title will play again, this time for a greater title, Jay Cohn, Santa Monica, the boys' champion last season, upset Billy Doeg, brother of John Doeg, National men's champion, and is bracketed with Jack Lynch, Taft, Calif., another 16-year-old marvel.

In the junior doubles, Cohn and Lynch meet Kendall Cram, Nashville, Tenn., and Judge Beaver, Gainesville, Ga. Mako and Parker play for the boys' singles title.

Dixie Grid Officials To Meet at Atlanta

A meeting for the advancement of uniform officiating in Southern football is to be held at Atlanta, September 12 and 13, under auspices of the Southern Football Officials Association and the Southern Conference. The meeting will be open to all officials, and coaches throughout the country are cordially invited, says the announcement sent from the S. F. O. A.

Dick Daniels, prominent local football official, has been invited to take part in the speaking program. Daniels will be accompanied to the meeting by several other Capital gridiron officials, all of whom are members of the association.

A series of talks on the particular function and duty of each official in a game will be rendered.

Garden Withdraws Opposition To Campolo and Schaaf Match

NEW YORK, Aug. 14 (A.P.).—The New York State Boxing Commission today officially sanctioned the scheduled heavyweight bout between Ernie Schaaf, of Boston, protege of Jack Sharkey, and Victorio Campolo, of Argentina, at Ebbets Field in Brooklyn on August 27.

Promoter Jimmy Johnston was given the "go ahead" signal after William F. Carey, president of Madison Square Garden, advised the commission he had decided to withdraw his threat of legal action to halt the bout. The Garden holds a contract on Campolo which it bought two years ago, and the big Argentine was not supposed to sign for any bout without the Garden's permission.

The commission announced it would take over active supervision of amateur boxing in the State on September 1.

Al Schacht Picks Homely, Cuckoo and Ziegfeld Teams

By GEORGE KIRKSEY.

CHICAGO, Aug. 14 (U.P.).—Al Schacht, junior member of baseball's comedy team of Altrock and Schacht, picked his annual homely and cuckoo teams among American League ball players today and added a brand-new team which he has christened "the Ziegfeld Team."

"My cuckoo team this year isn't as strong as last year," Schacht said. "The loss of Art Shires almost ruined the cuckoos. Competition was very keen for places on the homely club and I had a hard time making this team myself this year. But I consider 'my Ziegfeld Team,' which I also call 'men of my chorus club,' the peer of them all."

G. U. Planning Change Of Grid Training Camp

Georgetown University is considering a change of location for its preseason football training camp, it was reliably reported yesterday. A place in the State of Delaware—Rehoboth Beach was mentioned as a possibility—may supplant Point Lookout, Md., 90 miles down the Potomac River, as the scene of the Hilltop gridmen's preparations.

Officials of the athletic department could not be reached last night, but in the absence of a statement from them it was learned that a Georgetown representative had recently been traveling through Delaware for the purpose of inspecting likely camps.

Buying Prize Fighters Merely as a Hobby Not Original, Pegler Shows

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—Under the heading "Please Use and Oblige," Mr. Fat Meade, who is a very large, moist prize-fight manager, operating in and out of Cleveland, writes to tell of a couple of radio actors' having bought a prize-fighter named Paul Pirrone for $5,000, simply for the pleasure of owning one. "It is nothing unusual for people of national and international reputation to own racing horses and dogs and fighting roosters as a hobby," Mr. Meade remarks under the heading "Pleas Use and Oblige," "but it is a novel innovation to buy a gladiator of the fistic square just as a hobby." These are Mr. Meade's very words.

There follows an extended review of the carer of Paul Pirrone, naming the people he has licked and a few fighters of whom he particularly isn't afraid, which I can not find any use for, even to oblige Mr. Fat Meade. It appears, however, that Paul Pirrone has been turned over to Fat Meade for training and management, a good deal the same as a man who buys himself a steed at the Saratoga auctions and turns the steed over to a trainer to get him ready and drop him in.

But I am indeed surprised that Mr. Meade should think the purchase of this prize fighter by these radio actors as a hobby is a novel innovation, because it was only a couple of years ago that all the wealthy and socially refined millionaires of the Madison Square Garden Club were buying prize fighters and pieces of prize fighters with an intention to fight them back and forth in the ring, much the same as Mr. Joe Widener, Mr. William Woodward and Mr. John Hertz run their horses against one another, back and forth.

Mr. Toney Drexel Hyphen Biddle, of Philadelphia, had a Belgian middleweight by the name of Rene De Vos, and a couple of bankers went partners in a big, skinny heavyweight named Knute Hansen, who had just yelled "Boo!" real loud at Painting Philip Scott, of England, causing Painting Philip to pass out. A big automobile man, wishing to join the fun but being too busy, wrote a check and sent a professional cauliflower trader out to scour the gymnasiums and buy him a dozen assorted head. And a big broker, when he went down to Palm Beach for the winter, shipped in ahead of him a batch of stock picked up in New York and sent in with them a staff of bottle-holders, towel-swingers, and so forth, just as a man with a racing stable ships in so many head with the necessary attendants for the Hialeah season.

But nothing ever came of this, because the millionaires were not serious about their prize-fight stables. For a time, with all their money, they were in a position to take over the prize-fight business and organize their gladiators into stables, or teams, just as the baseball magnates organized the baseball industry fifty years ago. They were not thorough, however, and with the exception of De Vos, who was a very good prize fighter, their stock was distinctly inferior. The boys got fat and sluggish from eating caviar and drinking the bathing wine out of the millionaries' cisterns, and other boys belonging to ordinary coarse characters took to popping them down.

I don't recall all the particulars, but the millionaires got off their hobby after a while and, though a couple of the boys were converted into chauffeurs and house boys, most of them were only pointed down the

TRIBE BEATS YANKEES TWICE

New York Trounced, 13-7, 9-1; Gehrig, Ruth Hit Homers.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 14 (A.P.).—Cleveland's Indians survived Babe Ruth's thirty-first home run, and Lou Gehrig's thirty-second today and walloped the New York Yankees in both ends of a double header. The scores were 13 to 7 and 9 to 1. The Indians won three of the four games.

Mel Harder was the victim of the Ruth and Gehrig homers in the first game, but he managed to keep New York's eleven hits separated while the Indians bunched their fourteen blows effectively. Earl Averill hit his twenty-third circuit drive of the season with the bases loaded in the fourth inning.

Brave Hurlers Good; Reds Lose Twin Bill

Boston, Aug. 14 (A.P.).—Ed Brandt and Bill Sherdel pitched superior ball for the Braves today, as the Cincinnati Reds dropped a double-header, 1 to 0 and 3 to 1.

Showing a reversal of form since yesterday when the visitors took two games and pounded the offerings of several twirlers, the Braves' moundmen were nearly invincible. Brandt annexed his fifteenth win of the season in the first game, allowing only six hits.

ABDEL SURPRISE WINNER IN FEATURE RACE AT HAWTHORNE

In-and-Outer Wins by 3 Lengths

Backers Rewarded With $15.78 for $2 Wagers.

Quatra Bras II Is Second, With Lady Dean Third.

HAWTHORNE RACE TRACK, Chicago, Aug. 14 (A.P.).—Abdel, an in-and-out 3-year-old from the Reid & Allen Stables, an outsider in the wagering, had one of his good days today and won the Oakwood Purse at Hawthorne.

Abdel got away in front and stayed there over the mile journey and finished with a three-length margin over the Three D.'s Stock Farm's Quatre Bras II. Lady Dean, from the Dixianna Stable, was third, a half length back of Quatre Bras II. She ran second into the stretch, but faded, and Quatra Bras II caught her in time to take second money. The race was run in 1:46 2-5, and Abdel paid the good price of $15.78 to win, $8.54 to place and $5.34 to show.

$14,200 Race at Saratoga Won by Risque.

Saratoga Springs Race Track, N. Y., Aug. 14 (A.P.).—Risque, who carries the yellow and black silks of the Chicago sportswoman, Mrs. John D. Hertz, ran one of the greatest races of her career and led from flag fall to finish to win the historic Alabama from nine other leaders of her sex and age here this afternoon. The fifty-first running of this mile and a quarter stake was little more than a good workout for the daughter of Stimulus—Risky and she scored with two lengths of daylight over Preston M. Burch's Tambour. Another head back came W. M. Jeffords' Allez Cite, coupled with Tambour as the Trainer Burch entry, to annex the show position.

Risque, which won the Matron at Arlington, Chicago, earned $14,200 for her owner and ran the 10 furlongs over a fast track in 2:05 3-5, under 121 pounds, 5 pounds less than Tambour toted. The winner paid 4 to 1. Tambour, winner of the Coaching Club American Oaks and second in the Arlington Oaks, and Allez Vite ruled favorite at 11 to 5.

The field got off almost instantly to a good start, but Allez Vite, a woefully slow beginner, which won here a few days ago, broke last and dropped right back, a distant trailer.

Risque Leads From Start To Finish.

Steffen broke Risque in front and allowed her to step into a lead of two lengths entering the back stretch. Chicsu, a long shot, tried to force the pace, but quickly found the company too fast for her, and Tambour shot into the runner-up position. Buck Up, Measure and Scuttle raced closely huddled to the far turn, several lengths off the flying leaders.

Turning for home, Coltiletti called on Tambour, while Buck Up and Measure began shortening their strides. Tambour was whipped but Risque had plenty left and never allowed Tambour to menace her lead. As Tambour swerved badly in the final furlong, Risque was just tending to business under snug handling and passed the judges an easy winner. Allez Vite, which had circled tiring horses on the outside entering the stretch, made a belated challenge in the final sixteenth, which barely failed to catch Tambour.

—Hawthorne Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS

HAWTHONRE RACE TRACK, Chicago, Ill., Aug. 14.—One of the most interesting cards of the current meeting at Hawthorne will be decided tomorrow. The feature attraction, the Illinois Handicap, which received a list of eighteen of the leading routers in training, will be supported by the Fort Dearborn Handicap, an exclusive 3-year-old fixture. The former event carries an added purse value of $10,000, while the secondary feature will be worth $5,000. Each race will be decided over the mile and a sixteenth route.

The Peconic Stable's KNIGHT COMMANDER, one of the most consistent horses in training, has been assigned top weight of 116 pounds in the main event. The Wiskaway gelding showed a splendid effort last start over the six-furlong route and, at the added distance should carry his speed to victory. MY DANDY will force the pace. The Reichert color bearer, a fast breaker, may falter, but should last to gain the place. SPANISH PLAY has shown some clever performances and on his best form figures to gain a share of the purse.

In the secondary feature, sixth on the card, PITTSBURGHER appears a standout against his eleven rivals in the mile and a sixteenth gallop. The son of In Memoriam came from behind the pace last start at six furlongs to score and at this route should romp to victory. CHIEF JOHN is at the peak of his form and should force the pace, with SEGURO as the selection for the show.

FIRST RACE—BRAVE AND BOLD is favored to show the way. MUELLER showed flashes of speed last start and should improve. RUN ON appears best of the others for the short end of the purse.

SECOND RACE — OUTCRY, which finished second to Sun Fire last outing, is given the call SANTA SOPHIA and PRINCESS EDITH are favored to finish in that order.

THIRD RACE—ARCADIAN FLAG from the A Baroni string finished second last start and should improve enough to gain the award. GRAYDALE has shown consistent form and is the one to fear. THEORIST JANE figures to go well in this company and is favored for the show.

FOURTH RACE — Although FIDDLER was beaten by a nose by Cheers in their last meeting, under the conditions the tables should be reversed. CHEERS, coupled with HOT SHOT, figures close up and is selected for the place, with MORSEL, from the Le Marr Stock Farm string, as the show possibility.

SEVENTH RACE—MAKE BELIEVE has some fair efforts to his credit and a return to his best form would return him the winner. SPANFLOW will favor the route and should furnish stern opposition. ORMONTIME displayed excellent form in winning a sprint last start and should carry his speed over the added distance.

EIGHTH RACE—LADRONE, a game router, is selected to show the way to his eleven rivals. The T. Roberts racer finished second to Master Ace last outing and appears well suited by the conditions. THE SOUTHERNER was impeded recently, but managed to finish third after overcoming the interference. With better handling the Hatcher silk carrier should finish close up. TIGER FLOWERS has turned in some splendid performances and in this class must be considered a contender.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BUG HUNTER, $8.06, $4.08, $3.48; GRASSLANDS, $6.16, $3.98; DUSKY BOY, $4.30.

BUG HUNTER, although in rather close quarters on the inside during the back stretch run, worked himself into a contending position at the far turn and, continuing well after being forced back slightly at stretch turn, wore-ed to the rail after taking a short lead at midstretch and, after interfering with GRASSLANDS and DARK DAWN, won handily. GRASSLANDS showed good early speed and was racing well in stretch when shut off by the winner. DUSKY BOY made up ground in the last quarter. THE TIDE closed well. DARK DAWN lost all chance when blocked in stretch. BUGS LEARY raced very wide around first turn and tired after reaching a contending position. BASILICA was knocked back while tiring on far turn.

THIRD RACE—Six and one-half furlongs (Hawthorne course, out of chute). Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:21. Off at 3:22½. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FRENCH LASS $7.70, $4.66, $3.52; SUPREME SWEET, $6.86, $4.96; STOCK MARKET, $6.16.

FRENCH LASS, a forward factor from the start, came strongly in the stretch to wear down SUPREME SWEET and win going away. SUPREME SWEET was the most speedy last sixteenth after setting a fast pace. STOCK MARKET met with early interference, but made up ground to best DOUBLE HEART. Latter could never get to the front and tired. NIFTY was in close quarters on back stretch and stopped badly. ROYAL ROGUE was shuffled back after the start.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300; allowances. The Wilmette Purse. For 2-year-old colts and geldings. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:51. Off at 3:51½. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WHIZZ JAMES, $4.90 $3.40, $3.00; CEE TEE, $11.86, $6.58; CRYSTAL PRINCE, $6.34.

WHIZZ JAMES, off well, headed the field after going a quarter and, taking a good lead, lasted to hold CEE TEE. Latter, although racing wide most of the way, made up much ground to finish fast. CRYSTAL PRINCE also closed a gap from a slow beginning. PRINCE FOX was in a forward position most of the way. UNENCUMBERED could not keep up with the early leaders and made a futile bid in the stretch. JUDGE PRIMROSE and MERGER tired badly after showing early speed.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,800; allowances. The Oakwood Purse. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:21. Off at 4:21½. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ABDEL, $15.78, $8.54, $5.34; QUATRE BRAS II, $6.14, $4.26; LADY DEAN, $3.56.

ABDEL had the most early speed and, taking a good lead on the back stretch, was saved slightly to the far turn, then drew away when given his head and was an easy winner. QUATRE BRAS II was prominent throughout and saved much ground in the stretch to best LADY DEAN. Latter was used up trying to catch the winner in last quarter and was tiring fast at finish. STONE MARTIN met with interference after the start and closed ground on the outside. CHICAGO GIRL tired. ALYSSUM was never a serious threat.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:52. Off at 4:52. Winner, Audley Farm's ch. f. ANNIE REE, always close to the pace, went to the front rounding far turn and, taking a good lead when ALL GIRLS tired, held away to the finish. BARNEY SEXTON had no excuses and, although finishing gamely could not catch winner. WATERPORT made up ground on the outside. CLARET tired slightly in the stretch. TORCH FIRE was shuffled back after the start. PHANTASIME met with interference and almost fell rounding the far turn.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:21½. Off at 5:22½. Winner, R. C. Thatcher's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PORT O' PLAY, $11.36, $4.46, $3.58; VERMICULITE, $3.94 $3.46; JODHPUR, $7.78.

PORT O' PLAY gained steadily after going a quarter and, heading the field when JODHPUR weakened in the last furlong, won easily. VERMICULITE was under restraint when he was passed by JODHPUR and, meeting with interference, was shuffled back slightly, losing ground. He continued well and made a game finish, but could not catch winner. JODHPUR dashed to the front rounding the far turn and opened up a good lead, but could not last. WIRT G. BOWMAN made up some ground in stretch. PORT DEARBORN and STOP GAP tired when the real racing began. PAULA L. was badly outrun.

road and told to put one foot in front of another rapidly for a long time.

Indeed, this practice of owning people for baseball and prize-fighting purposes is no innovation whatever, much less a novel one, and neither is the principle peculiar to sport. I am sure the ladies of the land had a similar understanding with regard to their household help a lon gtime ago, for it has long been conceded that a lady's housemaid, or hired girl, belongs to the lady and that any lady who would try to hire the same away is no lady herself.

Trading System Only O. K. In Baseball.

In other lines of business the employers have never got around to the trading system which the baseball magnates have used, but there are many firms which would never think of raiding another firm's staff for help, a practice known as tampering in baseball. Given only a little development, this unspoken understanding might result in a harmonious system of trading employes, a head clerk for two stenographers, one to be a blonde, and an office boy for a fifth vice president, even up.

Not long ago a gentleman in New York, wishing to hire a man who was working in a rival office, did not communicate with the employe, directly, but instead communicated with the boss.

"Hello, pal," said the one boss to the other, "I like the looks of that young fellow who is doing such good work over there, and I wonder if you would mind if I should offer him a job?"

"Well, pal, I tell you," said the other boss. "I need that boy, and I can't pay him as much as he is worth right now, but I wish you would let him alone as a favor to me, because I am going to have some more money for him soon."

But a few weeks later, when the open job had been filled, the second boss got orders to cut the force and had to give the promising young man his unconditional release.

Prize Fighters Are Not So Dumb.

The prize fighters are often supposed to be quite dumb, but they are much smarter than the young man who got his release, and he was supposed to be a very smart boy, too.

Once a prize fighter and his manager found themselves out of funds, so the manager sold the fighter to another manager for $7,500 cash. The boys divided the money evenly and the fighter then lost several fights, so his new manager sold him back to the old one for $2,500 cash. And, proving that this prize fighter was not at all dumb, he got 50 per cent of the purchase price again.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

MOST golfers fail to break a hundred with two perfectly good arms, but Tom McAuliffe shoots 90 with no arms at all—and on strange courses. Using his chin and shoulder as a grip for the club, he even does better than 90 on familiar courses in Buffalo, N. Y., his home town.

McAuliffe was deprived of both arms by an accident when he was 9 years old. Undaunted by this handicap, he became interested in golf as a caddy and perfected his game to such an extent that he is now touring the world giving exhibitions of his skill.

McAuliffe thinks nothing of driving 150 yards and now and then clicks off 175 yards. One of his best stunts is clearing a thirteen-ball stymie. His putting and chipping are extremely acc

SPENGLER NINE WINS TO REACH FINALS IN LEGION SERIES

Pennsylvania Team Bows, 7-6, in 9th

Gormley Is Hero With Double, Scoring Winning Run.

Capital Boys to Play Baltimore Youths Today for Title.

Special to The Washington Post.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 14.—Washington's entry in the American Legion junior baseball series defeated the Pennsylvania entry from Swissvale, 7-to-6, in a hard-fought game here today. The winners thereby won the right to meet Baltimore, Md., champs, who defeated Welch, W. Va., today, in the final game tomorrow.

Washington youngsters rolled up an early lead and then withstood determined rallies by the Pennsylvanians. Pennsylvania tied the score twice, in the eighth and ninth, but a healthy double by Johnny Gormley, after Gregorio had singled with two down, decided the issue in the ninth.

Washington hopped on Smith, Swissvale's star hurler, for eight hits and five runs in one and two-thirds innings, driving him from the box in the second.

First Baseman Nickel took up the pitching burden and did a fine job of it for the Pennsylvanians. He held the Washington lads to three hits and no runs for the next five innings while his mates were closing the gap between the two teams. Bieber held the Pennsylvanians hitless and runless until the fourth inning. The Pennsylvanians began scoring and evened the count in the eighth.

Washington again took the lead in the last of the eighth, when, with one down, Cullins drew a base on balls, stole second and scored on Morgan's fourth consecutive hit. Again the Pennsylvanians tied it up in the first of the ninth.

Manager's Strategy Succeeds.

In the Washington end of the ninth two out, Gregorio singled sharply. Whereupon Nickel walked from the box, announcing that he was "all in." Smith, who had been playing first, went back to the box. The Washington manager, Jim Hayne, had started to substitute a pinch hitter for Gormley, who had not gotten a hit all day, but when he saw the change in pitchers by Pennsylvania, he sent him back in. The Washington catcher made his manager's strategy good by bouncing one off the left fence, a distance of 365 feet, breaking up the game.

Wilson, Gantz in Feature Of Circus Benefit Tonight

Three Other Mat Bouts, Indian Wedding, 40-Piece 101 Ranch Band and Circus Acts Make up Program.

WITH four interesting wrestling bouts, an honest-to-goodness marriage between two full-blooded Indians, a 40-piece cowboy band, ki-yi'ing braves and palpitating squaws, all on one bill, the giant Washington Auditorium promises to be filled to the utmost tonight as the city does its bit to relieve the suffering caused by the stranding of the 101 Ranch here last week.

Tickets, which will be on sale all day at Joe Turner's office in the Annapolis Hotel, are being sold on the first come, first served basis for $1 and for 50 cents. The dollar seats are downstairs in the massive auditorium and the others are upstairs. George King, business manager of the Turner enterprises, yesterday reported a brisk sale of seats and predicted a near-sellout of the 6,700 chairs.

All Participants Volunteer Services.

Through the intercession of Turner, who once wrestled for the 101 Ranch in its more palmy days, all performers tonight have volunteered their services, the auditorium has been donated gratis, and all revenue derived from the ticket offices will go toward the relief of the ranchers and their live stock.

Doc Wilson, probably the most liked wrestler who appears here, and a graduate surgeon, will meet Joe Gantz, St. Louis newcomer, in the feature bout tonight. Also on the card are rough-and-ready George Zaharas vs. Frank Speare, former Georgia Tech gridman; Dutch Green, local grappler, vs. George Kiati, and the old master, Joe Turner, himself, against George Romonoff.

Groce Osage, 18, a Cheyenne, and Clark Trammell, 25, a Pottawotamie, are the principals in one of the strangest weddings on record. Circus performers for the better part of their life, they will be married, possibly by Judge Robert Mattingly, in the midst of all the blare and glare associated with life under the big top. The wrestling ring, which is pitched on the Auditorium stage, will be the altar, and painted braves and portly squaws their best men and women.

The phantasmagoria starts at 8:30 o'clock.

DIAMOND DUST
FROM THE SANDLOTS

AMONG those fans who still harbor the opinion that the Dixie Pigs bowed to an inferior opponent when Saks captured two of their three-game series to win the District Section of the Post's City League unlimited championship are the Dixie Pigs themselves. The following letter was received yesterday and it contains some food for thought:

"Washington, D. C.,
"August 13, 1931.

"Dixie Pigs Want Another Chance.

"The Dixie Pigs are asking for another chance to prove they have the best team in the District, Montgomery or Prince Georges County, claiming that a championship game should go nine innings or more. It was never mentioned in your paper that in the first of the seventh inning the Pigs had scored two runs and had men on second and third base with one out and Babe Clapper, one of the hardest sandlot hitters, at bat when the game was called.

"The inning started when Roberts, first up, tripled; Stahl hit to short and when Mulhall threw past first Stahl continued on to second. Collier then tripled Stahl home. At this stage of the game Payne was relieved of the pitching by Mannix, who forced Rad, the next batter, to roll weakly to short, making one out, Joseph, next batter, walked and stole second. This put Collier on third and Joseph on second when Umpire McDonnell called time.

"The Pigs are playing a five-game series with Hiser All-Stars and should they come out on the long end they would like to arrange a series with the winner of the Saks-Takoma Tiger series, which will most likely be Takoma Tigers.

"The Pigs' main reason for this is to prove that the best team wins in nine innings. The Pigs have trailed many a team for the first six innings this season and won in the last two innings. Against Congress Heights this season the Pigs were on the short end of a 10 to 2 score in the six innings and at the end of the game the Pigs won 32 to 10.

"Kindly publish this in your paper for the benefit of those who were not present at the game, so they can imagine what might have been had the game gone nine innings.

"Thanking you very much and hoping to read this in your paper, I remain,

"Yours in sports,
"'CHUBBY' JOSEPH.

JACOB WINS PLAYGROUND NET MATCH

Montrose Star Gets Score Over Robey to Enter Finals.

MORGAN ("HAPPY") JACOB, the lad who caused several major upsets in the District junior championship last June, entered the final round of the District junior playground singles championship yesterday at Montrose Park, his home playgrounds, when he turned in a decisive 6—2, 6—4 victory over Stewart Robey, of Chevy Chase.

The final round of the meet will be held Monday afternoon at Chevy Chase playgrounds and will bring together Jacob and LeDelle Deane, champion of Virginia Avenue playgrounds. These two youths have survived a field of nearly 500, who began their first elimination matches in late June.

Jacob wasted little or no energy in annexing the first set, making full use of his steady forehand and backhand and waiting for his opponent to hit out. Robey had no steadiness to back up his hard hitting.

Robey Improves In 2nd Set.

Jacob let down noticeably after the start of the second set and Robey quickly commenced to improve his position. Jacobs managed to hold leads of 2—1, 3—2 and 4—3, Robey's improved serving holding him in check. Jacob went to 5—3, but Robey put forward his best tennis of the day to bring the score 5—4. Jacob, however, was not to be denied, and slammed his serves across the net in a style Robey found unreturnable, ending the match with an unplayable placement.

D. C. Archers Fail In U. S. Title Tourney

Canandaigua, N. Y., Aug. 14 (A.P.).—Russell Hoogerhyde, of Coldwater, Mich., again has pinned the championship title of the National Archery Association to his target with precisely placed arrows. He won the championship with a score of 2,476 for the double York and double American rounds in the annual meet of the association here.

Second high man was A. L. Brush, Cos Cob, Conn., with a 2,262 score and F. X. Goulet, Los Angeles, was third with 2,226.

N. S. Williams, Washington, D. C., was 28th in a field of 87 in the men's championship and had a score of 779 in the double American. G. R. Debruler, Washington, was 48th in the championship list with 1,266 and in the double American scored 795. R. D. AL SCHACHT NAMES HIS ALL-STAR TEAMS clowning and coaching when his arm went bad on him. When he's clowning out at third base he may be passing "the hit and run signal" along to a base runner and batter. He's full of tricks and can tell more funny baseball stories than perhaps anybody in the game.

How he got his first tryout with Washington as a pitcher in 1919 is one of his best, but he waited ten years before he told Clark Griffith, Washington owner, who is called "The Old Fox" because of his shrewdness.

"Every time I'd win a game I'd cut the write-up out of the paper and send it to Griffith under the name 'Just A Fan.' After I had hung up a string of shutouts I wrote Griffith, "advise you take a good look at Schacht right away." A few days later Griffith looked me over and bought me for $1,000 down and $1,500, if I made good. Griff got wise to me and released me.

"I told Griff about it a few weeks ago and he said, 'yes, you remind me of a horse I had once. I gave that horse away five times, but he kept coming back to me. You thought you were putting one over on me because I couldn't place you when you first joined the Washington Club. I finally remembered I had to cast you off the Cincinnati Club back in 1911.'"

When Schacht writes a letter to Griffith he always adds, "P. S.—I still think I should get more money." One day I asked Griff if he knew what that "P. S." stood for.

"'Sure, "postscript,"' he told me, and I said, "No sir, that's poor Schacht. I need more money.'"

A. A. U. DIVING SCHEDULED THURSDAY

Crystal Pool Scene of High Board Competition.

THE only District A. A. U. swimming championship not decided at Tech High pool last Saturday, the high board diving event, will be contested next Thursday night at Crystal Pool, Glen Echo Park. The event will be augmented by a special swimming meet, consisting of sprints and relay races, open to both men and women and under the auspices of the A. A. U.

An A. A. U. registration, which may be secured at the office of William E. Russell, 1503 North Capitol street, is the only entrance fee to the events. Customary A. A. U. gold, silver and bronze medals will be awarded in the high diving event and special prizes will go to the winners in the accompanying meet. A trophy is the prize for the team which wins the 240-yard relay on the bill.

Stars to Compete In Event.

A crack assembly of mermen and maids will participate in both events. Already received for the high diving championship have been the entries of Onalene Lawrence, winner of three D. C. A. A. U. championships last week, including the low board title; Lois Bates, Betty Cates and Leonora Taube.

An equally strong field is entered in the men's diving. The list includes such satellites as Vincent Gomez, John Boaddus, Joe Lyman, Charles Dixson, James Hissey, Norman Smith and Albert Lyman.

The 240-yard relay has attracted teams from the Ambassador Swimming Club, the Washington Canoe Club, two Baltimore teams and an unattached local outfit.

Officials of the meet, named yesterday, are Maj. R. B. Lawrence, J. Kip Edwards, Jerome S. Shear, Carl Ahlenfeld, J. S. Shear, R. O. Eliafon, Joseph Marr, James Springman, Joe Norris, Dorsey Griffith and Earl Weeks.

Park View Nine Wins In Playground Series

Park View, playing on its home diamond in the first game of a five-game series for the playground baseball championship, senior division, yesterday got the jump of Hoover Playground by an 8-4 victory in a well-played contest.

Hoover, a slight favorite before the game, could do nothing with the hurling of Tamagni, even the big bat of Flynn, all-high fielder, being silenced. The losing team, which is noted for its batting strength, was outhit, 9-to-6.

A disastrous first inning, when the offerings of Deavers were nicked for five runs, proved too much of a handicap for Hoover to overcome.

Batting honors went to Al Fratantuono, all-high selection; Goss and Wingate.

J. C. C. VS. FRENCH.

One of the most interesting sandlot baseball games of the season is the prospect for Sunday when the Jewish Community Center Unlimited nine engages the Howard A. French team on the former's field at 6410 Georgia avenue. The J. C. C.'s have won their last nine games in succession while the French's have not been beaten in local competition for two years. The battle will get under way at 3 o'clock.

AMERICAN PEEWEES WIN.

A two-run rally in the ninth inning gave the American Peewees a well earned 4-3 victory over the Potomac Peewees on the Monument Grounds yesterday. It was the winner's ninth straight win.

Rosedale Swimmers Gain District Playground Crown

Relays Bring Defeat of Georgetown Representatives by 82-72; Hogan Defeats Laurence in Upset.

ROSEDALE playground, representing the East, yesterday captured the Municipal Playground department's swimming meet, defeating the Georgetown team, Western section representatives, 82 to 72. It was a hard-fought and closely-contested meet from the beginning to the end.

Rosedale's victory, its second in two years, was due to its splendid showing in the relays. The Northeast took three of four races in this event, Georgetown taking the unlimited relay only. Incidentally, the four-man events were all close, all being won by inches.

One of the surprises of the day was the victory of Robert Hogan, of Georgetown, over Teddy Lawrence, the speedy Rosedale swimmer, in the unlimited 25-yard free style race. Both started with the crack of the gun and swam stroke for stroke to the finish, but Hogan had just a little more push left at the finish and nosed out his opponent.

A heart-breaking race was lost by Frank Warner of Georgetown to William Marmiom in the unlimited 25-yard breast stroke. Warner held a slight lead for two-thirds of the distance of the pool but Marmiom drew alongside and touched the finish a shade of a second before the Georgetown representative.

The winning team was presented the Tennyson-Chapin cup, emblematic of the city championship, which it will keep for a 1-year period. Since some of the distances and classes were changed, all records made stand as official marks until reduced in future years.

D. C. DOUBLES TEAMS ARE BEATEN

Staubley, Welsh on Defeated Duos at Mt. Lake Park.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK, Md., Aug. 14.—Drs. David and John O'Loughlin flailed out top honors of an all-Pittsburgh men's doubles final in the twelfth annual western Maryland net championships here late this afternoon. HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

FOOT COMFORT.

MARK TWAIN is generally charged with saying that everybody talks about the weather but nobody does anything about it. Somebody might become immortal by paraphrasing this comment, making it apply to foot discomfort. The man who complains about the weather and does nothing has an alibi. Talking is the limit of what he can do. Not so with foot discomfort. There is much that can be done, but people who talk the most do the least.

With respect to many foot disorders, any person who genuinely wishes comparative comfort can have it if he is willing to pay the price. The best illustration is the pain and discomfort of corns, about which there is much complaint. The corn remedies sold in drug stores, properly used, will remove corns. They are composed of salicylic acid, or some allied substance, and this will cut away piled up skin, as has been proved in thousands of cases.

What is more, corn remedies will remove the roots of corns. That is, they will remove any roots that are there to be removed. But if the pressure and rubbing is renewed the corn promptly returns, regardless of everything else. Which brings us back to this: The only cure for corns is to change the shoes to such as will not press and rub. That is easy. Who is willing to work the remedy?

The same facts apply to callouses. Again many complain. The remedy is to wear shoes that prevent all callous or that bring about callous that is evenly distributed. Again, who is willing to do more than talk?

Ingrowing toenails result from wearing shoes too narrow at the tip. One end of the slanting nail is jammed into the flesh. The remedy is to wear shoes that are broad in front and, incidentally, to remove the pressure from the slanting nail. There is much talk. Who bids to act?

The bunion proposition is more complicated, but it comes partly under the rule. Bunions are caused from spreading of the bones at the ball and pointing of the toes at the front. Wearing shoes that are shaped like the foot of a barefoot savage will prevent a large part of the trouble. Some cases go beyond the rule we discuss in that they call for operation to remove bones and parts of bones that lie in between footbones.

Many complain of pompholyx in hot weather. If they went barefoot or wore sandals they would not have this disease. At most, they might need to powder their feet and stockings freely with some simple powder. Who is willing to escape pompholyx?

Probably two-thirds of the ringworm of the foot that goes by the name, "athlete's foot," would become so mild as not to be an inconvenience if people wore sandals in place of shoes and either wore no stockings or light cotton only.

CRAMPS IN AGED LEGS.

F. B. writes: What causes cramps in the lower limbs of elderly persons? I am 65 years old, and suffer occasionally from it. While I know you can't prescribe for the trouble, I would like to be enlightened on the consequences and whether there is a cure.

REPLY.

The best and simple preventive is to keep the body, and especially the feet and legs, warm. This is done by sleeping in warm stockings and warm pajamas, by using plenty of blankets, and sometimes it is advisable to put a warm bottle to the feet. Eating a light supper and having a bowel movement before going to bed helps. While the symptom is very annoying, it rarely means anything serious.

CHASING OUT NITS.

Mrs. T. McB. writes:

1. Quite a while ago you wrote an article on how to get rid of nits in the hair. I mislaid the paper and would like very much to have you print that again.

2. My little boy, just past 3, was constipated, so I started giving him a teaspoonful of (mineral) oil in the morning and when he was going to bed. I also gave him bran flakes in the morning, and he is all right now. However, when he has a bowel movement he passes a lot of oil. It is orange in color. Am I giving him too much oil?

1. Wash the hair with warm vinegar. Then comb out the nits. Wash out the vinegar. Dry the hair. Use some grease on it.

2. You should try to get the child away from the oil habit. Whatever mineral oil is swallowed will be passed. It does not absorb.

STOCKS STEP HIGHER IN LIVELIER TRADING

Shares Sell in Big Blocks on Best Market Since June; Leaders Supported.

New York, Aug. 14 (A.P.).—Bull pools tooted their trumpets on the stock market today, and prices stepped upward in the most active trading since July 15.

Given a strong technical position and the virtual disappearance of liquidation, it was comparatively easy to bid up the favorites. Trading moved briskly during the morning, quieted down considerably in the afternoon, but took on fresh fuel at the close, when the oils again rallied. Sales for the day totaled 1,832,500 shares.

The day was notable in recent market history for the large number of transactions involving a thousand shares or more, most of which were in the low-priced issues. The usual leaders, however, received equally good support, and net gains ran from 1 to 4 points. Rails were less enthusiastic than the specialties, petroleum stocks and utilities, but railroad bonds exhibited encouraging firmness. Colombians improved substantially on official assurance that the government was determined to meet its obligations.

Atchison, Allied Chemical, Case, Auburn, Eastman Kodak and American Can showed net advances of 3 to 4 points. U. S. Steel, Union Carbide, Westinghouse, Coca Cola, Du Pont, Standard Oil of California and Bethlehem closed about 2 points higher and gains of 1 to 1¼ were numerous.

Commodities were slightly easy at the close. Wheat, which had been higher, ended the day with nominal declines, and equally narrow losses developed in corn. Cotton sagged after an early rally based on short covering.

Continued firmness in foreign exchanges was a constructive factor. German marks touched par for the first time in two months and sterling was very steady.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Aug. 14 (A.P.).—All grains suffered unsettlement today through sharp breaks in September corn, amounting to 2¾ cents a bushel and eclipsing the season's bottom price record. Buying ascribed to Thomas M. Howell, reputed to be the principal owner of cash corn, brought about a quick rebound, but failed to overcome entirely the effect of the preceding downswings.

Heavy selling of September corn had accompanied predictions that Howell's big holdings of cash corn would be marketed in the future delivery pit, presumably by means of September contracts. Another bearish factor was a report that officials of the grain futures administration of the United States department of Agriculture were investigating the recent market squeeze in which Howell bought 8,000,000 bushels of corn, and July prices went skyward to 75½ cents.

Corn closed nervous, ⅛@1¾ cents lower than yesterday's finish, wheat unchanged to ¼ down, oats ⅜@2¼ off, and provisions 15 to 50 cents up.

From the outset, the corn market was irregular. During much of the time, active selling of September was done against simultaneous equal purchases of December. Subsequently, weakness of September tended to pull down other deliveries, whereas September rallied in the late trade. Corn belt weather was favorable for progress of the new crop, and this circumstance gave some advantage to bears. Meanwhile, cash corn prices here averaged 2 to 4 cents lower. Argentine corn shipments for the week were huge, 11,905,000 bushels.

In wheat, strength of Liverpool quotations helped to stimulate temporary price upturns here, but corn's weakness was an offset later. Reports of a wet harvest in Europe were current, but North American clearances for overseas were small, totaling only 3,575,000 bushels for the week. There were also advices that Russia today had sold 750,000 bushels of wheat to Great Britain for September-October shipment. Reports that the British government would establish a 10 per cent tax on grain imports were denied. Oats followed the same course as wheat.

Provisions went higher.

BEST-GRADE ISSUES LEAD IN FLOTATIONS

Amount of Sales Increase 65.4 Per Cent; Others Record Decline.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Although the total value of new corporate flotations in 1931 has been sharply reduced from the level of preceding years, the amount of highest grade new issues for the first seven months is actually 65.4 per cent greater than in the comparable period of 1929, the peak year for new financing.

According to an analysis issued yesterday by Moody's Investors' Service, on classification of the individual flotations by ratings, the survey finds that issues rated A or better totaled $1,663,524,000 from January to July of this year. This represents a decrease of 22.3 per cent from the $2,141,819,200 in 1930, but a substantial gain over the $1,005,540,160 in the A or better group in 1929.

A detailed study of the chain store industry shows these companies to have made remarkable progress during the present period of recession, according to a report just issued by J. E. Walker & Co., investment bonds.

Chain Stores Prosper.

The report indicates that the chains have actually gone ahead in volume of goods handled, that they have won increased consumer and investor popularity and that dividends in the aggregate actually increased.

Exports of American flour to South America in 1930 totaled 1,621,000 barrels as compared with 1,552,000 barrels in 1929, an increase of 69,000 barrels or 4.2 per cent, according to an analysis just prepared by General Mills, Inc.

The eleven South American countries are becoming an increasingly important market for American flour, the study points out, their purchases in 1930 having represented 12.4 per cent of the total export trade as compared with 5.6 per cent in 1920. Total shipments to these countries have risen 45 per cent since 1920, or from 1,114,000 barrels to 1,621,000 barrels.

Brazil, which purchased 849,000 barrels of American flour in 1930, is the largest individual South American market. Purchases of the other leading importing countries were: Venezuela, 281,000 barrels; Colombia, 118,000 barrels; Ecuador, 110,000 barrels; Peru, 102,000 barrels, and Bolivia, 79,000 barrels.

Tonnage Sales Increase.

Sales of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. for the five-week period ending August 1 were $95,527,987. This compares with $96,723,670 for the same period in 1930, and is a decrease of $1,195,683, or 1.24 per cent.

More goods were sold during the July period in 1931 than in the same period a year ago, as shown in the estimated tonnage figures. July sales, expressed in tons, were 513,095 this year, compared with 461,644 in July, 1930. This is a gain in quantity of merchandise sold of 51,451 tons, or 11.14 per cent.

Average weekly sales in July were $19,105,597, compared with $19,344,734 in 1930, a decrease of $239,137. Average weekly tonnage sales were 102,619, compared with 92,329 in July, 1930, an increase of 10,290.

Young Maryland Man Hurt When His Auto Collides With Motor Truck.

One man was instantly killed, another fatally injured and several other persons hurt yesterday and last night in traffic accidents in the Washington area. Both fatalities occurred on Virginia and Maryland roads near the Capital.

Thomas A. Garrison, 72, was dead when he and Mrs. Sarah F. Dewey were brought to Georgetown Hospital shortly after 8 p. m. in the auto which struck them as they were walking along Garrison road in Clarendon. The left arm of Mrs. Dewey, who is 70, was so badly fractured that it had to be amputated.

According to Mrs. Dewey and Arlington County police, the couple were bound for the Washington-Lee High School to attend the Baptist convention being held there, when an auto driven by John R. Morris, 23, of Clarendon, crashed into them from the rear. With Mr. Morris was J. R. Phlegar, 26, also of Clarendon.

With Motorcycle Policemen William H. Thompson and Raymon Crack clearing the way, the victims were rushed to the hospital where Mr. Garrison was pronounced dead.

Mrs. Dewey's chances of surviving the amputation of her arm were held slim by hospital authorities because of her advanced age.

Mr. Garrison served as an employe of the Capital Traction Co., for 45 years, and had lived in Arlington County 30 years. He is survived by his widow and two children, Mrs. Ruth Miskell and Lestern Garrison, both of Clarendon.

Driver Is Held.

Mr. Morris was taken in custody, pending a thorough investigation of the accident, and released under $2,000 bond. He was represented by State Senator Frank L. Ball.

The driver of the death car said that the mishap was the first in which he has figured during 10 years as an auto operator. He is a service man for the Virginia Public Service Co.

Frank Simpson, of Glenndale, Md., died yesterday at Gallinger Hospital as the result of injuries received earlier in the day when he was struck by an automobile near Lanham Bridge, about a half block from the Defense highway. An inquest probably will be held today before Justice of the Peace Louis Gundling, of Landover, Md.

The operator of the machine, said by police to have been Warren W. Hastings, of Lanham, Md., was not arrested, although he will be summoned to appear at the inquest. Mr. Simpson was walking along the road when struck. He was taken to Casualty Hospital by the Bladensburg unit of the Prince Georges County Rescue Squad, where he was reported to have been drinking, and was transferred to Gallinger Hospital after first-aid treatment.

Mr. Simpson suffered a compound fracture of the skull and lacerations on the right side of the face and left arm. Constable Andrew Gasch and Maryland State Policeman C. W. Cubbage investigated the accident.

Driver Hurt in Collision.

Linwood C. Smith, 23 years old, of Branchville, Md., was critically injured last night when his automobile was in a head-on collision with a truck operated by Robert Walters, of Baltimore, on Baltimore boulevard at Branchville, Md. He was brought to Casualty Hospital by the Bladensburg unit of the Prince Georges County Rescue Squad, suffering from concussion of the brain, fractured jaw, lacerations on the forehead and scalp and shock.

According to reports to County Policeman Ralph Brown, Mr. Smith's car crossed the yellow line which bisects the road and crashed headlong into the truck, owned by a large shipping and trucking concern. No arrests were made.

Vincent Williams, 32, and Louis Kalhoun, 29, were slightly injured early yesterday when the auto which the former was driving skidded and struck a pole. The accident occurred on Riggs road, about one mile over the District line.

Treated at Sibley.

Both men were treated at Sibley Hospital for lacerations to the scalp. Williams lives at 6803 Eastern avenue northeast, his companion at 644 Keefer place northwest.

Seven-year-old Bollin L. Gibbs, jr., was cut on the head in a collision between the machine in which he was riding with his father and a car driven by Roger M. Thomas, 941 Shepherd street northwest.

Police reported that Mr. Thomas was turning off Fifth street northwest into H street when he collided with Mr. Gibbs' machine, westbound on H street. The child was returned to the Gibbs home in Seat Pleasant, Md., after treatment at Sibley Hospital.

Hartman Studies Car Schedule Cut

Finds Data Insufficient; Approval of P. U. C. Is Held Likely.

Harleigh H. Hartman, acting chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, attempted to analyze the proposed revised schedules of the Capital Traction Co. yesterday to ascertain whether they are serious enough to merit a public hearing, but found that he had insufficient data.

The new schedules, which will cause a reduction of twelve or fifteen employes of the railway, will not greatly curtail service, according to John H. Hanna, president. The most important change will substitute a 7½-minute headway for a 6-minute headway on the Florida avenue line after 7 p. m.

The new schedules will probably be approved by the commission if they do not cause inconvenience to the public or work an injustice against employes.

DECISION ON CIRCUS DEFERRED BY JUDGE

Maze in Litigation Puzzle to Cox Deliberating on Receivership.

A puzzled District Supreme Court judge, called on to untangle the maze of difficulties besetting the 101 Ranch Wild West Show and its 392 unpaid employes, yesterday, weighed justice upon the traditional scales and failed to strike a balance.

After deliberating all day on pleas of employes to force a receivership, and the note holder's demand that the show be sent back to Oklahoma, Justice Joseph W. Cox continued the case until 9:30 o'clock this morning.

Declaring this "one of the most unusual cases that has come before me," Justice Cox admitted he could not make up his mind what action to take.

Stranded Employes First.

He stated emphatically, however, that first consideration will be for the stranded employes, and his second concern for the elephants, buffalo, steers and horses marooned with the show, which closed down here August 4.

Although Attorneys Norman B. Landreau and Homer L. McCormick, representing the employes, asked a receivership so they might sell the property and pay off the circus hands, Judge Cox expressed fear that all would be thrown out of work and out of funds, away from home, on the Washington populace.

Harry S. Barger, representing W. E. Rice, successor trustee of Miller Bros. 101 Ranch Trust, who brought suit to enjoin employes from interfering with the show's movement, insisted that Lew Wentz, holder of a $150,000 mortgage on the property, is in prospect of becoming owner of the circus, and that employes have no claim against him. Their claim, he said, is against the Western Show Co., lessee.

He declared freight for the show's shipment had already been paid through to Illinois, and the court had no right to tie it up.

Offers From Buyers.

Mr. Landreau said that if a receivership is declared he can find buyers tomorrow. He said New York and Chicago theatrical concerns made him offers in the last 48 hours, and estimated the show's value as a going concern at $75,000. Employes claim $28,000 in back salaries.

Tonight a benefit will be held for the stranded showmen by Joe Turner, wrestling promoter, and Sergt. Jasper and Victory Post, of the American Legion. J. J. McGinnis is chairman of the event, which will be held at the Washington Auditorium. Circus numbers and local talent will feature a full program.

Roberts Instructed To Push Gas Quiz

Counsel Is Said to Have Found Additional Documents of Value.

Corporation Counsel William W. Bride said yesterday that he had instructed his special assistant, William A. Roberts, to devote most of his time until the public hearing on September 21 to working up the suit of the Public Utilities Commission against the Central Public Service Corporation and the Washington Gas Light Co.

Some additional documents of value to the commission were unearthed yesterday by Mr. Roberts, but he declined to reveal the nature of them. Other unannounced visits will be made from time to time to the gas company offices.

I. C. C. BLAMES GIRL IN TRAIN-CAR CRASH

Safety Body's Report Flatly Contradicts Coroner's Jury Findings.

Flatly contradicting a coroner's jury findings, the Bureau of Safety of the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday fixed responsibility for the Berwyn grade-crossing crash on Miss Ethel Thomas, driver of the St. Anne's Orphanage car demolished in the wreck.

J. A. Ward, Baltimore & Ohio engineer, and L. R. Walters, fireman, who had just been promoted to student engineer, were killed in the crash. Exonerating Miss Thomas of all blame, a coroner's jury later held the railroad responsible.

"This accident," read the Bureau of Safety report, "was caused by an automobile being brought to a stop on a highway grade crossing and the motor being stalled when a train was approaching, for which the driver of the automobile, Miss Ethel Thomas, is responsible."

New Hero Is Revealed.

C. B. Owens, an engineer, who was riding in the baggage car, was revealed for the first time as the hero of the tragedy. According to the report, he boarded the engine and fought his way through flames to stop the train, after Ward and Walters had leaped to death from the cab.

J. W. Lundy, a fireman, who was reputed at the time to have stopped the train, was accidentally knocked down in the rush of the others, or he likewise would have jumped, said the bureau's report.

It held there were discrepancies in testimony between witnesses and Miss Thomas, who was reported to have said she was proceeding at a speed of 20 miles an hour and heard the crossing bell ring only after she had passed under the south gate, to find the north gate dropping in front of her.

Girl Assisted From Car.

Her car stalled, but she was assisted from it before it was struck by the train.

The report declared it took six seconds for the north gate to lower; that if her car was traveling 20 miles an hour it would have covered 29 feet a second, or a distance of 170 feet in the 6-second interval; and that the car should have been 100 feet or more from the westbound track where her car was struck.

"This deduction," read the report, "is consistent with the statement of Agent Lorentz and the witness, E. C Yost, to the effect that the gates had started to move before the automobile reached the crossing, and that the automobile passed under the south gate as it was on its way down."

Lieut. McQuade Ordered To Florida Air Station

First Lieut. Thomas Jackson McQuade, Marine Corps, of 1130 Montello avenue northeast, has been transferred from the Aircraft Squadron, Marine Barracks, at Quantico, to duty as an instructor at the Naval Air Station, Pensacola, Fla., according to an announcement received yesterday from Marine Headquarters.

Lieut. McQuade was graduated from Maryland University in 1924, accepting a commission in the Marines on his graduation. He entered aviation training in 1928 and was graduated from Pensacola the following year. He will be one of the youngest officers assigned to the Naval Air Station for instructional work.

Having Illegal Beer Charged.

Connie Myrtle Jenkins, 28, was arrested last night at 530 Tenth street southeast and charged with illegal possession of 37 bottles of home brew beer. Policemen H. G. Wanamaker and William D. Groat made the raid.

Two Reserve Officers Win Gold Medals as Marksmen

Two Washington Reserve officers at Camp Meade, Md., won first prizes in pistol and rifle competition held at the camp. Gold medals for marksmanship were awarded yesterday by Col. H. W. Wells to Second Lieut. Frederick H. Marshall and Second Lieut. Jack B. Hiser.

In the rifle matches, Lieut. Marshall scored 229 points of a possible 250. Hiser took second place with a score of 224, and Second Lieut. Leon K. Bunce, of Pocomoke, Md., was third with 219. They received silver and bronze medals, respectively.

Hiser won the pistol competition with a score of 91.44, of a possible 100. Second Lieut. Frank A. Leschinsky, of Baltimore, was second, with 91 points, and Second Lieut. Candler H. Hoffman, of Washington, was third with 90.17.

TOURIST BUSINESS GAINS IN CAPITAL, FIGURES DISCLOSE

4 Per Cent Increase Shown Over Six Months in 1930 Despite Depression.

DROP NOTED FOR JULY OVERCOME IN AUGUST

Committee Reports Record Crowd at Band Concerts at the Capitol.

Prosperity may still be around the corner but figures gathered by the Greater National Capital committee of the Washington Board of Trade, show that the tourist business is doing very well. During the first six months of 1931 the number of visitors at the Smithsonian Institution and allied buildings showed an increase of 4 per cent over the corresponding period of 1930.

In July there was a drop but figures compiled for the first ten days of August show that the total number of visitors at all buildings increased as compared with the number for the first ten days of August 1930. The number of visitors during the first ten days of August 1930 was 57,514 and the number the first ten days of August 1931 was 59,071. It looks as though the corner has been turned in the tourist business.

Concerts Well Attended.

Officials of the Greater National Capital Committee report that the band concerts given this week as a part of midsummer music week at the Capitol also are encouraging. Capitol police officers reported that by far the largest audience of the present year attended the concert of the Marine Band Thursday night and in the history of the Capitol no larger audience of similar kind has assembled. The seats of the Capitol on the east side and the adjoining lawns were filled to capacity and all parking space within hearing distance of the music was occupied. Half the cars, Capitol officials said, were from outside the District.

Last Program Tonight.

The final concert of the music week will be given at the east front of the Capitol tonight by the U. S. Army Band. From 7 o'clock until 7:30 or during the half hour immediately preceding the band program airplanes from Bolling Field will fly in formation above the Capitol.

The three tourist booths conducted on main roads entering Washington by the Greater National Capital Committee have shown a constant increase in business since they were started. Ward H. Marsh, director of the committee, says the number of inquiries and the number of hotel reservations made at the booths are double what they were the first weeks the booths were in operation and is increasing constantly.

Patrons of Store Flee Fumes of Refrigerator

Gasping and choking, scores of persons yesterday afternoon were forced to abandon their shopping and flee from the Sanitary grocery store in Clarendon, Va., when a valve on the ice-refrigerating plant broke, filling the establishment with fumes.

Prompt warning by Frank Bushong, who was repairing the refrigerating system when the valve broke, prevented any of the customers being overcome. As the sickening gas seeped from the broken valve, Bushong ran to the front of the store and ordered the shoppers, many of them women and children, to the street. No ill effects were suffered by any of the patrons.

HENDERSON ESTATE COLLECTORS NAMED BY DISTRICT JUSTICE

Harry L. Rust and Ralph B. Fleharty Are Appointed as Disinterested.

EXPECTED WILL FIGHT IS REASON FOR ACTION

Realty Operator Chosen to Conserve Property and Attorney as Aid.

Justice Joseph W. Cox yesterday appointed Harry L. Rust, real estate operator, and Ralph B. Fleharty, former people's counsel, collectors for the estate of Mrs. Mary F. Henderson. Their bond was set at $100,000.

The appointment of collectors was made necessary because of the extensive litigation that is expected to follow attempts to have any of the six wills left by Mrs. Henderson accepted by the courts.

Edelin Seeks Position.

The wills vary widely in their bequests and a number of persons who would benefit under the various testaments have indicated that they might interpose objections to the other wills.

The collectors met with the approval of all parties concerned, but Julius I. Peyser, attorney for George E. Edelin, named as executor and trustee of the last will, made a strenuous attempt to get Mr. Edelin named as a third collector. Objections of counsel for Mrs. Beatrice Henderson Wholean, adopted daughter of Mrs. Henderson, to the naming of Edelin caused Justice Cox to decline to name him.

In announcing the appointments, Justice Cox said:

Appointees Disinterested.

"In view of the number of wills filed, the lack of agreement among the parties interested as to the personnel of the collectorship, and the unusual circumstances of the case, it is believed that harmonious operation of the collectorship and general satisfaction of the parties will be promoted by the appointment of disinterested persons. I have carefully considered suggestions of counsel, and from those suggested have selected Mr. H. L. Rust, who, by reason of wide and successful experience, and the facilities at his disposal, is exceptionally well fitted to conserve and manage the property, especially the real estate, both efficiently and economically. I believe the collectorship will be strengthed by having a good lawyer serve with Mr. Rust, and will select Mr. Ralph B. Fleharty as the other collector."

Baltimore Girl, 19, Sought in Capital

Missing for Several Days, Foul Play Is Feared by Parents.

Washington police, last night, were asked to cooperate with Maryland authorities in a search for Minerva Hope Hall, 19, who disappeared from her home, 6906 Ridgeway avenue, Baltimore, several days ago.

According to Baltimore police, she was last seen riding in an automobile with two men near her home. Parents of the girl told Baltimore authorities that she may have met with foul play.

She was described as extremely attractive and rather expensively clothed. When last seen she was wearing a yellow silk dress and white hat.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

"DELINQUENT MEMBERS"—A GOLF CLUB DRAMA OF 1931.

TREASURER—How is the work on the list of delinquent members coming along, Miss Erple? Is it nearly ready for posting?

Secretary—Oh, no! I've been working on it only three weeks.

Treasurer—Three weeks! You used to get it out in a couple of hours.

Secretary—That was before October, 1929, sir. In those days the members of a golf club who didn't pay their dues stood out conspicuously. Now I have to hunt for the members who have paid 'em.

Treasurer—How far have you got?

Secretary—I'm nearly through the Cs. I finished the Bs yesterday.

Treasurer—How do they stand?

Secretary—I thought I found a man in the B list who was paid up, but it turned out to be an error.

Treasurer—How do things look under the Cs?

• • • •

SECRETARY—I've been through most of the names under C and haven't found any paid-up members yet. There's a check against the name of Mr. Caliper. What does that mean?

Treasurer—I remember. In answer to our fifteenth bill for the last year's dues he wrote that he had no money, but would we consider taking his roadster, a box of holiday cigars and a blue suit in settlement?

Secretary—That's nice of him. Most of our members haven't offered a thing. There's a red line under the name of Mr. Crimper. What does that indicate?

• • • •

TREASURER—Crimper? Crimper? Oh, yes, I recall his case, too. He owes for dues ever since the market break in the spring of 1930 and has offered to work them out by helping to paint the men's locker room. I may have to settle on that basis. I wish you'd hurry through the list. How many members have paid up so far as you can see from a casual inspection?

Secretary—I found only three. One of them is in the E list. He's a Mr. Eggiestone. He's all paid up to date and doesn't owe the club a nickel.

Treasurer—Oh, come, there must be some mistake. A member of a golf club with his dues all paid up to the minute? Don't be silly.

Secretary—It seems incredible, but it's so.

Treasurer—What did you say the name was?

Secretary—Eggiestone, Lucius R.

Treasurer—Oh, I know him. It would be just like him to pay his dues in a year like this. He's always trying to attract attention. How about those under F?

Secretary—There's a Mr. Fubbs. He's marked paid for six months in advance.

Treasurer (astonished)—What!

Secretary—He's marked as paid for six months in advance.

Treasurer (as if seeing the explanation of the unbelievable act)—Well, well! Fubbs must have been drunk again!

HENDERSON ESTATE COLLECTORS

F. H. SMITH STOCK ORDERED CANCELED

Delaware Court Ruling Hits 200,000 Shares Issued to Former Officers.

Another blow was dealt the F. H. Smith Co. yesterday when the Delaware Chancery Court, at Wilmington, Del., ordered cancellation of all of the 200,000 shares of the company's outstanding common stock.

The stock had all been issued to former officers of the concern, three of whom, G. Bryan Pitts, chairman of the board; C. Elbert Anadale, and John H. Edwards, jr., are now under sentence for conspiracy to embezzle funds and destroy records of the company.

Other officers to whom the stock had been issued were Samuel J. Henry, Daniel R. Crissinger and Frederick N. Zihlman, directors. The court held the corporation received no valid consideration for the 200,000 shares of stock.

Charles C. Keedy, Wilmington attorney, was appointed special master to hold a special meeting of the stockholders. A new board of directors, to direct the concern's future activities, will be appointed at the meeting.

Yesterday's stock cancellation followed a suit brought by a committee representing the holders of $7,000,000 of the company's preferred stock.

A suit by Mr. Henry for cancellation of 50,000 shares of common stock held by Pitts, for distribution among "deserving employes," and which Pitts contended was never distributed, was pending before the same court. The court's ruling renders it void.

Affairs of the company have been under investigation for nearly two years.

Car Driver Ordered Held As Boy Victim, 8, Dies

Following an inquest into the death of 8-year-old Carter Downing, who died in Walter Reed Hospital from injuries received August 11 in an automobile accident, a coroner's jury yesterday ordered Leslie Blackmer, 20 years old, of 7059 Blair road, held for action of the grand jury.

Blackmer, it is alleged, was the driver of the machine which struck the automobile of the boy's father, William Webster Downing, at Fifth and Rittenhouse streets northwest. Mr. Downing told the jury that he saw the lights of Blackmer's car, but thought he had plenty of time to cross the intersection.

Unemployment Contest Judges Are Appointed

Judges in the contest for the best plan to relieve unemployment in the District this winter were named yesterday by George J. Adams, jr., executive secretary of the District committee on employment, who is to give a gold medal to the winner.

The judges are: Frederic A. Delano, chairman of the committee; John Poole, president of the Federal-American Bank, and George W. Offut, jr., president of the Washington Board of Trade. The contest ends on September 30.

WIRE ELECTROCUTES ELEVATOR WORKER

Partner Is Shocked While Attempting Rescue of Baltimore Man.

While working in an elevator shaft on the fifth floor at 1620 Fuller street northwest, yesterday afternoon, Arthur E. Day, 35, elevator constructor, of Baltimore, Md., was electrocuted when his hand came in contact with a 220-volt dangling wire.

The Fire Rescue Squad was summoned, but could do nothing for the stricken man and he died just before arrival of the Emergency Hospital ambulance. He was pronounced dead by one of the ambulance doctors.

Day's coworker, Ernest Fuller, 1109 Tenth street northwest, had left the scene for a few minutes and upon his return saw Day hanging, unconscious, from the wire. Fuller said he attempted to release his partner, but was severely shocked himself. He called for assistance and with help of other workers released Day from the wire. Day had been staying in Washington at the McReynolds Apartments.

Son-in-Law Alleges Alienation of Wife

B. L. Baum Names Wife's Parent in Suit Over Separation; Asks $50,000.

Jacob Cohen, 505 Eighteenth street northwest, was sued by his son-in-law, Benjamin L. Baum, 1247 Shepherd street northwest, yesterday for $50,000 damages for alleged alienation of the affection of Baum's wife.

OFF STREET PARKING SPACE IS PROPOSED FOR U. S. EMPLOYES

Bill Would Require Setting Up Within 2,000 Feet of Federal Buildings.

WORKERS WOULD PAY BARE COST OF SERVICE

Room for 5,750 Cars, A Day, Estimated as Needed in Mall Triangle.

Culminating an exhaustive study of the parking problem as it relates to Federal employes, a special committee of the Federal Bar Association has prepared a report urging the provision of adequate parking space for employes of each of the Government buildings. The committee, headed by Charles B. Lingamfelter, Internal Revenue Bureau attorney, plans to have a bill presented at the next session of Congress requiring the setting up of off-street parking space within 2,000 feet of each Government building.

The parking area would be under the control of the Office of Public Buildings and Public Parks, and Federal employes would be assessed only the bare cost of operation. This bill will be submitted to the executive council of the Federal Bar Association at its next meeting on August 24.

Urges Storage in Triangle.

As for the proposed buildings in the triangle area, the committee states "that the Government should provide storage for approximately 1,000 automobiles in each of the buildings."

The committee, named some time ago by William R. Vallance, president of the association, found that 33 per cent of the Federal employes travel to and from their offices in privately owned automobiles. It estimates that more than 23,000 employes will be housed in the Mall triangle.

"On the basis of say 25 per cent of them using automobiles, there will be a daily requirement for 5,750 all-day parking places, which represents approximately half of the requirement for all downtown parking during the day," the report states.

The committee takes a rap at the recently inaugurated parking regulations in the congested area.

Changes Held Drastic.

"Traffic authorities," the report declares, "have inaugurated such drastic changes in the regulations as to prompt numerous protests from every source, particularly as many of the changes, such as enlarging the restricted areas, are regarded as unnecessary and causing undue hardship to Government employes, many of whom live in outlying and suburban communities. The changes have been so drastic as to result in a great deal of idle space in the downtown sections, which presents the appearance of a deserted city."

The committee says that it has been able to find little objection among the employes to paying a reasonable fee for parking in a Government building.

It estimates that for $7,500,000 adequate parking space could be provided in the triangle buildings. This, the committee points out, is only .03 per cent of the $200,000,000 cost of the plants.

After 49 years of continuous Government service, Joseph H. Keefer, examiner and senior reviewer in the veterans administration, Bureau of Pensions, will retire from active service the last of this month.

Celebrating his seventieth birthday yesterday, Mr. Keefer went on leave from the bureau, but his retirement will not become effective until August 31.

Five to Be Tried By Police Board

Kreuger and Four Other Suspended Policemen Face Charges.

Privates Frank J. Hospidor, Edward W. Gore, Oscar L. Fisher, and Franklin R. Gue, of the Fourth Precinct, who were suspended from the police force last month as a result of an investigation into charges that they were associating with bootleggers in the Southwest section, will be brought before the Police Trial Board next Wednesday on a blanket charge of conduct prejudicial to the police force.

Hospidor and Gore were booked on criminal charges of extortion as a result of a trap laid for them by police officials with the aid of Frank Adams, colored, of 720 First street northwest, and are now under indictment by the grand jury. No criminal charges were filed against Fisher and Gue.

Arnold F Kreuger, suspended policeman, now in the District Jail for bootlegging, will appear before the Police Trial Board next Wednesday to answer charges of conduct prejudicial to the good order and discipline of the department and of selling and possessing intoxicants in violation of law. He was served with a copy of the charges in jail yesterday.
